Chief Davis Backs Police

Virginia Beach Police Chief W. W. Davis has defended the men of his department against accusations of police harassment. He said that both recently and in the past he has received complaints of citizens who felt they were not treated properly and that he has investigated each charge.

He added that while one specific complaint was aired in a Norfolk newspaper over the weekend, the article also referred to other cases but did not give specifics.

"I don't mind if they tell the whole story," he said, "but speaking in generalities about cases that I haven't even heard of bothers me."

He added that the first he had heard about the case that was specified was when questioned by the reporter.

"I feel if someone has a complaint against a policeman, he should come to my office," said Davis, "and not go to a newspaper first."

Davis said the incident referred to had occurred nearly three weeks before it came to his attention.

In the case in question Officer S. F. Bennett arrested Dennis LeBlanc at the corner of 21st Street and Pacific Avenue on June 8 on a charge of "failing to move on" after LeBlanc snapped pictures of the officer. Bennett was reportedly seeking to move a trio of youngsters along at the time LeBlanc began taking the pictures.

The article also discussed an alleged conversation between the photographer and the officer in which Bennett was reported to have tried to stop LeBlanc from taking the pictures.

LeBlanc was fined $10 and court costs on June 13, according to the article, and did not intend to appeal the case.

Davis said his efforts to question LeBlanc had failed after the article was printed, and that he was told LeBlanc was out of the country for an extended period.

While Davis said he could not altogether condone the actions of the officer in the matter and would never condone any mistreatment of citizens, he felt that citizens are not always aware of the tremendous pressures faced by a police officer, particularly during the summer in the resort area, and that the citizens too often

Storm Traps Girl

Members of the Beach Borough Fire Department rescued a 12-year-old girl who became trapped in an elevator during a power failure which affected a wide area of Virginia Beach as a storm passed through the resort city Tuesday night.

Officials said young Ursula Baskin, who resides with her parents, the Gordons Baskins at the Virginia House, 39th Street and Atlantic Avenue, was rescued after spending about 30 minutes in the stalled elevator when it became stalled about 18 inches from the 12th floor of the building. Her plight was discovered through the emergency warning system installed in the elevator.

Fire fighters rescued her by forcing open the 12th floor elevator door, then the door of the elevator, permitting her to escape.

Everyone connected with her rescue had high words of praise for the way she handled herself in the situation and the calmness she showed throughout the ordeal.

Although there were no reports of major damage or injury as a result of the storm, reports of electrical power failures covered many areas of the city.

Clenton Shanks, manager of the Virginia Beach VEPSCO office, said, "We were hit pretty hard by lightning and wind," which resulted in "very extensive interruption" of service. According to Shanks the power failures began about 6:30 p.m. and for the most part covered periods of time ranging upwards of 55 minutes. However Shanks pointed out the longest duration of power loss occurred in the Great Neck Estates areas where power was lost for about three hours and 20 minutes, and was finally restored at about 10 p.m.

Shanks said those areas which experienced loss of power included the Beach Borough, Birdneck Village, Chanticleer, Bay Island, Great Neck Estates, the Southern Points region, Kingston, Kings Grant, Fort Story, the Princess Anne Court-house complex, Princess Anne Plaza, Dam Neck, Oceana. The major causes of the power failure were lightning striking equipment at sub-stations and trees being blown over onto lines.

Fences Favored-- Barely

The edge barely goes to the affirmative side in last week's SUN SURVEY. But, perhaps in light of the number of drownings recently, a large number of replies were received.

Of those who replied, 56 per cent said "Yes" to the question, "Should owners of completed borrow pits be required to place high fences around them as a means of preventing drownings or water accidents, such as those that have already taken place this summer?" The other 42 per cent said "No."

Many included comments with their answers, and a number of those who felt that fences or some security measure was needed pointed out the beauty of the borrow pit lakes when completed and called them assets to neighborhoods. (See letters to the editor, p. 4.) One who replied in the negative however, added this comment: "They should be filled up with something like Norfolk's garbage."

While the public opinion survey does not profess to represent the thinking of all the residents of Virginia Beach, it does represent the thinking of a cross section of those who took time to clip it and return it to us.

Your attention is called also to this week's SUN SURVEY question which appears below in the box at the lower left corner of this page. The results will be published here next week.

Each week a new, timely question will be asked, and you are invited to participate. The more replies received, the more responsible the opinion.

Independence Day 1969

A Time for Reflection and Re-dedication

Rates Lowered, Not Raised

City Manager Roger Scott officially reported to City Council Monday in informal session action taken by the State Corporation Commission on a request for a drastic rate hike by Princess Anne Utilities.

Effective July 1, the $12.50 per quarter rate, charged by the company in the past will be cut to $8. Added to that will be the approximately $4.57 fee from Hampton Roads Sanitation District, which will take over the treatment of the sewage. The company's responsibility will then be reduced to carrying the raw sewage in its lines and pumping it to the Hampton Roads lines.

Princess Anne Utilities had sought an increase to $28.50 per quarter from the SCC, but at the last minute altered that to a request for $17.80. Still the SCC made the cut instead of granting a raise.

The city hired a law firm to fight the hike largely on the basis of the number of schools and municipal buildings in the area served. The company serves King's Grant, Windsor Woods and parts of Princess Anne Plaza.

It was also brought out in testimony that a number of maintenance problems had arisen and that residents had difficulty getting emergency service even when sewage was backed up in the streets. At the height of the controversy during the spring, such an accident occurred over a weekend.

Aragona Utilities also has a rate hike request before the SCC, from $10.50 a quarter to $18. The SCC is expected to act on that request soon.

While Scott did not comment on that request he did say that he felt a fine precedent had been set and that he felt other private companies would "think twice" before making such drastic requests.

The city took steps to set an even lower rate in areas it serves with municipal lines, but Scott pointed out at the time of the fee setting that the city did not pay taxes and was a non-profit organization. City sewage treatment, including the HRSD fee, is expected to cost about $10.50.

Griffin Heads Paper

John Griffin has been named general manager of the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN, effective Aug. 1, succeeding Jack H. Harris.

Harris, who has served as general manager of the newspaper and Radio Station WVAB, has resigned to devote full-time to his duties with the radio station as executive vice president.

Griffin, a Virginia Beach resident, has been executive director of the Ocean Highway Association since September 1967. Prior to that time he was director of public affairs and news at WTAR in Norfolk. He has also been news director and editorial writer of KTLA-TV in Shreveport, La.

He is a graduate of the University of North Carolina with a degree in communications. He also attended Chowan College in Murfreesboro, N.C., and received the Columbia Broadcasting System Fellowship Award for a year of post graduate work at Columbia University in New York City.

Griffin said, "I consider the opportunity to work with the only newspaper printed for Virginia Beach a great challenge. Virginia Beach is faced with a vigorous growth in the next few years, and the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN will be a part of it."

He added that Virginia Beach, as the world's largest resort city, deserves and will have a "first-rate newspaper which will serve as the true voice for the good of all the people of the city."

H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr., will continue in the position of managing editor of the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN.

Harris said he feels that the publishers of the SUN have found in Griffin a most capable leader.

He added, "In my two years of association with the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN I found it to be a most exciting challenge. I feel certain the future of the SUN is as bright as his name."

WVAB Radio is the only radio station licensed in Virginia Beach and Harris said it is the only station in the area "capable and willing to give our citizens the localized programming needed."

He said, "I look forward with a great deal of enthusiasm to my new responsibility and welcome the chance to serve the city in which I have spent most of my adult life."

Thoroughgood May Settle For Compromise

The Thoroughgood entrance situation seems to be nearing a solution, but it will be two weeks before anyone is willing to say so for sure.

Attorney for residents of Thoroughgood, Louis Fine, appeared before City Council Monday in informal session to air the matter once again. He said that the civic league of the area had voted to accept the compromise plan drawn by planning director Patrick Standing and his staff.

The matter goes back several months when developers of Thoroughgood applied for a use permit to build a small service shopping center at the entrance to the above average income neighborhood. The land had been zoned for this use when the subdivision was first drawn 14 years ago.

Residents of the area protested vigorously and targeted delegations stormed Council Chambers asking Council to rezone the land for residential use or to find a way to keep the valuable tract on Pleasure House Road as a green area. Council, after hearing both sides referred the matter to the Planning Commission for study. Several meetings passed, only to see the matter deferred.

Meanwhile Standing and his staff attempted to find a solution. In the final plan that has never been accepted nor rejected by the developers, the corporation would be given about 1.75 acres of land from streets which would be closed in exchange for about one acre they would give up on which they would build a new entrance to the subdivision. The present entrance would only be for the shopping area, which Standing has suggested be of Colonial style.

In addition part of the area would be rezoned for single-family residences, where the land now borders the same kind of housing.

Fine, while pointing out to Council that there was general accord to the Standing plan, said that if this plan was not accepted by City Council, the residents would fight it "all the way to the Supreme Court" if necessary.

The Planning Commission has recommended that Council accept the plan and the matter will come up for final action on July 14 at 2 p.m. Unless it is deferred again there, it should be settled once and for all at that time. Although the developers have not stated publicly that they will go along, there are private indications they will accept the compromise.

Bar Assn. Endorses Wahab

Circuit Court Judge Robert S. Wahab, Jr. won the endorsement of the Virginia Beach Bar Association at its meeting Wednesday to fill one of two vacancies in the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals.

Judge Wahab was proposed by Richard G. Brydges, an attorney with whom Judge Wahab shared office space while he was in practice, although they were not partners.

Judge Wahab, who is senior Circuit Court Judge in Virginia Beach, is a former Commonwealth's attorney and formerly served with the FBI.

The state bar association's subcommittee will meet Saturday to propose five names for each vacancy. The association's nominating committee will meet July 9 to narrow the list of 10 down to six. The list of six will be given to Gov. Mills E. Godwin Jr. for consideration in filling the two vacancies.

Planning Director Patrick Standing explains the planning commission-accepted plan for the controversial Thoroughgood entrance to members of City Council in informal session. The attorney for the residents, Louis Fine, (standing left) said they are satisfied.

Race Drags toward Finish Line

It's July and time is running out in the lethargic House of Delegates race in Virginia Beach for the Democratic nominations. Election day for the primary is July 15.

The candidates, all four of them, are taking advantage of every opportunity to speak out, but except for an occasional personality barb, the campaign is dull and lifeless.

The latest platform on which all four appeared was at a Jaycee-sponsored forum Monday night at Princess Anne High School, attended by a disappointingly small crowd. There were recognizable partisans of each candidate. Few unfamiliar faces were in the crowd.

Rhodes Adams and B. R. Middleton, running as a team, took on independents Bruce Murphy and Richard Guy. There was a general rehash of the issues already brought forward.

Then they all four answered four entirely innocuous questions concerning such matters as conflict of interest legislation, pari-mutuel betting, control of Norfolk water rates by the water control board and a payroll tax.

They all generally favored the pari-mutuel betting, the control board and the strong conflict of interest legislation, and all opposed the payroll tax. What had been expected to be a lively evening of debate turned into another quiet evening of dull campaigning.

Meanwhile in separate releases, the candidates have spoken out on some issues during the week.

Murphy has advocated protection for those who provide information to the police on drug and drug traffic.

Guy has criticized the Virginia Supplemental Retirement

System investments. Adams has praised the selling of the film "I Am Curious (Yellow)."

Middleton has said he is a legislator, not a politician, and wants to continue to be so. Adams wants a moratorium on harmful pesticides.

Murphy says mental patients shouldn't be confined in jail while awaiting hearings. On the Democratic Statewide scene Attorney General Candidate Andrew Miller, who opened his campaign headquarters in Virginia Beach last weekend, will hold a rally Sunday at the Dome with free hot dogs and drinks, and Henry Howell will bring his gubernatorial aspirations to the city on July 4.

Meanwhile the GOP has set its convention for Tuesday, July 8 at 7 p.m. in the Municipal Court Building at Princess Anne according to the city chairman, Elbert Johnson.

Two candidates for the GOP nomination to the House of Delegates have already come forward. They are Walter Schwegler and Robert Furness, Jr. Today is the deadline for notification of intended candidacy, and there have been persistent rumors that one or two candidates would make it just under the wire.

Film Remains in Custody

Municipal Court Judge P. B. White has denied a request for the return of the film "I Am Curious (Yellow)" to the Star Twin Indoor Theaters.

The request was made during Monday court proceedings by defense attorneys in the trial of theater owner Kenneth W. Andrews and manager Calvin T. Gray who are charged with violation of state statutes regarding the showing of an obscene film.

Building Surge Continues

June was another good month for construction in Virginia Beach, although not as good as May. A total value of $6,061,444 in building permits were issued in June, compared to the near record high $8,308,755 in May of this year.

But June 1969 was still $958,139 higher than last year's $5,103,305. The yearly total for 1969 continues to surge far ahead of the almost-record year of 1968. Through the first six months of 1969, the total value is $4,970,763 ahead of the comparable period a year ago. The total in 1968 was $3,034,780 by the end of June, and this year it is $38,005,743.

Single family residences take credit for more than half of all permits issued in June and for more than half the assessed value of those permits. A total of 113 new homes were begun, valued at $3,133,660 or an average of $27,820 per home.

Apartments and townhouses accounted for far less than usual. Only 107 permits were issued, valued at $1,167,014. The new Zayre Dept. Store at Virginia Beach Blvd. and Witcomb Road accounted for nearly $900,000 of the $908,500 new construction commercial permits issued in June.

The construction boom is expected to continue through the year, according to Robert Lober of the Building and Inspections office. Considering the number of townhouse and apartment projects in the planning stages or nearing construction, he said, "The surface hasn't even scratched for this year."

Police

do not exhibit the proper attitude.

Davis said that police officers are told at all times to be careful of their attitude in dealing with the public, and that he had directed that the matter be called to their attention again in light of the incident. But, he said he had been misquoted in a Norfolk story that said an "intensified program for policemen in public relations and attitude in enforcing the law" was being undertaken.

On a similar matter a city ordinance states that a person must be wearing a shirt to be on the west side of Atlantic Avenue. Davis said that to his knowledge there had been no law, if any arrests for violating this law. He added that he was asked recently by the Chamber of Commerce to enforce it, an order which he passed along to the police force. Since that time there has been no arrest, but Davis said he knows of many cases where the offender was informed of the law and asked to comply.

Davis said he was not aware of the particular case in which the arrest was made, but felt there was more to the story than just the arrest.

"I believe our policemen are quite conscientious," said Davis. "I hope they will always exercise the proper judgement in interpreting their responsibilities under the law."

Boy Struck by Car

Irwin Lee Phegar, 13, of South Plaza Trail, is reported making satisfactory recovery from internal injuries received when struck by an auto Tuesday afternoon when he reportedly darted across Virginia Beach Blvd. near the intersection of Plaza Trail into the path of an oncoming car. According to investigators the boy was blocked from the view of the driver when he entered the roadway from in front of a bus which had stopped along the road side to discharge passengers.

Youth Drowns

A 16-year-old youth, identified by officials as Paul Little, Jr., drowned last Saturday afternoon when he fell from a small raft into waters of the Atlantic Ocean off 24th Street. Police said Little, visiting the city from his home in Scotland Neck, N. C., was in the water with two friends when the mishap occurred. The body of Little, whom officials said could not swim, was recovered a short time later by William C. Wemhoener, a soldier attached to Fort Eustis.

Break-Ins Checked

Police continue the search for thieves who took an estimated $1,400 from two safes in business firm break-ins early Monday morning. Investigators said $800 was taken from a safe in the office of Brothers Auto Service, 23rd Street and Atlantic Avenue, and $600 from a safe at Atlantic Motor Company, First Colonial Road. According to officials both safe jobs appeared to have been done by the person or individuals.

Boys Injured

Two boys were injured when struck by a car as they rode their bicycles behind a mosquito control truck dispensing a fog-type spray in Princess Anne Plaza. According to officials Ray Browning, 12, of Cassidy Street, and William Wilson, 13, Clearfield Avenue, were struck by a car whose driver was unable to see the youth's who had consorted themselves in the fog trailing behind the truck. Authorities said the boys received only minor injuries in the Hilber Street accident.

Gets Suspended Term

Melvin Henry Spencer has received a suspended sentence after pleading guilty to a charge of possession of marijuana. Officials said Spencer, 26, was arrested last July on the charge. Judge George W. Vokes sentenced Spencer to a four year prison term, however he suspended three years of the sentence and gave Spencer credit for the year he has remained in jail awaiting trial on the charge.

Injuries Are Fatal

Final services have been scheduled in Water Valley, Miss., for Mrs. Betty Clements, of Virginia Beach, who died of injuries received two weeks ago in an accident. Officials said Mrs. Clements, 31, of Burnt Mill Road was critically injured on Interstate 264 June 18. Her husband, Jerry, was also injured when another car struck their disabled auto after it had been parked in a service lane.

Search Continues

Police continue the search for thieves who made off with over $4,000 in cash during a break-in of the White Sands Country Club last Friday morning. Investigators said the money was taken from a club safe which was opened with a sledge hammer. Officials said the money represented receipts from customers who attended the performance of Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians Thursday night. The club was entered by breaking a large picture window which faces the club's golf course. Furniture in the club and a large amount of other contents from the safe were reportedly scattered throughout the club.

Free on Technicality

Charges of possessing marijuana against Marine Lance Cpl. Michael L. Smith have been dismissed in Circuit Court on grounds of a defective affidavit used in preparing the warrant for Smith's arrest. Smith was arrested last August when his duffel bag from Vietnam arrived at his grandparents home on Centerville Turnpike. Officials said examination of the bag in San Francisco resulted in location of a small quantity of marijuana in one of the pockets of a field jacket contained in the bag. However, Smith denied ownership of the field jacket nor any knowledge of the drug being in the jacket. The technicality on which the case was dismissed is based on a new law which became effective in Virginia last June stating that a Justice of the Peace is not authorized to administer the required oath for a search warrant, a step which was reportedly followed when a search of the duffel bag was made in Norfolk through the cooperation of postal inspectors after the bag was shipped to that city. The search was made after the effective date of the new law.

Suspended Commitment

A 17-year-old juvenile who escaped from custody May 26 while enroute to court has been given a suspended commitment to care of the State Dept. of Welfare and Institutions. The juvenile, who reportedly posed as another juvenile being detained at city jail to facilitate his escape, had previously been charged with two counts of burglary. His suspended commitment was ordered by Juvenile Court Judge Phillip L. Russo following his conviction of burglary charges and one count of attempted escape. The juvenile was recaptured moments after fleeing by a group of Kellam High School students who had just arrived at Princess Anne Courthouse on a field trip to a meeting of City Council. The suspension following the juvenile's waiving of extradition to California where he reportedly faces a charge of parole violation. Norfolk authorities have also filed detainers for the youth for charges in that city, which reportedly will be processed prior to his return to California.

Fredrick G. Simpson, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Simpson of Sherry Avenue, and Rodney B. Bowles, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Bowles of Gotham Road have been appointed to the U.S. Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn.

$17 Million Plan Approved

The Army Engineers $17-million beach protection plan was approved by state and city officials last Friday.

Endorsement of the plan was given in a public hearing held at the Civic Center. The hearing was led by C. J. Robins, chief of engineering division, Lt. Col. W. L. Horne, acting district engineer and H. J. Fine, chief of water resources planning branch.

The plan proposes the construction of a sheet steel bulkhead from Rudee to 57th Street in front of the existing timber bulkhead and boardwalk; it also calls for heightening and broadening the entire length of the beach.

City Council had endorsed the plan June 23 in a unanimously adopted resolution. Cost of the project for the city would be approximately $6-million. The remainder of the $17-million would come from the federal government when the project receives congressional approval and funds.

Eligible Vets May Apply

Veterans eligible for special G. I. insurance because of service-connected disabilities may now apply for this coverage any time within a year after notification by the Veterans Administration of their disability rating.

Previously, application had to be made within a year after the Veterans Administration's determination of the disability rating. The year starts from the date on the VA notification-- not the day the veteran receives it.

The coverage is under the National Service Life Insurance program and provides policies of up to $10,000 for men disabled in service who often have difficulty getting commercial insurance. This is in addition to converted Servicemen's Group Life Insurance for which veterans may apply after separation from service.

The disabled veteran to be eligible for NSLI coverage must be in good health except for his service-connected disability. Veterans may convert SGLI regardless of disabilities or health conditions. They must apply within 120 days after discharge to one of the nearly 600 companies the Veterans Administration has approved to handle converted SGLI policies.

Maximum coverage under this program is also $10,000. Thus, a disabled veteran eligible for both a NSLI and low cost converted SGLI policy may be covered up to $20,000.

For information regarding any VA benefit, please contact the office of the Division of War Veterans' Claims, located in the Agriculture Building of Princess Anne Courthouse. Office hours are from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Dispute

Fine also sought help from Council in seeing that the shopping center is of Colonial style, that entrance gates comparable to those at the present entrance be built at the new entrance to the residential area and that a four-lane road be built to enter the residential area.

Emotion has run high over the matter for many months and several City Councilmen said they hope it can be settled soon to the mutual satisfaction and benefit of all concerned.

In other matters at the Monday session Councilman Larry Marshall asked that the city seek an explanation from Virginia Electric & Power Co. for so many power failures in recent months. He said he had not been able to get an answer from VEPCO. The company says it will provide an answer as soon as possible now.

Clenton Shanks, Virginia Beach manager for VEPCO, said there had been two failures prior to Tuesday's storm in the past 30 days, one caused by lightning and the other by a switch failure. He said overloading was not a problem, as had been questioned by Marshall.

Marshall said he could understand a power failure during a storm, but that several had occurred during mid-afternoon on sunny days.

Fontaine K. Syer of Virginia Beach has been awarded the Genevieve Schmich Award for distinction in dramatic achievement at Mount Holyoke College. It is given to the senior who in her college course has lent most distinction to the dramatic life of the College.

Miss Syer, a theatre arts and speech major, was very active in the Laboratory Theatre while at the College, and during her last semester directed one of the Theatre's productions. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Crawford Syer of Ridge End Road.

Seven Virginia Beach residents have received academic recognition for the spring semester at Virginia Wesleyan College, according to an announcement by Dean Garry D. Hays.

One freshman, Judith Hall, had a perfect 4.0 average for the semester. Her fall semester average was also 4.0. She is a graduate of Bayside High School. Judith received the Albert C. Provine Award as the freshman with the highest academic average during the year.

Also on the Dean's list for spring semester is Robert Saul. Those Honorable Mention Dean's list students are Diane Crandall, Timothy Mullen, Carol Palmer, Daphne Wall and Amanda Williams.

George Lee McIntyre Jr., son of Mrs. George Lee McIntyre of Atlantic Avenue has graduated from Randolph-Macon Academy, McIntyre, active in sports at the Academy, will be attending Randolph-Macon College this fall.

Ingeborg Peters, wife of David R. Peters of Decatur Dr., Oceana Apts., was one of 233 Central College seniors to receive a Bachelor of Arts degree at Commencement Exercises June 14. Mrs. Peters graduated in absentia.

Estelle and Patty Bolin, of Edmonds Road recently attended a special seminar held on the campus of Oral Roberts University, Tulsa, Okla. June 12-15.

Lyle K. London, Jr. son of Col. and Mrs. Lyle K. London of Bruton Lane, received the bachelor of arts degree from Dartmouth College on June 15. London graduated Cum Laude, with high distinction in his English major.

Gary Dolgins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dolgins of Deary Lane was appointed by the president of the Student Government and approved by the Student Government Senate to be Chairman of Student Activities Board at Lynchburg College for the year of 1969-70. This position will be filled by Gary during his senior year at Lynchburg.

Coast Guard Commends Boy

Rear Adm. E. C. Allen, Jr., 5th Coast Guard District commander, has commended 15-year-old Dallas Norman of Blackbeard Road for aiding in the rescue of four men when their boat capsized in waters of Lake Joyce on March 22. The commendation noted that Norman witnessed the men clinging to their overturned boat and went to their aid by paddling to them on his surfboard. He brought one man to safety, telling the others to remain with the boat, and summoned his brother Kenneth, 12, and Robert Skinner, 13, to take Skinner's outboard onto the lake to rescue the remaining three men. Allen credited all three of the boys with the saving of the men's lives through their prompt action.

11 Million Receive Benefits

More than 11 million veterans have received GI Bill education and training in the quarter of a century since the World War II GI Bill was signed into law, June 22, 1944, E. P. Brosnan, Manager of the Roanoke Veterans Administration Regional Office, reported recently.

Under the World War II program, 7,800,000 veterans received $14.5 billion in educational assistance from the VA. Brosnan pointed out. Before that program ended in July 1956, more than two and a quarter million World War II veterans, 45,000 of them in Virginia, entered the nation's colleges and universities. Another 3,400,000 took below-college-level training.

On-the-job trainees numbered 1,400,000 while 690,000 received institutional on-farm training.

The Korean GI Bill education and training program ran from July 16, 1952, to Jan. 31, 1965. During this period, 2,391,000 eligible veterans received $4.5 billion in VA educational assistance allowances, Brosnan said.

More than half of the Korean Conflict GI Bill trainees (1,213,000) entered colleges and universities, 860,000 took below-college-level training, 223,000 received on-the-job training, and 95,000 enrolled in institutional on-farm training.

The present Post-Korean GI Bill education and training program began on June 1, 1966. To date, nearly 1,150,000 eligible veterans and 83,000 servicemen have entered training—697,000 at the college level, 394,000 below college level, and 58,000 on-the-job training.

The VA has paid approximately $1.2 billion in educational assistance allowances to these trainees, more than half of whom has Viet-Nam era service.

Naval Aviation Officer Candidate James E. Matyko, son of Mrs. John Matyko Sr. of Route 4, has made his first solo flight.

Fireworks To Light Holiday

The biggest holiday fireworks display of the season will mark the Independence Day observance at Seaside Amusement Park, on July 4.

Presented on the park's oceanfront at 10 p.m., the display will feature the latest creations in bursting aerial shells and brilliant animated ground displays.

"Myriam France," high trapeze acrobat, is currently the free circus act at Seaside Park, appearing throughout the holiday week-end, with free performances of tumbling, swinging, somersaulting, and other daring acrobatic accomplishments, twice daily at 2:30 and 10 p.m., on the park's outdoor stage. The evening performance on July 4th, will be at 11 p.m.

All beach activity—bathhouse, refreshment stands, and free sheltered picnic area—will be in operation at 9 a.m. daily from July 4 to 6. The park's ride mid-way will open Friday, July 4 at 11 a.m. to serve the anticipated early holiday crowds, and at 12 noon on Saturday and Sunday.

There will be three afternoon dance sessions at the park's "Frolics Room," from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m., on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Very casual dress, bathing suits included, is the style during the afternoon "cool sessions."

There will also be dancing every evening this week, from 8 p.m. Live music during the holiday week-end will be furnished alternately by "Lee's Gang" and "The Equations." Teen dances will be held at the "Frolics Room" this Sunday and Monday, July 6 and 7 at 8 p.m.

Admission to Seaside Amusement Park is free.

In addition to the Seaside display scores upon scores of booming holiday fireworks are in store for fireworks-watchers at Ocean View Amusement Park July 4 and 5 at 10 p.m.

A new "Fat Flounder Contest"—with an $85.00 value rod and reel, completely rigged, as the prize—starts this week at Ocean View Park's Fishing Pier. The prize will go to the person catching the heaviest flounder while fishing from the pier facility during the month of July.

Chief Machinist Mate Earl R. Simonin, USN, son of Mrs. Clarence Saunders of Newtown Road will visit Portland, Ore. while serving aboard the supply ship USS Procyon for the 1969 Annual Rose Festival.

Aviation Maintenance Administrationman 3, C. Jerry R. Devorss, USN, son of Mrs. Hazel L. Devorss of Bowden Avenue, is serving aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS Forrestal in her home port of Norfolk, Va.

The fabulous Ink Spots

Ink Spots Here for Two Weeks

The White Sands Country Club will present the fabulous Ink Spots for a two week engagement, July 1 through 13.

Top recording stars of the 40's, the Ink Spots are currently among the most popular entertainers on the nightclub circuit. There will be two shows nightly at 9:30 and midnight, Tuesday through Sunday in the White Sands Rainbow Room. For ticket information call 340-4040.

This engagement continues the policy of the White Sands to bring name entertainment to Virginia Beach.

In the spring Frank Sinatra, Jr. brought a variety of acts to the club in a highly successful run of one week.

More recently Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians played a one-night dance date at the club to a capacity crowd. The music of the orchestra last Wednesday night was a mixture of old standards played in the inimitable Lombardo style and more contemporary music given the Lombardo touch.

Stage Circus Scheduled

The Great Bridge Ruritan Club is sponsoring Holiday Hippodrome stage circus at the Great Bridge High School auditorium on Aug. 2.

Holiday Hippodrome, rated the top indoor stage circus, will perform twice -- at 1:45 p.m. and 4:15 p.m. The show will last approximately 90 minutes. Tickets, both adult and children are $1 each. They may be obtained by calling 487-4792.

Proceeds from the circus will be used to further the Club's charitable activities.

Engineman 2, C. Michael H. Sadler, USN, husband of Mrs. Gloria J. Sadler of Gunter Street is serving with Assault Craft Unit aboard the dock landing ship USS Spiegel Grove.

Robert E. Whitley, assistant executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, accepts car keys from Richard Kline, president of R. K. Chevrolet. The keys are to a courtesy car, shown in the background, which has been provided for the Chamber of Commerce's use by R. K. Chevrolet.

Pollard-Thompson-Farley

We endorse and strongly support the candidacy of Lt. Gov. Fred Pollard in the forthcoming Democratic gubernatorial primary race.

He would seem to be the only real choice for Virginians who favor the continuation of positive, progressive government. While it is true that one of his opponents, Norfolk State Sen. Henry Howell, has served in the General Assembly also, he would have to admit that he has been far less successful in the implementation of his programs than Pollard has been over the years.

Pollard is by far the most experienced in state government of all the candidates seeking any office in this election. His ability cannot be doubted. As a legislator from Richmond he led the ticket in several hotly contested races, giving added weight to his popularity and to the great respect his supporters have for him.

The third choice, William Battle, has been an ambassador to Australia, appointed by his political ally and friend, Pres. John F. Kennedy. He has no governmental experience in this country, only "down under," far removed from Virginia and its unique problems, with which Pollard has dealt successfully for many years.

Of the five living past Governors of Virginia, three - Darden, Tuck and Stanley - support Pollard. One other is a Supreme Court of Appeals Justice and offers no opinion. The fifth is the father of Battle. The present Governor, Mills E. Godwin, Jr., has given tacit endorsement to Pollard, stating the need for state-level experience. Pollard ran on the Godwin ticket four years ago and was elected easily.

There has been much progress made in Virginia in recent years with Pollard in the No. 2 spot. Now he must be made No. 1, so that that progress can be continued smoothly.

And a Governor must have with him, as Godwin did, men with whom he can work well. Pollard has State Sen. Carrington Thompson on his ticket for Lt. Gov. and Del. Guy Farley for Attorney General. Those are the men he can work with the best. Both are also experienced lawmakers and able men, worthy of wholehearted support.

Virginians have always been able to point with pride to their leaders as experienced, capable and highly respected men. That tradition cannot be lost now as the state rushes into the crucial decades before the 21st century.

Color it 'Yellow'

We do not advocate a steady diet of Walt Disney sillies and we are all probably too sophisticated to see a return of the Ginger Rogers-Fred Astaire extravaganza days, but the movie fare of today is getting ridiculous.

Surely the operators of theaters are making money out of pictures for adults only and certainly the youth of today is far more aware than past generations, but the motion picture industry appears to be lacking in its role of guiding force on communities.

Whether "I Am Curious (Yellow)" is obscene or just in poor taste is up to the courts.

We need more movies that a family can enjoy together. Monkeying around with morals and moral standards is a dangerous practice and can only cause harm.

One Year Later

Virginia Beach City Manager Roger M. Scott has just completed his first anniversary in office. It has been a year of many challenges for him, which he has called "trying, but rewarding."

He has never been seriously at odds with his City Council, although they have differed on several matters, and he has won warm respect from many who did not altogether favor his appointment a year ago.

There have been disappointments and mistakes, but there have also been successes and progress. More of the same will undoubtedly follow, as Virginia Beach struggles to mature so quickly and to take its place soon as Virginia's largest city.

Scott has faced crucial money problems in his first budget and has seen it trimmed. He will continue to face those problems, and, in fact, will most likely see the pinch worsen. But, frustration or not, the problems will be dealt with firmly by Scott. He has proved that in his first year.

If the first year was challenging, the next few may be called "demanding". With Scott's ability and his total command of the office, coupled with the wisdom of this and future City Councils, we cannot miss.

Law and Order

There must never be a breakdown of law and order. Policemen are humans, and they make mistakes because of it. Perhaps they are sometimes over zealous in the performance of their highly responsible duties. But they must have a free hand at all time to protect us all. Virginia Beach is faced at present with a number of pressing police problems; such as drugs, hippies, motorcycle gangs and the like. Charges of harassment, while they must be dealt with on merit, can only serve to aid the problem. The police need support, not condemnation. If an error in judgment is made, as is possible in present case, it should certainly be dealt with, but all sides had best be considered.

SUMMER, 1969

Letters to the Editor

Editor's Note: The following two letters were received as affirmative replies to last week's front page SUN SURVEY regarding the feasibility of fence-borrow pits in Virginia Beach as a safety measure.

Qualified Reply

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: I would like to qualify my answer as to owners being required to place high fences around borrow pits. This should be done only where the borrow pits are isolated without homes close by.

Some of the most choice lots in Virginia Beach border on borrow pits; for example Kemp's Lake with Point O' View on one side and Kempsville Heights on the other. D. Miller

Barb Wire

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: Not only a high fence, but I feel a barbed wire would also aid in discouragement. Just a fence will not keep children out, unless it is of a type you cannot climb.

Perhaps someone on a committee could investigate this matter of borrow pits and their usage. It does seem a vast waste to have such a lovely body of water and it be completely unusable. Perhaps they could be stocked with fish and made into fishing piers or in some manner made safe for swimming.

It is most interesting to note that most drownings lately have been excellent swimmers. Why? I feel that I would have felt I could cross it without any difficulty; so it is perhaps the fact that when you get in the middle, you tire just a bit, know you can't reach bottom and panic. Maybe some ropes could be placed across at various spots, so you could possibly reach them and hang on. MAYBE, PERHAPS, POSSIBLY, but definitely SOMETHING has to be done. Mrs. Robert G. Taylor.

Against Road Too

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: Three cheers for the writer who last week complained about the miserable condition of South

Lynnhaven Road. May I please add my feelings.

I too am worried about the fall and winter months and bad weather when school buses have to travel that narrow, rough road with those deep ditches on both sides.

But I too travel it every day getting back and forth to work. In the winter months I do not arrive home until after dark, and I can't count the number of near misses I have had on that road.

Lynnhaven Road is heavily traveled now because of the new housing that has gone up in the area since I moved there five years ago. And the road has only gotten worse. A little gravel sprinkled on it and tarred down once a year has not helped at all.

When will the city do something about it? Soon, I hope. I agree again with last week's writer. Can't your paper help? Donald L. Lane

Editor's note: We're working on it. Story forthcoming soon.

The VIRGINIA BEACH SUN welcomes letters. They will be published when possible. Each letter must be signed and include address of the writer. Letters are invited on any question.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"Happy birthday, Daddy," she said, as she bounced on his chest, awakening him rather rudely. "Mmmph," he said, "Thank you. But couldn't you have waited until Mickey's little hand was on a bigger number to tell me?" "Huh?" said the six-year-old. "What are you talking about?" "Never mind," he said. "Now would you please arrange yourself on another part of my chest before your sister has some sort of fit. She wants to get on too."

How Old

Are You, Mother?

"I know," she smiled. "That's why I asked." she closed her eyes again. "Yeah, how old are you, Daddy?" asked the six-year-old. "Yeah, how old are you, Daddy?" echoed her younger counterpart.

"What difference does it make?" he asked. "OK, I'm over 21. How's that?" "I know how old you are anyway," said the six-year-old. "Mother told me. You're 35."

"Mother has a big mouth," he said. Mother yawned to prove it. "Well, you don't have to tell everybody about it. All right?" he asked the girls.

"Why?" asked the older one. "I don't care who knows I'm six."

"Why?" echoed the younger one. "I don't care who knows I'm four."

"You're not," he pointed out. "You're only three."

"I forgot," she said. "Besides I'm almost four."

"But when you get older you don't add a year to your age so easily," he said. "Now, ask your Mother how old she is."

Mother opened her eyes. "They know how old I am," she said. "I told them."

"Sure," said the older one. "She told us."

"She's 21," said the younger one. "See?" Mother smiled again.

"Oh, really?" he asked. "Did she also tell you that she was a child bride? You know Mother and I have been married ten years. You've been through the first grade. How old was Mother when we were married?"

"Forty-three?" asked the little one.

"Not you," he said. The older one worked on it.

"Gee, Mother was only 11 when you got married," she finally said. "Wasn't that a little young?"

"Don't be so logical so early in the morning," said Mother. "Besides, if I want to be 21 I'll be 21."

"Mother, when Daddy's 45, how old will you be?" asked the little one. Mother ignored her.

"Mother will still be 21," said the older one. "I think I have it figured out now."

"That's called new math," he said, as he laughed and shook the bed hard enough to wake her up fully.

"All right," she said as she got out of bed. "That's enough of that. It's your birthday. You're the one who's supposed to be the butt of jokes."

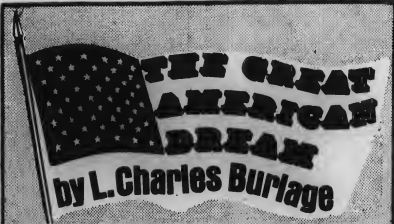

"Mother, when Daddy's 55, how old will you be?" asked the little one.

"She'll still be 21, silly," said her older and wiser sister.

"Don't you understand?"

"Where're you going?" he asked as he laughed and they bounced on his chest.

"Downstairs away from this merry crowd," said the 21-year-old.

Virginia Beach probably has more civic leagues than any other city of comparable size in the United States.

One recent count came to 175 and admittedly was incomplete. Most of these organizations meet about every 60 days or so and discuss problems affecting the community such as, traffic control; police protection and zoning problems. Each league has a social side in which the residents enjoy fellowship with each other.

The one problem that will cause a civic league to spring into action the quickest is a zoning application which the residents believe will adversely affect their property values. In such instances, the civic league will exercise a powerful, almost decisive influence on the outcome of such an application. In short, most civic leagues are run by adults for adults and are concerned with adult problems.

Contrast this with the approach of the Aragona Community Recreation Center. Aragona Village is a community in Virginia Beach of about 3,000 homes. The total population is around 15,000 people. When the subdivision was first planned, no recreation areas were included. Consequently, some 9,000 children had no place to play except in the streets; and outside of school, had no organized recreational or social activities available to them. As a natural consequence, juvenile problems of all sorts arose in the Village.

A small group of civic minded residents banded together and formed the Aragona Village Community Recreation Center. They undertook numerous fund raising projects designed to give Aragona Village a place of wholesome recreation for the children and the residents. The Center purchased some land and built a building on it. In order to get financing, the officers personally endorsed the obligations incurred in order to construct the building. Without credit, the best loan available was at an interest rate of 10%.

From this financially impossible beginning, the Aragona Village Community Recreation Center, today is the most important aspect of life in the community. The total value of the land and building is in the area of $100,000. The current debt is $25,000; financed at bank interest rates, because of the excellent credit achieved by the Center.

The social calendar of the Center reveals how every age group in the Village is benefited. Two nights a week are set aside as adult nights. A pot-luck social is held once a month for adults. A teen-dance for the 13 to 19 year old age group is held every week; 52 weeks a year. A pre-teen dance for the nine to 12 age group is held twice a month. Movies are shown every Saturday morning for the children. The privilege to use the Center is conditioned upon the children observing reasonable rules of conduct.

In addition the Center carries on a lot of confidential charitable work. This includes Thanksgiving dinner for 32 families; Christmas dinner and toys for 55 families; 1,000 cans of food for the welfare department; $150 worth of food for the destitute family of an alcoholic; $500 for a boy who was seriously hurt in an accident and other charities too numerous to mention.

The effect has been to appreciably reduce juvenile delinquency and other problems in Aragona Village. All this was accomplished without one dollar of government money.

Special Report

Where Are the Bad Guys?

The question is, "Who are the bad guys?"

In fact, that's what has been much of the problem in the Democratic primary races on a statewide level. There just don't seem to be any bad guys. Surely there have been a few jabs thrown, but no knockout punches.

Probably the best reason for the restrained punching is that things have been going pretty well in Virginia in recent administrations. No one can criticize the Harrison administration for its efforts in industrial development, and no one can criticize the Godwin administration for its efforts in education, urban development and mental institutions.

Virginia is fast becoming recognized as a progressive state, ready to deal actively with its problems. The solutions have been coming in rapid-fire succession.

Thus it is difficult for the candidates to find anything real to fight about, except each other. And that is a dangerous road. If the party is badly split in the primary it is an open invitation to Republican Linwood Holton to move into the Executive Mansion in January.

And so Messrs. Howell, Pollard and Battle continue to hammer away at familiar themes. Howell is fighting the "big boys". Battle talks confidently of his new dimension moderate views. And Pollard, with perhaps the most effective strategy in light of the success of the past, continues to pound away at his experience. "Let's look at the record" is the old familiar call.

The effect this has all had on the voters or potential voters will not be known until election day. But it seems a safe bet that all this apathy in the campaign will certainly cause apathy at the polls. A small turnout can turn the tide of election.

But in which direction it will turn is not that certain. All three candidates say they are counting on a large vote and that it will help them. That obviously cannot be true. Someone has to suffer.

Most likely to be helped by the small vote is Howell, whose faithful always turn out. Another aspect of the race that could be helped by Democratic apathy is the entrance of the Conservative or the Republicans or both in the race. Surely they aren't supposed to be in there voting, but they will be in many, many cases.

Many Republicans say they will come in to vote for Howell, because he's the man they think Holton can beat the easiest.

Many conservatives, fearful that Battle is too moderate say they will come in to vote for Pollard, a man they do not consider as liberal.

All three are still claiming victory is in sight, claiming support from different places. This should mean a close race for the top spot on the ticket, and if that is so, the cause of democracy will be served and the people once again will have spoken.

It will also mean a runoff in August between the two top contenders and a repeat of the same type of campaigning we have seen for a full year so far.

Most likely a candidate for Lt. Governor will be chosen without a runoff between Reynolds and Thompson. But the four-way race for Attorney General is again a different matter. Loyalties are split all over the state among all four. There is not a real front-runner among them, and only the voters know for sure what will happen there. A runoff is expected in that race too.

For the voter who has been waiting patiently or impatiently for the best man to stand up and identify himself in all the races, time is running out. He has no clear-cut choice. They're all good guys.

This Love Affair Is Lasting...

By Joseph Lowenthal Jr.

"I don't expect every year to be as good," said Virginia Beach City Manager Roger M. Scott, reflecting upon his first full year in office.

Scott became the consolidated city of Virginia Beach's second City Manager last July 1 and was the youngest man nationally to hold such a position in a city of comparable size.

He called his first year "trying, but rewarding."

One of the major problems Scott faces in his second year is a Councilmatic election, which takes place next June. He is aware it can put a strain on everyone in municipal government.

"I have to have two loyalties," he said, "I have to work for the citizens and for my employers, the City Council in office at any given time."

Scott doesn't consider that this keeps him walking a tight-rope all the time, but next year's Councilmatic election is expected to be a hotly contested one, to say the least. Already campaign slates are lining up, and a record number of candidates are expected to file.

Another matter that will come to a conclusion in the next year of Scott's management will be the permanent water contract with Norfolk and possibly a permanent garbage contract also. Scott says negotiations are going smoothly and that he is optimistic.

"We're over the first hurdle now," he added.

Money will be a continuing problem, he said, as the need for more and more services comes about in a tight money market.

"We will just have to continue to find relief where we can for our problems and meet all the needs we can," said Scott.

He added that taxes must inevitably rise, but that all that can be hoped for is to keep the increases as small as possible over the years. While Scott would not comment on the matter, another bond issue for schools and public improvement is expected in November, 1969. Scott would only say that such an issue was doubtful in the past year.

Scott said he sees very little in the immediate future that can help Virginia Beach broaden its tax base, but that light industry and resort industry growth will certainly be helpful to him in planning for the future.

He said Norfolk's hope to levy a payroll tax on all persons working there would benefit Virginia Beach, although he does not necessarily favor the tax. Under current proposals, half of the tax on salaries of those living in Virginia Beach but working in Norfolk would be returned to Virginia Beach.

Looking back over the first year, Scott said the thing he was most proud of was the passage of the code of ethics he recommended for city employees.

"Even those who didn't support it have since told me they are pleased with it now," he said.

Several significant events took place during Scott's first year. A housing code was passed. It was decided that a new civic center would have to wait. The city acquired the Little Creek industrial park property. A community college site was picked. There was another record budget. The new city administration building was finished and opened. The surfing problems were again not solved. The planning commission was revamped... almost, but changed back to its original size and structure. The ad board size was cut. The City got tough on condemnation proceedings on land for the municipal complex. The water-garbage deal was agreed to. A study of fire departments is

Fund Drive Falls Short

Contributions to 12 volunteer fire departments in Virginia Beach reportedly are nearly $30,000 below expectations in the annual fund raising drive being conducted by the departments.

Thus far some $44,000 of the hoped for $74,000 has been obtained. This falls far below the anticipated return of $3.65 per contributor.

Chiefs of a number of the volunteer fire departments say they are now in the process of beginning a "call back campaign" in efforts to raise additional funds. This consists of recontacting those residents of the city who have indicated they had planned on making a contribution, and/or those who indicate a desire to contribute but indicated they had not been advised of the proper procedure to follow.

The 12 departments involved in the campaign do not include the volunteers operating as a part of the Beach Borough fire department, who are launching their own fund raising campaign next Monday.

He added that taxes must inevitably rise, but that all that can be hoped for is to keep the increases as small as possible over the years. While Scott would not comment on the matter, another bond issue for schools and public improvement is expected in November, 1969. Scott said he has had disappointments too. He said he regrets not being as far along with a capital improvements budget as he had hoped, and that he is also not as near as he had hoped to tightening the municipal ship and reorganizing city departments for more efficiency of operation.

In addition he has been looking for another assistant since January to handle the growing work load but has not been able to find one.

Scott wanted the City to buy Bow Creek Country Club. Council said no. Now he admits "they were right."

"I feel I have more to offer the city than I did the first year," said Scott.

He is still a dynamic man, full of energy. He loves his work. He quoted Oscar Wilde in expressing his feelings on the job... "The anxiety is unbearable. I hope it lasts forever."

Folksingers to Perform

John Quest with Rick Lane, folksingers, are teamed with the ExKursions, a Chicago blues group to provide a musical collage in concert at the Civic Center on July 12 at 8:30 p.m.

They bring together a "like-it-is" message with the best of Folk and Blues.

Mike Johnson, lead guitarist of the ExKursions, has played with Mike Bloomfield and Paul Butterfield. John Quest comes of the Liverpool sound; Rick Lane has played with the New Folk Singers.

Tickets are on sale for $2.60 at Willner's (Downtown and Pembroke Mall), Center Shops (21st Street in Norfolk and Wards Corner) and at the Dome box office.

DeHart Heads Association

The London Bridge Business Association met recently at Dante's Restaurant and elected new officers.

New officers are: Roy L. DeHart of DeHart Enterprises Inc., president; James Midgett of Sadler Materials Inc., vice president; and Lee Fentress of Be Lo Super Market, secretary-treasurer.

Directors of the organization are: William Gilbert of Aldridge and Chambers Inc., Damon Moore of London Bridge Motor Company, Joseph Murden and Paul Chrisman of State Farm Insurance Agency.

The Association is four years old and covers the area from Lynnhaven to Hilltop. The organization is directed toward the promotion of business activity in London Bridge and its surroundings.

Stitchery Exhibited

An exhibition of creative stitchery will be exhibited through July 13th at The Village Gallery in College Park.

The Gallery is in the College Park Information Center located at the intersection of Indian River Road and Providence Road.

Work is in progress at the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company building at 32nd Street and Arctic Avenue.

Telephone Office Expands

An addition is now under construction at the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company building at 32nd Street and Arctic Avenue, announces L.F. Patrick, manager of the Virginia Beach office.

The addition, which includes a second floor and a first floor expansion, will add 11,500 square feet to the facilities there. This is the second addition the building has undergone since it began operation in April, 1958. The building houses equipment used by the 425 and 428 exchanges, as well as offices.

Because of growth in the area the new addition is necessary for additional equipment to expand the services, both local and toll, for the 425 and 428 exchanges. Overall cost for the building addition and the new equipment will be $755,000.

The construction of the building, which is being done by E.T. Gresham Co., Inc., is expected to be finished by October. At that time the new equipment will be installed.

BADGES & BANTER

Latest reports of good catches among sport fishermen of the area includes one from James Loftin Jr., one of the Justices of the Peace serving the 3rd Police Precinct. Loftin reports he, D. T. Loper, Bill Hadley and James J. English, last week brought back 10 bluefish with several weighing just over 11 pounds. According to Loftin the group lost about 10 others of equal size during a trip into waters slightly northeast of the Chesapeake Light Tower.

Robert E. Lee, Chief of the Princess Anne Court House Volunteer Fire Department, says the unit has just received a new piece of fire fighting equipment. An additional truck has been obtained by the department, and men of the unit are now engaged in outfitting it to be used in fighting woods and brush fires in the region.

Lee says he hopes the new truck will be ready for service in about two or three weeks.

Wednesday night was a big one for members of the Princess Anne F.O.P. Lodge #8 when an "Hawaiian Luau" was staged in the new lodge home. We understand the evening included a dinner menu which included roast pig, baked fish, fried rice and succulent side dishes and featured live music for those who cared to "trip the light fantastic" plus a full evening of entertainment with a "true Hawaiian flavor."

Lee Forbes of the Virginia Beach Rescue Squad and Jim Hundley, of the Fire Prevention Bureau chalked up a "first for themselves the other day. They both responded to an emergency call from an expectant mother for transportation to Norfolk General Hospital. We understand everything was going fine until the ambulance reached a location near the intersection of Brambleton Avenue and Church Street. It was here the new arrival decided to be born. All reports indicate "Doc" Forbes handled the delivery in an exemplary fashion with the able assistance of Hundley. All four parties arrived at the hospital in fine condition.

Widening To Begin Aug. 1

Aug. 1 has been set as the date for work to begin on the widening of Shore Drive from the west gate of Fort Story to Atlantic Avenue which, when completed, will provide a four lane highway from Little Creek Road in Norfolk to Atlantic Avenue.

Highway Department officials indicated the apparent low bid of $932,443.81 on the 2.865 mile project was submitted by E. V. Williams Co., Inc. of Norfolk. Scheduled completion date for the new section of Shore Drive is Nov. 1, 1970.

During the past month work crews from Seashore State Park have been removing some of the timber which must be cleared to make room for the new highway addition. J. C. Killinger, park superintendent, said an area approximately two miles long and 65 feet wide has been cleared, and the timber will be used for additional gates and sign posts needed in the camping and nature areas of the park. Killinger indicated the remaining timber still on that region to be used in the roadway widening will be cleared by the contractor.

The ticket books each contain a dozen tickets. The tickets will give the child seven rides, a soft drink, hot dog, candy, balloon and permit viewing of the special grandstand show. Rose may be contacted at 224 Groveland Rd., Virginia Beach, Va. 23452 for the ticket books.

"Kid's Day" at the Fair will also feature midway rides at half price and no gate charge before 6 p.m.

Let Richmond hear the sounds of Virginia Beach for a change.

Richard Guy can make waves for you in the General Assembly.

Maybe you've gotten the impression that politicians in other parts of the state don't quite grasp what's going on in Virginia Beach. Possibly you have the feeling they don't realize the fantastic growth and demands of this unusual city - a city where more people are needing more services everyday, services that eat up our tax dollars at an ever increasing rate.

And these politicians from around the state have a lot of control over what happens to your tax money. Maybe they can only hear the sounds of Central Virginia or Southwestern Virginia or some other section. If you think it's our turn now for the breaks, Richard Guy has some fresh ideas to help Virginia Beach that he wants to play full volume to the General Assembly in Richmond.

Will you let

Lynne Keeps Feet on Ground-- for Now

By Yatta Jones

The coordinator for the Summer Teen Program is a young woman who looks like a teenager herself. She is Mrs. W.G. Young, Lynne.

Lynne moved to Virginia Beach two years ago when her husband, a Navy pilot, was stationed at Oceana. She wrote the city when she learned that she was coming to this area and applied for a position with the Recreation Department. There was an opening at that time and she was hired--her first full time job.

Most of Lynne's duties are concerned with the youth activities, although she is also in charge of the Adult Physical Fitness program sponsored by the Recreation Department.

Besides coordinating the Summer Teen Program Lynne is in charge of the teen centers which are active during the school year. She also coordinates Friday Game Night for grades four through seven during the school year. (This program is held at six elementary schools throughout the city.)

The Summer Teen Programs have been Lynne's from the beginning. It was first held last year and she was in charge of it then, too. She says that the program is even bigger this year than last. Registration is almost completed and the response has been excellent.

Sewing seems to be the most popular class offered (Lynne says this is true of adults as well as teenagers). In fact, several boys have even registered for sewing classes this year.

Another popular class is judo. Lynne says that 110 teenagers showed up for the classes last year--and they were mostly girls! "You can tell a girl's judo class," Lynne says, "because after they throw each other there is a pause, and then giggles."

A Puppet, Drama and Music workshop has been added to the program this year. The workshop, which is about half boys and half girls, will be run by the teenagers themselves.

Classes and activities sponsored by the Recreation Department are, more or less, set up on a demand basis. "If the public wants it," Lynne states, "we try to give it to them." She says that you never know how something is going to turn out: sometimes there is no response to a program that looked good at first and sometimes there is an overwhelming response.

Lynne gives this year's Easter Egg Hunt as an example of a surprising response. She helped out with the activity and says that they were expecting a few hundred children to turn out. There were 3,000 children at the egg hunt. Lynne laughs when she tells what happened that day in addition to the unexpectedly large number of participants. "We hid the eggs and then the police department gave a dog demonstration. One of the policemen asked for a volunteer and as the child stepped forward the rest of the children thought the hunt had begun. They moved out over us, the police and the dogs and went through the place like a vacuum cleaner. Whoosh, no eggs."

"This is a good job for people who don't like a set routine," Lynne comments. "Many times everything has to be rearranged and then instant panic sets in... Sometimes I wonder how any of it comes out... getting the right people at the right place at the right time, but it always works."

She feels that it is an excellent job, particularly because of the freedom she has. "If I've got an idea I can go ahead and plan it," Lynne takes her work seriously. Just a few minutes of conversation with her shows how much thought goes into the problems she encounters. Right now she is making plans for the teen centers next year (she would like to have a room in each place the centers are located just for the teenagers) and she has a dream about swimming pools at each school. "You need a swimming pool or lake, something without waves, to teach children to swim," she says.

The kind of job Lynne has is not one that can be left at the office. Many times she attends the activities at nights just to let those involved in the program know she is interested. It's important to her.

Lynne has been going to school at ODC at nights, too, working on a master's degree in physical education. This has meant that she has had to spend a great deal of time in the libraries on weekends. Right now she is not going to school and it is just as well. This week, for example, she has activities to attend at least five nights.

What does a recreation supervisor do for recreation? The natural answer would seem to be nothing, but not Lynne. She enjoys sports and participates in them as much as possible. "I'm a sports nut," she says. "I play softball in the summer, in the fall I play field hockey and in the winter I play basketball... I guess my mother is right, she says I never grow up, I'm a tomboy at heart."

She attributes this interest in sports to part of the reason she works where she does. She received a degree in recreation from the University of Michigan, but she started her college career majoring in physical education. She says she would like to finish her master's, get her doctorate and possibly teach in a college or university. "But the more I get involved here," she states, "the harder it will be to change."

Whatever Lynne does she will do it wholeheartedly... and she will keep busy. It seems to be a part of her makeup. If the rest of the interview with Lynne didn't prove this her parting words did: "The next time my husband is gone I'm going to take flying lessons."

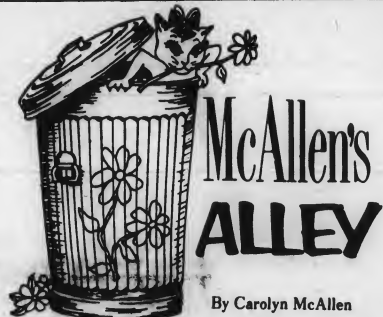

Mrs. Bernard F. White, regent of the Princess Anne Country Chapter DAR, left, admires the plaque placed on the historic home of Mr. and Mrs. Maury Riganto, right, Saturday by the DAR chapter. In the center is Mrs. John V. Buffington, state regent. William B. Copeland, president of the Virginia Beach Historical Society, was guest speaker.

'Let's Go Back'

The back of my neck is blistered, a victim of a circus matinee..

For the uninitiated, the Hamid-Morton Shrine Circus performed last week in the Princess Anne High School stadium. The stadium, I'm sure, would have been great at night, but it was rather warm at mid-afternoon.

Knowing that the kids, my three and an extra, would be thirsty (and knowing the price of drinks for four), I filled a jar with koolaid and ice. I also took along a bag of cookies. The five-year-old suggested potato chips, but I knew that would just make them thirstier.

It was a great idea but, just after we got out of the car, I felt something running down my legs. It was strawberry koolaid. The top would not screw on the jar tightly. Thank goodness the cookies were in plastic. By that time the bottom of the paper bag it was in was beginning to tear. So I simply held it at arm's length in front of me and let it drip off my elbow. When we caught up with the crowd, though, I had to hold the soggy bag against me to keep it from getting bumped.

"I want to sit on the top row," stated the six-year-old in no uncertain terms.

"Let's go in here," I suggested at a middle row.

"I want to sit in front," said the eight-year-old.

"We're going to sit here," I said.

The koolaid, half of which had run down my arms and legs, lasted through two rounds of kids. The cookies were gone before the circus began.

"I'm hungry," said the eight-year-old.

"Me too," chorused the two six-year-olds.

The five-year-old just sat there watching the elephants.

"I'm thirsty," announced the eight-year-old, followed by the six-year-olds.

"Too bad, we'll get something when we leave." About that time the little boy behind me dumped a cup of ice down my back. Frankly, it felt good. But I would have preferred the chance to suck it rather than mop it up.

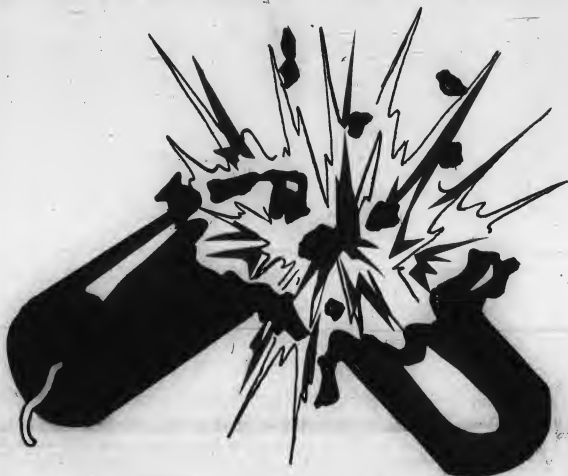

"I want to go home. When will this be over?" asked my six-year-old.

"What do you mean? It hasn't even started yet!"

The five-year-old sat entranced through the whole show. The eight-year-old and the visiting six-year-old, aside from occasional comments about thirst, seemed to enjoy the whole thing and even made some comments of "Look at that, etc." My six-year-old, when she wasn't wanting to go home or to the bathroom, sat glumly staring straight ahead.

Then, just as the crowd began to leave, the ringmaster announced that there would be another performance at 8:30. "Can we come back?" inquired the six-year-old. "I want to see it again."

We all exited to the nearest 7-11 store for Slurpees.

Linda Comments on Miss Va.

"The new Miss Virginia seems to be a composed, reserved person," is Linda Phillips' opinion of the new state beauty.

Linda, Miss Virginia Beach, has just returned from the festivities surrounding the "Miss Virginia Pageant" which was held in Roanoke last week. Linda was there from June 23 until June 30 for the annual contest. It was quite an active week, according to Linda. "We had a very busy time, with something scheduled almost every hour."

Even so Linda says that the best part about the festivities was meeting the other girls. "The group this year was very close-knit," she says, "and we had a lot of fun at the rehearsals." Linda says she made a lot of new friends; one girl is coming from Winchester to visit her soon as a result.

"The talent was very competitive...they were all so good you felt like crying," is Linda's judgment of that portion of the contest. Linda was most concerned about that part of the

Tennis Spotlighted

The week of July 7 through the 14 has been proclaimed "National Play Tennis Week" by Mayor Frank A. Dusch.

Several activities have been planned to promote the week. During this time the Virginia Beach Tennis Patrons Association will sponsor a booth at the Pembroke Mall. Members of the Association will distribute free tennis literature and bumper stickers. On display at the booth will be various trophies and cups.

Virginia Beach Tennis Patrons Association is also sponsoring a Brunch and Tennis Fashion Show at the Cape Beach Club on July 10. Tickets for the event will be $2.25 and may be purchased from Betty Ann Stroud at 428-6960 or they may be purchased from local tennis Pro shops.

On July 9 two Round Robin matches have been planned: one at Bay Harbor at 5 p.m. and the other, mixed doubles, at First Colonial High School at 8 p.m.

In keeping with the week the Virginia Beach Recreation Department is sponsoring nightly clinics at Princess Anne High School to teach tennis.

July 12 and 13 Princess Anne Country Club will host a Women's Doubles Invitational Tournament.

Barbecue and Lose Weight

The weight-watcher's world literally bulges with special diets. Confronted by diets for drinkers, low-gram menus to limit carbohydrate intake, the omniscient calorie counter, and even a horoscope for dieters, it is logical for the weight-watcher to become confused and erroneously rule out some of the genuine eating pleasures in life.

Barbecuing is one. When the suggestion is made for a patio barbecue party visions of Roman-style gorging on rich and fattening food and drink swim through the dieter's thoughts threatening to devour his meager progress toward slenderness. He becomes defensive and instead of gaining sympathy, his attitude labels him among society's "party poopers". It is all for naught!

The true fact is that barbecued foods can be better suited to the weight-watcher's menu than those cooked by other means. One of the prime reasons is that foods cooked in a covered barbecue kettle simmer to perfection in their own juices, often reducing total calorie content rather than adding to it. This opens up opportunities for small supplements which enhance the flavor of the meal and bring greater joy to the otherwise confused and dreary world of the weight-watcher.

"Pitch in and plan the party" is the advice of the people at Weber Products Company, makers of the original Weber covered barbecue kettle, to those who are conscientiously trimming weight. That's one way of being certain that the foods served aren't pound adders.

Planning the main dish is the most significant contribution a dieter can make to his own weight welfare when a barbecue party is proposed. He can safely avoid some of the side dishes, but it is difficult to skip the central item on the menu.

Meat, fish and fowl may all be devoid of carbohydrates, but they do have calories and limits must be set on how much the dieter will consume. Still, the main dish need not be a tasteless and dried-out hunk. It can be juicy and flavored with tantalizing sauces without cause for caloric alarm.

Lamb, for example, is famous for its low calorie content. Selected lean lamb chops delicately broiled in a covered barbecue kettle and glazed with mint sauce promise compliments to the chef and do favor to the weight-watcher as well. Here's the recipe:

MINT GLAZED LAMB CHOPS

- 1 jar mint jelly (10-oz.)
- 1 tsp. butter
- 1 c. white wine
- 1/2 tsp. dry mustard
- 1/2 tsp. garlic powder
- 1/2 tsp. black pepper
- 1/2 tsp. onion salt

Mix ingredients and stir over moderate heat until jelly is melted. Select lean lamb chops at least an inch thick. When charcoal briquettes have grayed all over, spread them evenly and place the chops on the grill. Cook them for five minutes per side, basting frequently with glaze sauce. Brush on additional sauce when serving.

The remaining sauce can be poured over the chops when served, but the dieter had better stay with that brushed on during broiling. That way he can keep his calories under 200 per chop.

If the occasion demands something more formidable as a central dish for the barbecue a sirloin tip roast is ideal for the weight-conscious eater. The cut is generally quite lean and when roasted slowly in a covered barbecue kettle a four-ounce serving will have about 240 calories. A few more calories are added by marinating the meat prior to cooking, but it's a small price to pay for the rich taste marinating gives the sirloin roast. Try it.

MARINATED SIRLOIN TIP

- 1 c. soy sauce
- 3 tbs. Worcestershire sauce
- 1/2 c. brown sugar
- 1/2 c. dry, red wine
- 1/2 c. pineapple juice
- 2 tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. garlic powder

Chose a four to five pound sirloin tip roast. Mix above ingredients and bring to a boil over moderate heat to dissolve the brown sugar and blend the ingredients. Allow it to cool. Place roast in deep dish and pour marinade over it. Marinate for 24 hours turning the meat periodically.

When ready to cook, prepare charcoal briquettes for indirect broiling with an aluminum foil drip pan in the center to catch the drippings. Center the roast above the pan and cook for 15 minutes per pound for medium. Baste frequently with the marinade.

Chicken breasts make a delightful main course for a barbecue party and also for the dieter member of the group. He should remember, however, that he adds about 60 calories to the 200 a four-ounce portion holds if he eats the skin.

A variation on the beef marinade adds a succulent touch to chicken breasts smoke-cooked in a covered barbecue kettle. Here's that variation:

MARINATED CHICKEN BREASTS

- 1/4 c. soy sauce
- 1/2 c. brown sugar
- 1 c. dry, white wine
- 2 tsp. curry powder
- 1 tsp. Tabasco sauce

Mix the ingredients and bring to a boil, then allow to cool. Marinate the chicken breasts for at least two hours before placing on grill with meaty side up. Cover and broil for about 40 minutes until golden brown and well done. Baste frequently with the marinade.

Pork is a great meat for barbecuing in a covered kettle. Its rich fat creates a pungent smoke to bring out the splendid flavor of outdoor cooking. But for the dieter it is one meat he must be especially cautious about when introducing it into his menu.

Whole pork tenderloin is the least dangerous to his program of weight reduction. A four-ounce portion is well under 300 calories whereas other cuts of pork can go well above the number. Whole pork tenderloin should be cooked over indirect heat with a drip pan in the center. Allow 20 minutes per pound for well done. Brush on soy sauce periodically during the roasting period. It adds almost no calories but brings to the meat a robust, almost nut-like flavor.

Some attention should also be given to what is served with the main dish if the dieter is sincere in his weight-watching program. A fresh green salad can accompany any of the dishes suggested, provided the dressing is kept at a minimum. French dressing has the least calories (62 per tablespoon) of all varieties. And, of course, fresh cooked vegetables are in order. Brussels sprouts, carrots and cauliflower and side dishes of this type are all reasonably low in calories, provided they are not prepared in a butter sauce.

Properly oriented by the dieter, himself, a patio barbecue party can be as much fun for the weight-watcher as it is for those who can happily munch anything without gaining a pound. And, most important of all, flavor isn't the only reward.

Washup Refreshes

After a long day on a summer job, soap and water can revive almost any hardworking teenager for a fun evening.

Ten minutes spent stretched out in the tub or hopping under a shower refreshes you for a movie, date, or meeting your friends—and gets you set for the next day too. Use slightly warm water to dilute your blood vessels and allow heat to leave your skin.

Washing with a deodorant soap can help control skin bacteria too. Keep up your grooming all summer long. Remember that soap and water can take you a long way toward a happy and profitable summer.

Son Born

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Jacobs of Norfolk announce the birth of their third child, second son, Christopher Isaac Jacobs, on June 25 at DePaul Hospital. He is the grandson of Mrs. I. W. Jacobs and the late Mr. Jacobs of 24th Street.

Cortez found a thriving cotton trade in Montezuma's Mexico.

Kitchens Should Have Pictures

The ideal delights in whipping up summer delicacies to satisfy warm weather appetites will find summer cookery can be doubly pleasant when the kitchen decor is to her liking.

Although today's homemaker spends considerably less time in the kitchen than her grandmother did, the kitchen remains the major home work area for most women. The Picture and Frame Institute points out. Making this center of domestic activity decoratively appealing can spell out the difference between the kitchen doldrums and stove-side happiness for most women.

Wise placement of framed artwork on kitchen walls can turn the trick both decoratively and psychologically, the Institute says. Pleasant arrangements of framed art that are easily viewed can help make light work of the heaviest kitchen chores.

And many of today's framed pictures are right at home in the kitchen. Still life pictures of apples, cut cheese and half-empty wine bottles add a country air to even the most cluttered kitchen. Prints of colorful masterpieces, when framed and protected by glass from kitchen splatters, make a bright addition to the room's decor.

In hanging artwork in the kitchen as in any other room, be careful not to place pictures where they are likely to be knocked down by family traffic.

The kitchen is truly the homemaker's own room and it should contain her favorite pictures and pictures of her favorite things.

The struggles of the Latin American peoples to achieve independence from Spain deeply stirred the citizens of the United States. In 1821 Jefferson wrote to Adams that "...the flames kindled on the 4th of July 1776 have spread over too much of the globe to be extinguished by the feeble engines of despotism. On the contrary, they will consume these engines, and all who work them."

Dr. Kleeman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Souza of Scarsdale, N.Y.

The candlelight ceremony took place June 16 in the Union Congregational Chapel in Walpole, Mass with the Rev. Fred Goodsell officiating.

Childproof Packages Are Not

It's child's play for the average child to open most containers of medicine and to swallow a potentially dangerous dose.

This has been established by a team of pediatricians who, searching for child-proof packaging, brought together several hundred children and different types of packages containing attractive candy pellets or mock aspirins.

Confronted with a screw cap bottle, the children, ranging in age from 18 months to four years, needed less than 10 minutes to seize and swallow 10 capsules. The popular snap-type "safety caps" proved almost as accessible. Very young children were defeated by medicine packed in strips but most four-year-olds attained their goal in a few minutes.

Most child-proof of the packaging proved to be the blister pack, in which tablets mounted on a card are individually covered with hard, bubble-shaped transparent plastic, and palm-and-turn (pressure release) caps. These provide virtual inaccessibility to children of the poison-prone age.

Invention of the row-crop tractor in 1925 opened the way to new efficiency in cotton production.

HERE COMES OLGA!

With the appearance of Guy Lombardo and his worldfamous orchestra, at The White Sands Country Club on Wednesday evening, nostalgic memories prevailed for many---both young and old.

We had the privilege of meeting Mr. Lombardo and his manager, Larry Owen, who has been with the band since 1926, hailing originally from Cleveland, Ohio. Edward Garcia and his able staff of White Sands were extremely hospitable to us of the press group.

Cocktails and an elaborate buffet dinner preceded the dancing. Roast beef, fried chicken, gorgeous cold cuts and cheeses, Swedish meatballs, chef's salad, and fruited jello comprised the bountiful fare. The supper club was entirely candle-lighted with the glow glistening from the crystal chandeliers. Many well-known personages danced and listened to the ever-popular tunes.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Kellam had a center ringside table along with Mr. and Mrs. William Kellam, Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Holland, Odie Kellam had on a stunning beige silk linen dress with the bodice encrusted with rhinestones. Mr. and Mrs. John Aragona, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Sanchillo, Mrs. John Aragona, Jr., and Mrs. Brigita DeMille were ringsiders too. Mrs. William Foley accompanied by her husband and Marian Jacobs was gowned in a hot pink chiffon entirely pleated was sporting a terrific suntan...most becoming too.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lehner had their two children as guests, Jack Jr. and Judy Loudenbach, Jack Sr.'s sister Louise and her escort, Randall Kelch. Jack Jr. had just returned from Vietnam; one of this area's better golfers, I might add.

Other persons spotted were: Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lownthal, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. D.J. McNerney, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Klotzner, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Johnson of Portsmouth, Mr. and Mrs. B. Mayo Smith, Jr. of Portsmouth, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Verner, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Buffington, Mr. and Mrs. Carmine, Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw Pulley, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Schoenfeld, Herbert Cashvan, Robert Dorsk, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Moonves, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cross, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lane, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Kane and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brogan.

Of all things to happen on such a wonderful evening, the air conditioning broke down. Like everything else that goes wrong, it always happens at the most inopportune moments. Nevertheless the people who came to hear Guy Lombardo did not let this stop them from having a good time nor did it stop Guy from playing.

Well I certainly hope that everything will be better for the club when the Ink Spots are here from July 1 through the 13th.

It was a farewell party Saturday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gay Milius Jr., Cmdr., USN ret., in Alantone, but anyone would have thought it was a legal convention. The party was in honor of Capt. Max Davis Wiviott, JAGC, USN who will leave next week for New Hampshire where he will become director of the Governor's Commission on Crime Control and Juvenile Delinquency.

Co-hosts for the party were Capt. (Ret.) and Mrs. Jarrett Abercrombie and Cmdr. and Mrs. Milton Thorpe. Capt. Wiviott retired after serving his second tour duty in the Tidewater area.

The informal evening included cocktails, a buffet dinner and a lot of reminiscing.

Among the guests were Cmdr. and Mrs. L.E. Evans, Capt. and Mrs. D.J. Pepple, Capt. and Mrs. J.F. Chapman, Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. B.J. Legg, Capt. and Mrs. J. N. Martin, Judge and Mrs. Linwood Tabb, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Fine, Capt. and Mrs. Fred S. Albrink, Capt. and Mrs. B.R. Manser and Capt. and Mrs. Thomas Blade.

How to Ruin a Friendship

The sit-in, shoo-out, hang-up and put-down are just four of the common ways in which wonderfully warm friendships are ruined—sometimes turning in-laws into outlaws, and taking the “it” out of friend.

Though a really good friend is hard to find, losing one is often far too easy. Nobody wants to change from a pal to a pill and a recent psychologist's report affirms that rejection... with some sage suggestions on how to avoid them.

Bad News Bernie. Bernie is a wonderful friend as long as you're having a tough time. If your mother-in-law moves in or your wife moves out, Bernie is always the first to know and to call—full of sympathy. But when you get that big promotion or your first son weighs in at a lusty 9 pounds, Bernie is strangely absent... and stays that way till fate deals you another blow.

Don't be a Bad News Bernie. Your friends need you around to celebrate as much as to commiserate. So when good news comes their way, be the first to call or write. Even better—send flowers. And it's surprising how pleased folks are to be remembered this way—when things are going well!

The “We'll Be There” Wilkins. Almost everyone has friends like the Wilkins—for a while, anyhow. They're always the life of every party and they never miss one. If you decide to ask a few neighbors in for drinks, the Wilkins turn up as a surprise. And when you rent that little cottage by the lake, they just happen to be driving by—for the weekend. Obviously, the Wilkins are so busy with their gregarious gadding, they never have time to entertain you. And, since they're never at home, you can't just drop in on them.

Needless to say, the Wilkins have ruined a number of warm friendships—as you will, too, if you lack common consideration and fail to reciprocate with your own invitations. Even when friends say: “Drop in any time!” its tacitful to call before you do. And after an overnight visit, it's a must to send a thank-you note, a bread-and-butter gift or a thoughtful bouquet of flowers with your own individualized message.

Good Time Gilda. You may have at least one Good Time Gilda on your list of friends... temporarily. The opposite number to Bad News Bernie, she's just as obnoxious in her way. Gilda is one of those blithe spirits who gravitates toward fun and runs from trouble. Whether you lose your job, your boyfriend or your apartment, Gilda is the first to know—and go. She won't be around till you've fully recovered and by that time—who needs her?

Many people instinctively shun misfortune as though it were contagious. But this type of behavior is guaranteed to turn the trust in any relationship straight into dust. Do be a friend in need, offer positive help as well as sympathy and you'll be pretty sure to have a friend around when you need one.

“You-Poor-Thing” Pattie. Pattie is a remarkably sympathetic friend. In fact, she fairly overflows with sympathy but, unfortunately, that's all she has to offer and as she continues with condolences on your latest haircut, most expensive dress, brand new draperies, your husband's business affiliations, and your children's behavior you start by feeling awfully sorry for yourself then decide you may be allergic to Pattie.

Expressing the right amount of sympathy at the right time is certainly in order. But don't overdo it. Belittling a companion is one sure way to rub the “it” right out of friendship.

How-To-Do-It Harry. Harry's the kind of friend who loves to give advice, solicited or not.

Whenever you have to make a decision, Harry makes it for you. And, if you fail to follow his suggestions, regardless of the outcome, he is certain to say “I told you so”. Harry is also an amazing second-guesser, given to such endearing expressions as “How could you have—?” “What, you mean you've never heard of—?” and “I'm surprised you didn't—”.

Of all the ways to ruin a warm friendship, offering unwanted advice or criticism is probably the most potent. Even when friends ask for your advice, they usually prefer to make their own decisions and want to be respected for it.

There are a number of others on the list—some of whom may be among your own acquaintances: Catastrophe Cate who goes from one ghastly crisis to another and insists on phoning you about each, usually at 3 a.m.; the Two-Faced Tatums who ooze with compliments and chumminess in your presence, but run you down mercilessly behind your back; the Borrowing Barclays who are always in debt and find it's easier and cheaper to borrow from you than a bank; Name-Dropping Ned who knows everybody you don't and loves to rub it in; Boring Benjie who only stops talking about himself long enough to repeat the same old jokes which weren't even good the first time and awkward Annie who inevitably manages to break up the furniture, burn a hole in the rug or smash your best china whenever she's a guest.

The fictitious characters described above are obvious exaggerations. Few real persons are so consistently poisonous yet, according to psychologists, everyone commits some of these unfriendly acts occasionally—even to their nearest and dearest. However, with a little effort and self-examination you can eliminate most of them and thus manage to keep on good terms with those friends you most want to keep.

Fix Fun Foods for Kids

Vacation time and accelerated physical activity go hand-in-hand, especially for the younger set, with increased demands on their energy, youngsters need a high protein, low fat diet, even though they choose to eat many of their meals on the run.

Home economists of The West Bend Company, leading cookware manufacturer, suggest that you stick with family-tested, favorite recipes during the warm weather. Served reasonably often, the old standbys can be varied in an infinite number of ways to constitute a wise, nutritious meal choice.

For example, you can alter the flavor of main dishes with seasonings, without changing the basic recipe.

Or you can combine mainstays with other foods in different ways. Ham casserole

It is uncertain that the origin of the word “muffin” is “moufflet,” which is Old French for soft (bread).

However, it is very much a sure thing that the cup-shaped, quick, light bread we have all come to love and enjoy is always a treat when served warm and fragrant, with any meal any time. Here is a recipe from the Bordo date kitchens for date bran muffins that your whole family will welcome.

Sift 3/4 cup sifted flour, 1 tablespoon baking powder, and 1/2 teaspoon salt together. Add 1 cup bran and 1 8-ounce package of Bordo imported diced dates. Beat 1 egg. Add

Turn Your Back on Fashions

Backs are back, and the styles that enhance them are barely visible. Cool summer creations photographed in vigorous Venezuela point up a new “back-lash” in fashion... and passion.

In Spanish, the words “salud, dinero y amor!” are a popular toast meaning “health, money and love.” Today's styles promise all three. Healthy comfort stems from cool creations and that's what these summer fashions offer.

Money? You can save many a peso by choosing fashions that are long on service life and short on price. Love to look lovely? The latest styles remind one of a famous architect's observation: less is more. Now there's new evidence to back up this theory.

One glamorous dress features a fabric in the shape of an “X” across the almost completely bare back. In a linen-like fabric made of Avisco rayon by Benson & Partners, it can be worn from morning till dawn and keeps its cool, crush-resistant look.

The bare facts also embody a tunic that's hardly there. The lower back of this creation by Claret is just a network of lacing which plunges over wide legged pants. The fabric is canvas in a blend of Avril rayon and cotton that keeps its crispness and allure even after continued wear.

How did rayon originate? Researchers for the corporation shed some rays on the subject.

Rayon, among the most popular fibers today, was invented in 1888 by the Frenchman Count Hilaire de Chardonnet, and was first manufactured in the United States in 1910 by the American Viscose Co. Since then its use has grown by leaps and bounds as it has gone through improvement after improvement.

American mill executives have capitalized on the many advantages of the new developments in rayon, and the hold of cotton and wool on the fabric market has gradually diminished.

The evolution of modern feminine dress, corresponding closely to the emancipation of women at the beginning of the

There's no backlash on the subject of bare backs. Fittingly, cool creations are putting the backbone back in fashion. Here's the evidence to back up this evidence!

20th century, provides a captivating page in history. The fashions of other eras and other nations are frequently projected onto the present-day American scene. And, fittingly, cool creations are now putting the backbone back in fashion.

Adults Take Drugs Too

Nearly half of all adults have tried a mood-changing drug.

One out of four adults is now taking such a drug. Tranquilizers are the most popular by far, followed by sedatives. Stimulants are least widely used.

Studies issued by “Public Health Reports” reveal that women far outnumber men in their use of mood-changing pills. In a 10-year period, the proportion of Americans taking tranquilizers grew enormously. In 1957, one out of every 14 adults had taken a tranquilizer. By 1967, the figure was one out of four.

Bitten Nails Grow Faster

Nature actually encourages nail biting!

A recent study reveals that the fingernails of nail biters grow 20 percent faster than the fingernails of non-nail biters, thus providing nail biters with constantly replenished temptation.

The child with long fingers is most tempted. Other studies show that the longer your fingers the speedier your nail growth and, like everything else, nail growth slows down as you get older.

If you don't bite your nails, it takes about six months for them to reach their full growth

Take Truth in Lending, for instance. Reputable banks here in town have been truthful about lending for years. And other types of lending institutions have been boasting about it for some time.

That's great. It's nice to know that everyone is abiding by the law of the land.

But unfortunately, Truth in Lending legislation won't ensure that you'll get sound advice about borrowing money. Any more than highway signs ensure that there'll be no speeding.

All Truth in Lending really does is make sure you know how much a loan is going to cost you. Details about payments you'll have to make. Things like that. But that's not enough.

People not only need this Truth in Lending. They also need good advice in borrowing.

They need straight talk.

Straight Talk like you get at First & Merchants. You see, we have this philosophy that says if a loan isn't good for a customer, it isn't good for us, either. And the only way we can make sure a loan is going to be good for you is talk to you, straight from the shoulder. At least that's the best way we've found so far.

Then we'll work out loan terms that'll be best for you. And maybe start you on a security-building savings program at the same time.

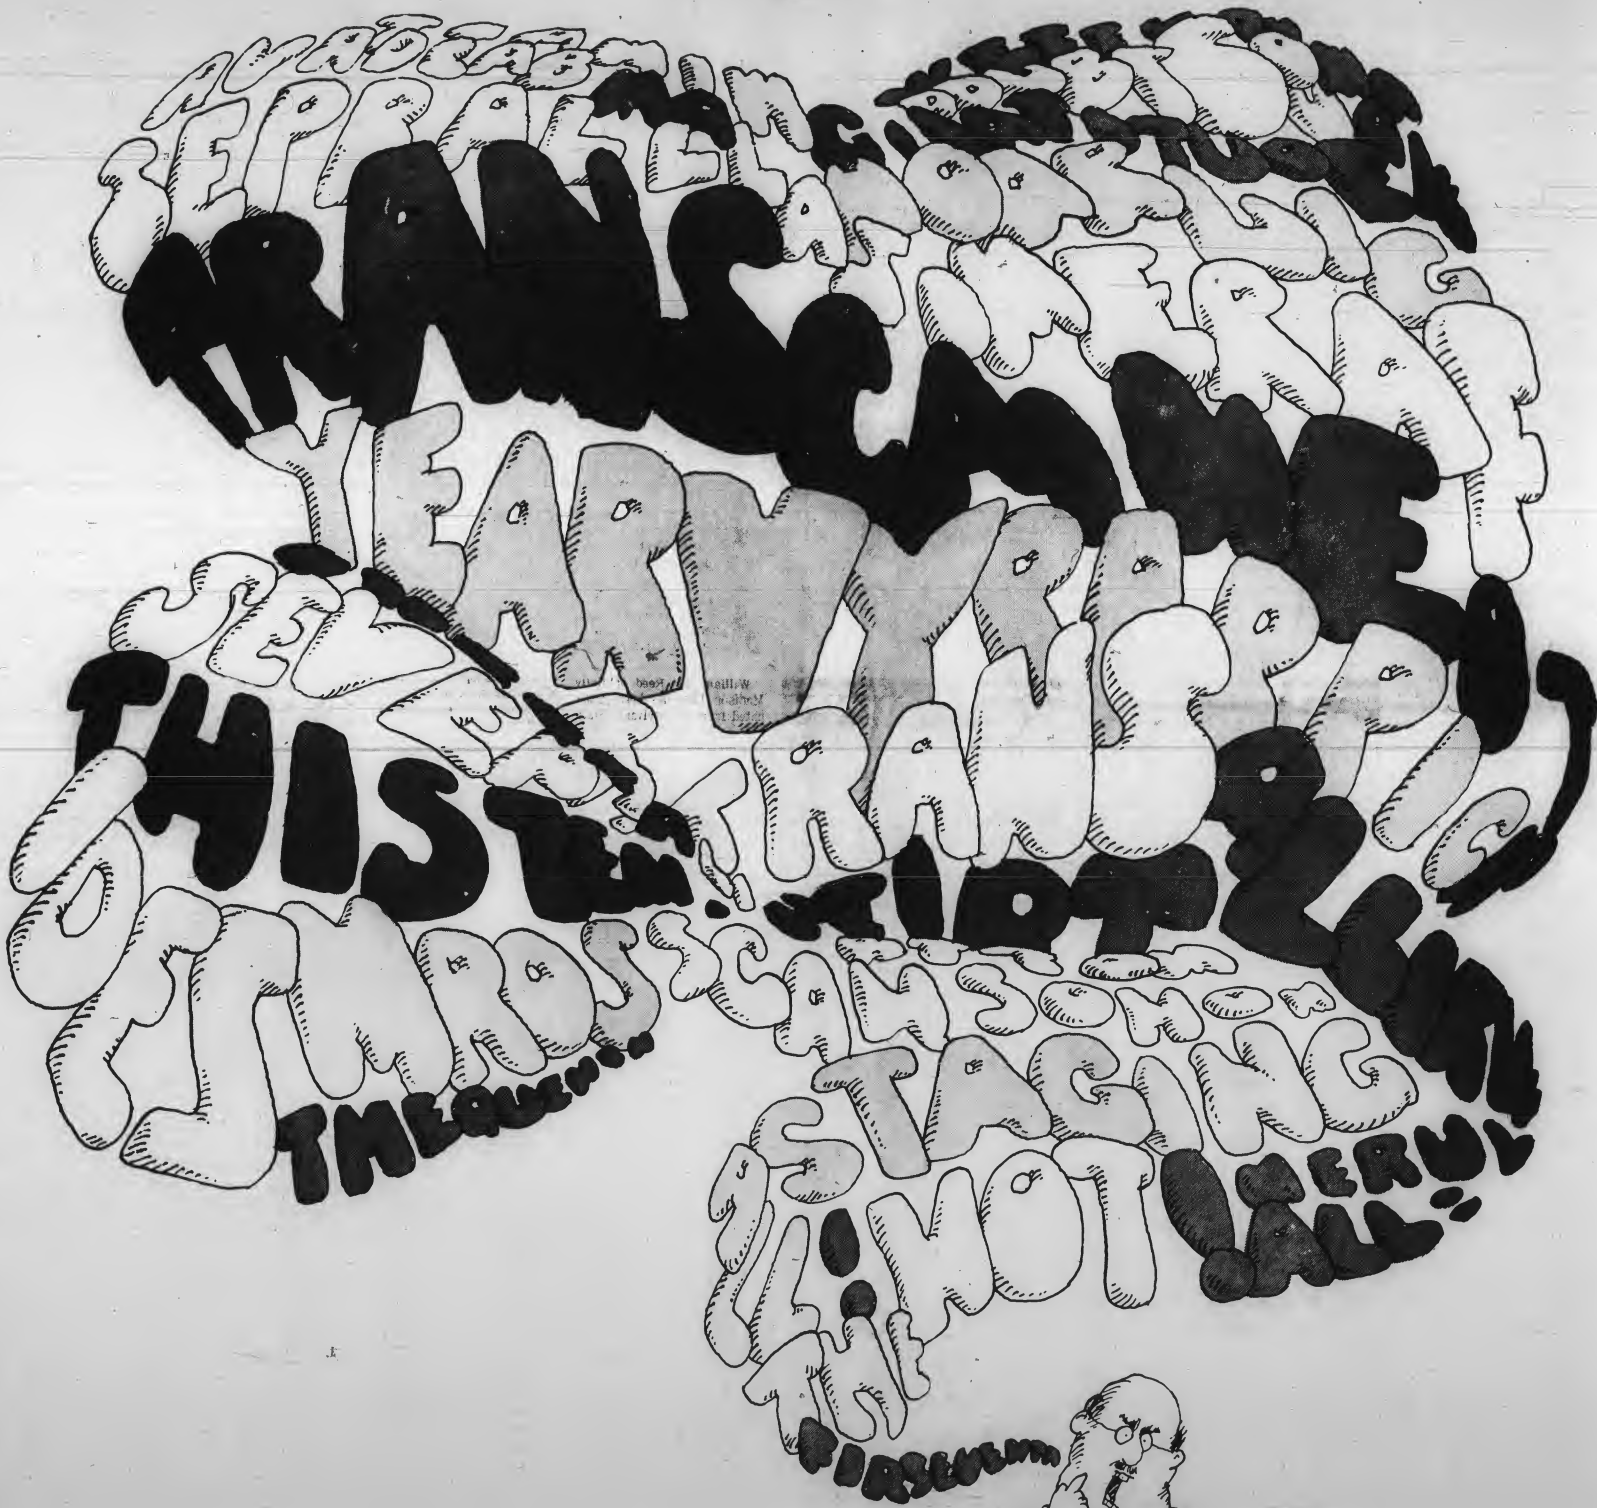

First chance you get, drop by and talk to one of the Straight Talk People at F&M. Tell him about yourself. And where you want to go financially. He'll work out the best way for you to get there. He might even come up with some suggestions you'd never have thought of.

But whatever we suggest, remember the Straight Talk People might give you some food for thought. But never any baloney.

'Clean Seas' Program Sought

R. W. Martenis, who will be moving to Virginia Beach next month, speaks to the group.

At a meeting of port and shipping authorities last week, Humble Oil & Refining Company representatives presented a program on the company's latest "Clean Seas" efforts.

According to one Humble official, the company has been working with other oil companies to eliminate oil slicks such as the one that recently harmed fish and beaches of the West Coast. The companies also panies owned and chartered vessels.

One of the prime methods used by the Humble fleet to prevent pollution of the sea is the "Load on Top" procedure. This procedure pre-work together to find the cause of such slicks.

Humble has prepared a manual to outline an alert system and guidelines for the handling of oil spills involving cargoes in Humble and affiliated companies. The manual also contains the discharge of dirty water overboard while reclaiming much of the oil previously lost when tanks were washed prior to receiving new cargo.

Through its research program Humble has developed Corexit 7664, an oil dispersant to remove oil slicks from the oceans. The material's usefulness is determined by those situations where mechanical or physical methods of oil slick removal are not applicable or practical.

Corexit 7664 was introduced commercially in the spring of 1968. It has been effective in dispersing oil slicks at sea during field tests and under actual emergency conditions. In addition, laboratory studies and examinations after application of the material at sea have shown Corexit 7664 to be essentially harmless to marine life, including planktonic species that inhabit the open sea and intertidal life forms.

Corexit 7664 was developed by Esso Research and Engineering Company, the principal research affiliate of Standard Oil Company (New Jersey). It is manufactured and marketed in the United States by Enjay Chemical Company and by a number of other Esso Chemical Company affiliates throughout the world. Esso Chemical is responsible for Jersey Standard's worldwide chemical interests.

Available throughout the United States, Canada, Europe, Latin America and the Far East, Corexit 7664 has been used in many ports by state, local and federal agencies and is carried on board many tankers sailing the world's oceans. It is carried on ships operated by affiliates of Standard Oil Company (New Jersey), the world's largest privately owned tanker fleet.

Corexit 7664 works by reducing the interfacial tension of oil and water. The application of mixing energy results in the creation of a dispersion of microscopic oil droplets, which is stabilized by a film of the dispersant around each oil droplet. Because they are so tiny and widely scattered, the droplets can be more readily used by the ter. The application of mixing energy results in the creation of a dispersion of microscopic oil droplets, which is stabilized by a film of the dispersant around each oil droplet. Because they are so tiny and widely scattered, the droplets can be more readily used by the oil oxidizing bacteria that live in the sea. These factors, plus the fully biodegradable nature of Corexit itself, lead to the final biodegradation and elimination of the dispersed oil. Experience continues to show that Corexit 7664 will disperse oil slicks formed by most types of crude and refined petroleum products, provided it is applied quickly and properly. Agitation is necessary to mix the dispersant and the oil slick. One of the most effective methods of application is by means of high pressure spray booms mounted on boats. The agitation from the wash of the boats is sufficient to effect dispersion when seas are calm. Corexit 7664 can also be applied effectively by spraying from aircraft provided there is sufficient agitation from boats or from wave action. Aircraft and boats can work in concert. Small spills in harbor areas can be dispersed with application of Corexit from high pressure fire hoses.

The performance of Corexit 7664 is affected by sea conditions and the viscosity of the oil being treated. For example, some heavier oils are a problem because they tend to become semi-solid at low water temperatures. In these cases, which occur in a relatively small percentage of oil spills, greater concentrations of Corexit 7664 and considerably more and prolonged agitation are required to accomplish dispersion.

Corexit 7664 is an effective and safe dispersant when it is applied properly and when those who use the material are familiar with its limitations. But it is only one tool in dealing with accidental oil spills at sea or in harbor areas.

There can be no substitute for preparedness in this light, Humble says. And recent events have shown that additional planning is needed to be prepared when accidental oil spills do occur. Experience has shown that there must be a master plan for meeting oil spill emergencies. Such a plan calls for manpower training in cleanup methods -- containment, physical removal and chemical dispersion. It calls for equipment of the right design and size. Above all, there should be clearly established responsibility for cleanup operations and a plan for coordinated effort by private and governmental groups who know how to apply with speed and efficacy the right methods to meet the emergency.

Hawley Takes Radio Post

Sherman C. Hawley, Jr., K4DCS, of Independence Blvd., has been selected to lead an organization of Virginia Beach amateur radio operators prepared to furnish organized emergency communications in time of disasters, it was announced recently by Communications Manager George Hart of the American Radio Relay League, U. S. and Canadian association of radio amateurs.

Hawley's assignment, which carries the title of Emergency Coordinator of the Amateur Radio Emergency Corps, is to band together members of the amateur radio service in his community to perfect arrangements for emergency radio communication by hams in the event of natural disasters or other emergencies. In addition to use of fixed radio station equipment working from commercial power, amateur stations use self-powered radio transmitting and receiving equipment as needed and can often deploy portable and mobile units to accommodate a particular emergency requirement.

Hawley as ARRL Emergency Coordinator, will call local meetings of amateurs, establish common operating procedures, and arrange regular drill periods when the ham's personal stations may be mobilized under simulated emergency conditions. His duties also include liaison planning with relief and public welfare agencies, as suggested in working understandings the ARRL Amateur Radio Emergency Corps has with the Red Cross, Civil Defense, and other agencies. Liaison will be established also with local protective services, such as fire and police departments.

In announcing the appointment, Hart pointed out that radio amateurs have traditionally had the responsibility of being in constant readiness to offer assistance in time of need with ham-acquired skill, emergency-powered transmitters and a wealth of community spirit. "When sleet storms disrupt telephone and telegraph service, or floods isolate whole communities," the League's Communications Manager said, "it is amateur radio that comes to the rescue with operators and self-powered equipment, often as the sole agency able to transmit messages calling on the outside world for aid for the stricken community."

"To be prepared for this function required not only a highly organized program of preparedness locally," Hart continued, "but hams outside the disaster area must be prepared to act as outlets and relay points for emergency traffic. Planning and organization are necessary in either eventuality and that is the job Hawley is doing for this area."

Fish-Kill Cause Sought

An investigation is underway into what was responsible for the killing of thousands of fish this past week in a lake in Pembroke Meadows.

Residents of the area off Independence Blvd. said the remains of the fish floated to the surface of the lake and resulted in a heavy stench around the homes.

Charles Kelly, Director Public Works General Services, said that by Tuesday all of the fish had been cleaned from the surface of the lake and surrounding shore lines, and that equipment was being moved in to clean other remains which had drifted to an island in the lake.

As to what may have caused the incident Kelly said, "I've discussed this with Dr. May and we're still looking into the cause and a prevention of the same thing happening again."

Thomas Joseph McClane of Fynn Road was one of 1,350 students awarded degrees at commencement exercises this month at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, New York. McClane was awarded the degree of Bachelor of Science in Civil Engineering.

Cmdr. Ifft Is Relieved

Capt. John Lavra relieved Cmdr. James D. Ifft as executive officer at Naval Air Station Oceana on July 1.

Cmdr. Ifft became the executive officer of the Oceana master jet base in Sept. 1965. On July 1, 1968, Cmdr. Ifft's name was transferred to the USN retired list, and he remained on active duty as the station's executive assistant. He officially retired July 1 this year and has now become a Virginia Beach resident, living in the Great Neck Point area.

The incoming executive officer, Capt. John Lavra, is a native of Michigan. He began his naval career in 1944 as an enlisted pilot (AP), changing from AP to cadet and was commissioned in 1947.

In 1961 he entered the TAR program and served at NAS Grosse Ile as VA training officer, flight training officer, and finally as training officer. He was transferred to NAS Olathe in 1965 and performed the duties of aircraft maintenance officer, training officer and operations officer.

Since 1968 he has served as training officer at NAS Twin Cities in Minneapolis. It was during this tour of duty that he was promoted to his present rank of captain.

Capt. Lavra flew 68 missions during the Korean Conflict and made 299 day and night carrier landings. His awards include three Air Medals; the Navy Commendation Medal with combat "V"; the Purple Heart; Navy Unit Commendation, Good Conduct and 11 campaign medals.

Show Band Is First To Perform

The Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation will sponsor "Concerts By The Sea" each Sunday evening, July and August, at the Norwegian Lady, 25th and Atlantic Avenue.

The Third Annual Concert Series will open with the performance of the famed Navy Show Band at 7:00 p.m., July 6.

Organized in 1962, the show band is considered tops among military entertainment groups. The Show Band is from the School of Music, Naval Amphibious Base, Little Creek, Va.

In addition to having appeared on national TV including the Mike Douglas Show, the show band has travelled some 100,000 miles through foreign countries, including Latin America. During the groups last tour of America's southern neighbor countries, the group entertained over 100 million people. The band is directed by Navy Chief Warrant Officer, Frank G. Fongione.

Roger Scott, City Manager of Virginia Beach, will officially open the Concert season and introduce the Navy Show Band. All concerts are free and open to the public.

Golf Classes Will Start

The Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation will sponsor golf lessons for adults at the White Sands Golf and Country Club.

First classes will be held on Tuesday, July 8, 10-11 a.m. and Wednesday July 9, 7-8 p.m. Registration will be taken at the Recreation office through July 3rd, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Children 13 years of age and above are welcome to join their parents for the lessons.

The registration fee is $5 for the six lessons. If there are any questions, call the Recreation Department at 497-4884.

Small Turnout Expected to Climax Campaign

Even the candidates for the Democratic nomination to the house of Delegates from Virginia Beach admit it's been a dull campaign, but regardless of that, it's all but over now. Primary day comes Tuesday, July 15.

It is also the day the voters in Virginia Beach let their choices for the Democratic nomination for Governor, Lt.

Governor and Attorney General be known.

In a third, far less publicized contest, nearly all seats on the city Democratic committee are being contested, and all are up

T. Caton III, all of whom were also elected as members of the 1967 United ticket.

Although Middleton and Adams announced separately, it soon became apparent they would run as a team.

Bruce Murphy and Richard Guy are running as independents, despite intense efforts to tie them to one another and to the Organization. Both maintain their independence and claim support from all factions of the Democratic party in Virginia Beach. While they have never formed a team, many of the same planks are in their respective platforms.

The campaign has been a tepid one. Aside from a few personality clashes between Middleton and Guy, there haven't even been any harsh words. Guy has hammered away at Middleton's being a Norfolk Businessman and at Middleton's lack lustre record in the General Assembly. Middleton has replied to each attack, mostly saying that Guy doesn't understand the record or his part (Middleton's) in the government of Virginia.

Murphy

Adams has stuck mostly with safe issues, including consumer protection, better boat safety laws, and the like. Guy has discussed drug abuse laws. Murphy wants pari-mutuel racing in Virginia Beach and says he'll fight for it. Adams and Middleton are not sure racing is such a panacea.

In four-way debates, the air has been extremely clear, in sharp contrast to political debates of the past in Virginia Beach. The candidates smile a lot and agree with each other a lot.

Middleton and Adams have tied themselves to the William Battle campaign for Governor. Murphy and Guy have maintained their independence there also, saying they could work with any one of the three chosen.

On the statewide level, all three gubernatorial hopefuls have visited Virginia Beach fairly often in recent months.

Lt. Gov. Fred Pollard brought his whole ticket, and both State Sen. Carrington Thompson and Del. Guy Farley, running for Lt. Governor and Attorney General respectively, have had their say here on several occasions.

Battle was the first to begin an active campaign in Virginia Beach. But he brought his relaxed style back here last weekend for another insurance visit.

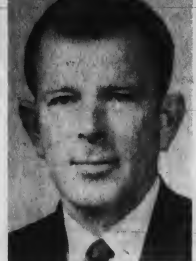

Henry Howell put in another appearance in Virginia Beach over the Fourth of July holiday also, by car and by boat. His boat, equipped with bullhorns, informed those on the beaches of his candidacy.

Howell's campaign headquarters opening was marked with accusations that Etheridge was involved in "hanky-panky" in real estate deals in which he allegedly searched the title for developers and was paid for his services while serving as Treasurer. Howell later accused Etheridge of involvement in illegal purchase of tax delinquent property. Etheridge denied and explained his way out of the charges.

State Sen. Sargeant Reynolds, running for Lt. Governor made one or two token appearances in Virginia Beach, notably speaking to the Virginia Beach Jaycees. "Hardtimes" Hunt and Moses Riddick, also running for Lt. Governor made no speeches or appearances here.

Andrew Miller came twice to Virginia Beach, bringing another relaxed manner in his campaign for Attorney General. He says he expects a runoff between himself and Farley.

C. F. "Flip" Hicks received little exposure in the resort city, although he did visit once in his bid for the same office. His campaign manager, Owen Pickett, said Hicks enjoyed much support here.

Only Bernard Levin of Norfolk barely included Virginia Beach in his Attorney General bid. He spent more time campaigning elsewhere.

More than 30,000 voters went to the polls in last November's general election. Only about 15,000 are expected Tuesday, and political buffs expect a close vote, with runoff primaries in August for the Democratic nomination for Governor and Attorney General.

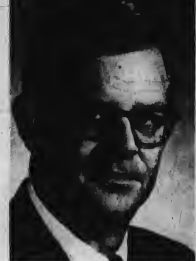

Some say a small turnout will favor Henry Howell. Others say a small turnout, if it is conservative will favor Pollard.

There are rumors that Virginia Beach Republicans will also vote in the Democratic Primary for Howell, because they feel he is the easiest Democrat to beat in November. The Republican nominee, Linwood Holton has already been on the campaign trail for several months, although his only test will come in the general election.

Adams

The GOP in Virginia does not have a primary. The Republican candidates were chosen in convention earlier this spring.

The GOP Lieutenant Governor is H. D. Dawber of Waynesboro. The Attorney General candidate is Richard Obershain of Richmond.

Now it is still the Democrats' day. And a long day it will be. The polls open at 6 a.m. and close at 7 p.m.

Everybody That's Who

Who is leading in the race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination? That's easy. Ask any of the three contenders—Pollard, Howell or Battle—and they'll all tell you. Each one says HE is leading.

But asked the GOP nominee, Linwood Holton. He has a different story to tell. He says, according to reliable sources, that Howell is leading, followed ever so closely by Pollard, and with Battle some ten per cent behind Pollard. He concedes too that there was still some 40 per cent of the electorate undecided.

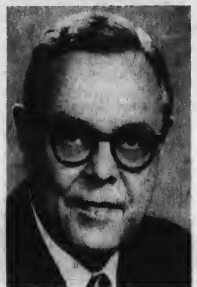

And where did Holton get this information? From a statewide, but unreported poll conducted by the Norfolk newspaper, the VIRGINIAN-PILOT, he says. Oddly enough the PILOT has not put the story in print after allegedly conducting the poll. The PILOT supports Battle for the nomination.

Now the ultimate poll comes next Tuesday.

for grabs. The basic fight there is between those in most boroughs aligned with the old Organization or those aligned with the new organization, billed as the United Candidates.

B. R. Middleton and Rhoe Adams, running as a team for the House of Delegates nomination, have also held tightly to the United Banner. Middleton was first elected two years ago on that ticket, and Adams was then campaign coordinator.

Middleton and Adams have campaigned as members of that ticket, with their greatest support coming from City Treas. V. A. "Jack" Etheridge, Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans and State Sen. Edward

Pollard

Council May Settle 2 'Sticky' Matters

Virginia Beach City Council may be able to dispose of two particularly controversial matters during its regular meeting Monday at City Hall.

The zoning problem at the entrance to Thoroughgood has plagued Council for many months, but would seem to be drawing closer to a peaceable solution.

And the proposed ordinance prohibiting parking of campers and large recreational equipment on streets, in driveways and in certain sideyards has apparently been watered down enough to be accepted by Council and owners of such equipment. That matter has hung on for well over a year.

The planning commission has presented a plan drawn by planning director Patrick Standing that is regarded as a compromise concerning the Thoroughgood entrance.

Several months ago residents of the area objected strongly to the development of a small service shopping center at the entrance to the highly restricted neighborhood. The developers had left the area as a green area for nearly 15 years, but the tract was zoned for such a center in 1954. The residents asked Council to change that zoning.

With the threat of a court fight always hanging in the balance, the planning commission, City Council, the residents, the developers, Standing and a number of attorneys from both sides set out to unscramble the thorny mess.

The Standing plan, which calls for the present entrance to be closed except for the shopping center, a new entrance for residents and rezoning to residential of a buffer zone, gives the developers additional land and takes a smaller amount for a new street. The residents, through their attorney, Louis Fine, say they will accept the plan, with reservation, including guarantee of a Colonial style center and a new brick entrance. The developers have not publicly endorsed the project, but there are strong indications that the plan will be accepted on final vote by both sides Monday.

The so-called camper ordinance has been watered down considerably, and again there appears to be accord in the matter. A committee that has been working on the ordinance for over a year said agreement has been reached.

The greatest objection to the proposed city statute came from residents of areas in subdivisions where lots are small. They said they could not park the equipment on the side of the house and still maintain side-yard zoning restrictions. While members of the committee said they disagreed, that restriction has been removed from the ordinance which will come before Council Monday.

The ordinance, if passed, will not meet the original intentions. There were objections from civic leagues and individual residents of a number of subdivisions, based on traffic control and aesthetic values.

The new law will, however, get the equipment out of driveways and off streets. But the show of strength of owners of campers and other recreational equipment has taken the teeth out of the new law somewhat.

Readers Agree With Officials

It appears that SUN SURVEY readers feel that city officials of Virginia Beach did the right thing in closing down the movie "I am Curious (Yellow)," as obscene and unfit for the general public to see.

Of those who replied to last week's SUN SURVEY question, "Should Virginia Beach officials have confiscated and banned the movie 'I am Curious (Yellow)' as obscene and initiated legal proceedings when the movie has not been adjudged so elsewhere?", 91 per cent said "Yes." Only nine per cent were against the seizure and closing.

Letters received from two persons who replied in the affirmative and one who answered in the negative are printed on p. 4 in the "Letters to the Editor." Several others included short comments with their replies.

One said, "It is time that those who include morality in their judgements make some noise." Another said, "My morals don't need the Commonwealth's Attorney."

While the public opinion survey does not profess to represent the thinking of all the residents of Virginia Beach, it does represent the thinking of a cross section of those who took time to clip it and return it to us.

Your attention is called also to this week's SUN SURVEY question which appears below in the box at the lower left corner of this page. The results will be published here next week. Each week a new, timely question will be asked, and you are invited to participate. The more replies received, the more responsible the opinion,

Vote Tabulation Is Centralized

For the first time the unofficial tally, as well as the official tally, of votes from Tuesday's Democratic Primary, will move swiftly through a central location in Virginia Beach.

At the request of John B. James, electoral board chairman, Clerk of Circuit Court John Fentress has made space available in his office at Princess Anne for the collection, compiling and tabulation of votes from the city's 26 precincts.

Fentress said this is the logical location since there are ten telephone lines coming into the municipal complex and since James has also asked for another major change in the handling of election returns. In the past unofficial returns were called into the Clerk's office on election night and to various campaign headquarters throughout the city. The unofficial returns were brought to the Clerk's office either that night or the next day, with the official envelope not necessarily being brought in until time for the official canvass two days later.

James has now asked that the unofficial returns and the official returns in a sealed envelope be brought in to the Clerk's office as soon as counted on election night.

It is expected that representatives of the news media, as well as candidates for the House of Delegates, will employ the central location on election night also.

The only precinct that has required a new polling place has been Little Neck. The old polling place, King's Grant School, is under reconstruction, following a major fire last December. The new poll is located

Hunt for Escapee Continues

Boyce Linwood Layne, 36 who was in the Virginia Beach City Jail awaiting trial on two charges of burglary and one charge of possession of burglary tools, remained the target of a widespread manhunt following his escape on Monday night.

The FBI Tuesday afternoon joined in the search for Layne. According to officials at the Norfolk FBI office federal warrants were issued for Layne on the grounds of interstate transportation of a stolen motor vehicle. The charges resulted from the discovery at the time of his arrest last November by Virginia Beach police of an auto behind Layne's home, which had been reported stolen in Raleigh, N.C. FBI officials also said Layne's wife, Patricia, 24, is also being sought on the same federal charge.

According to officials Layne managed to saw through a bar on his maximum security cell door with hacksaw blades, then with a pistol forced jailer Philip Waterfield to summon jailer doorway leading outside. City Sgt. John E. Marr said Waterfield was on duty inside the cell block area of the jail at the time.

He said, "Waterfield was going around locking up the prisoners and securing them for the night. He had already checked the first floor, made his rounds of the second floor, and had gone to the third floor."

Marr said that when Waterfield checked Layne's cell he could see Layne on his bunk as he looked through the bars of a secondary door. Marr added that the solid, heavy steel door on Layne's cell had been left open because "it was so hot that place would have been like a furnace."

Marr continued that when Waterfield came back down to the second floor "he was met by this fellow (Layne) in the hall then forced to come downstairs and knock on the door to get Evans to open it."

Evans said he heard someone banging on the door and saw Waterfield peering from the other side of the doorway glass insert. When Evans opened the door he was confronted by Layne, who had concealed himself, holding a pistol.

Evans said Layne told him, "I don't want to kill you." Evans was forced to step through the door, and as he did Layne apparently saw matron Bertha Taylor behind the jailer's desk. According to Evans Layne forced her at pistol point to join Waterfield and Taylor.

Layne then left the jail through the main doorway and fled into the rainy night.

Police officer Harold D. Suggs, who was patrolling the region with his partner Auxiliary Police Lt. Lowery, said they were in the process of making one of their nightly routine checks at the jail. Suggs said he and Lowery were in a rear office, and had looked back into the jailer's office to find it empty.

About five minutes later, according to Suggs, he heard a banging in the cell block area, and as he started to this rear door to investigate he heard the report of a jailbreak on the police monitor. Suggs said he went to the door leading into the cell block and looking through the glass saw the jailers milling about, then raced out of the building only to be met by police officers and detectives racing into the building.

Sheriff Marr told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN Evans sounded the alarm by phone after he had been locked inside the jail area with Waterfield and Taylor.

Marr said, "Evans picked up the phone and dialed the operator and told her to send the police. She called Norfolk police, and they surrounded their jail."

"After about five minutes," Marr continued, "and the police had not arrived Evans again used the phone to inquire where the police were."

It was on this second call that Evans apparently reached the police dispatcher at Virginia Beach headquarters.

When questioned as to how Layne may have been able to obtain the hacksaw blades and pistol used in his escape Marr said, "I've no idea how he got hold of the stuff."

Marr indicated previous checks of the jail did not uncover anything out of the ordinary, and that the last time Layne had any visitors was on Sunday June 29. Marr was unable, however, to say who visited Layne on that date.

When asked if Marr had anything he might want to change in the jail he said, "I made a request which was to have been brought up in City Council in May to transfer some funds from the budget to build a visitors room so they would not have to go inside the jail, and I have not heard any more from it."

Man Booked in Shooting

Two Arrested

A Norfolk man, identified as Lonnie Moore, is facing court appearance after being charged with the shooting of a Virginia Beach woman on July 4. According to police, Moore, 23, of Lambert's Point Road, is accused of the shooting of Mary H. Williams, 42, of Cypress Avenue. Investigators said the woman was shot once in the stomach during an argument at Cooke's cafe. She underwent surgery shortly after the shooting at Virginia Beach General Hospital. Police apprehended her suspect in the incident within an hour after the shooting.

Minor Injuries

A three and half-year-old child, struck by an auto as he attempted to cross the roadway near his Oceana Boulevard home is reported to have received head injuries, bruises and lacerations. According to officials, young Michael Bankert apparently escaped serious injury in the accident. Police officials said Lorne F. Hatt, 20, stationed at Dam Neck, was the driver of the car which struck young Bankert and is awaiting court appearance on a charge of reckless driving as a result of the accident.

Petition Filed

The defense attorney for a 17-year-old juvenile charged in the March 1 murder of Aaron Bell, also 17, has filed a petition in Circuit Court claiming the defendant has been illegally indicted. Mrs. Penelope D. Coffman, attorney for the accused, in her petition for a writ of habeas corpus contends her client's case was still under consideration by Juvenile Court Judge Thomas F. Betz at the time it was aired before a grand jury. Judge Betz, who according to the petition delayed his decision pending the outcome of a probationary report, ordered the accused bound over to a grand jury after the grand jury had indicted the juvenile on a charge of murder.

Safe Gun Fatal

Final services were held Tuesday at Raleigh, N. C., for Jack H. Peyser, III, son of Mrs. B. M. Stanton of Virginia Beach. Peyser, 22, who resided at Torrington, Conn., died last Saturday night in an accident in Torrington. Peyser was reportedly examining a revolver when the weapon discharged sending a bullet into his heart killing him instantly. Indications are that the gun fired even though it was in the safety position. The gun, after examination, was classified as being in a defective condition.

Two men have been arrested in connection with the May 25 burglarizing of the Joe Spence home on 18th Street and the assault of a man and woman during the burglary. Police officials said approximately $1,000 was taken from a bedroom closet after the home was broken into through the back door. Investigators said Norman Cornick, who resided with Spence, was taking care of the home during Spence's absence. A neighbor, Mabel Story, was talking with Cornick on the porch of the home when they surprised two men breaking into the bedroom closet. She was reportedly beaten about the head with a pair of wire cutters. Cornick was struck across the face with the pistol by one of the men. After the attack the men fled on foot. Police said they have arrested Richard A. Sadler, 20, Old Dam Neck Road, and Freddie Halstrom, 26, N. Birdneck Road, on charges of malicious assault and burglary.

Youth Cleared

Judge Philip L. Russo has cleared a 14-year-old youth of manslaughter charges resulting from the death of Wayne Kirk during a boating accident on Lynnhaven Bay the night of May 9. Authorities said 11-year-old Kirk of Oriole Drive died of a fractured skull and broken neck in the collision of two high-speed runabouts. Russo however found the 14-year-old within the purview of Juvenile Court on a charge of reckless boat operation and continued the case until Aug. 21 pending the outcome of a presentencing background report from the probation department.

3 Men Sought

Three men who reportedly broke into a 28th Street home where six college girls were sleeping early Sunday morning are being sought by police. According to the girls, two of five girls sleeping in the living room were awakened by two men as they made their way through the living room. The sixth girl was awakened by the third man who reportedly began fondling her while she slept. The men were frightened from the house when the girls awoke and fled in a car left outside the building.

Civic Group To Clean Up

The Seateack Civic League will meet at 8 p.m. Aug. 5 at the Seateack Community Center. The League's first project is to set up a clean up program. Trucks and good workers are needed for this job.

City Halls Sponsor Blood Drive

The City Halls of Virginia Beach, Norfolk and Chesapeake are sponsoring a one-day blood donation drive in cooperation with the Red Cross on July 16.

On that day facilities will be conveniently located for employees of the three cities to give blood. A goal of 20% participation has been set for the city employees.

The tri-city area is presently 60% behind in blood needs. The present drive is being conducted under the slogan, "Keep Blood Free In Tidewater." It is hoped that the example set by city employees will stimulate all area residents to give blood.

Anyone wishing more information or transportation to donate blood should call 625-6791.

Arrests Follow Attack

Two men have been arrested in connection with an attack on three women and two men as the group were on a July 4 outing on the beach off the 2900 block of Shore Drive.

According to police the men and one of the women had returned to their Pacific Avenue residence for food and supplies for the group and upon returning to the beach found the remaining two women in a distraught condition with their swimsuits partially ripped off. The women said that a group of men had attacked them, tearing off their swimsuits and attempting to rape them.

Officials said the men suddenly reappeared from underbrush and began beating the two men. The assailants then reportedly grabbed the third woman ripped off her swimsuit, threw her five-month-old baby to the sand, then two of the assailants held her on the ground while another member of the gang raped her.

Police Det. Sgt. E.F. Buzzy, on Wednesday, said Wilbert Griffin, Jr., 27, of 16th Street, has been charged with one count of rape and two counts of attempted rape in connection with the incident, and Clifton R. Skinner, 22, of Beaufort Avenue, has been charged with rape and malicious assault.

Buzzy also said that other arrests were expected to be made in connection with the case.

Monday's Municipal Court proceedings against Star Twin Indoor Theater owner Kenneth W. Andrews and manager Calvin T. Gray resulted in a continuance until Friday.

The legal proceedings resulted from Andrews and Gray allegedly violating state statutes regarding the showing of an obscene film. Andrews and Gray were arrested at the Star Theater the night of July 1 after the final showing of the movie "I Am Curious (Yellow)".

Monday's continuance was granted by Judge Thomas F. Betz at the request of defense attorneys.

City Action Asked On Two Slum Areas

At the close of the Planning Commission's public hearing Tuesday the Commission was presented with a special report on the Seateack and Brownie Park areas.

The report was made by Timothy Barrow, head of the advanced planning section of the City's Planning Department. Conditions found in the areas during a Beach Borough Study stimulated the special interim report. Although the larger study will not be completed for several months, the Planning Department felt that the deplorable situation found in the Seateack and Brownie Park areas warranted immediate action.

The Planning Department's report noted that the areas, with only 2% of the city population, account for 50% of hard-core unemployment; that two-thirds of the housing structures in the area are either deteriorating or dilapidated; that health problems in the area are from two and a half to five and a half times the city-wide rate; and that 16% of the city's welfare cases are concentrated in the area.

An eight-point plan was presented to the Commission which calls for immediate action in the area. Those points include demolishing 25 dilapidated structures, paving seven streets and repaving four streets, providing adequate lighting along residential streets, removing abandoned automobiles, cleaning and regrading of drainage ditches serving the areas, developing two vest-pocket parks, removing litter from right-of-ways and vacant lots and initiating a detailed cost and engineering study for the extension of sewer service and water service to the entire area.

In his presentation Barrow said that the action program should be a joint effort between the community and the city. He also pointed out that the present conditions are a deterrent to improvement.

During the regular session the Planning Commission approved two use permit applications by the city for parks. One will be located west of London Bridge Road and south of South Adventure Trail near Oceana Air Base. It will be a small park, similar to Observation Point on Oceana Blvd. The Navy has given the city a lease for the park, which covers an area 170 feet square.

The other application that was approved was for a park to be located on the southwest corner of Princess Anne Road and Landstown Road in the Green Run Farm area. This park will contain parking for 250 cars, picnic shelters, playground equipment and a horse-show ring.

The Planning Commission approved an application of Princess Anne Properties, Inc. for a use permit for camping sites and related facilities east of South Lynnhaven Road and south of Ole Towne Drive. This campground, which will have approximately 470 campsites, will not be constructed until next year.

An application of A. E. Havens Jr. for a change of zoning and use permit to construct 808 apartment units was approved by the Commission with the stipulation that the application or a representative would meet with the residents of the area before the application comes up before City Council. The apartments are to be constructed in the Woodhaven area, on the south side of Indian River Road.

Construction of the apartments will take five years. Included in the complex will be a swimming pool, club house, nursery school and a recreation area. Rental on the units has been tentatively set at $200 to $225 a month.

Other action taken by the Commission included denial of approval of an application of Rosso and Mastracchio, Inc. for a change of zoning and use permit to operate a gasoline supply station on the northwest corner of Cape Henry Drive and Great Neck Road. The proposed facility was an unusual one—self-service gas pumps to be installed at a Tinee Giant presently located there. The application was opposed by the Lynnhaven Colony United Church and the Lynnhaven Inlet Civic League.

Federal Bldg. Suggested Council

Virginia Beach City Councilman Curtis Payne says he believes it is now time to begin serious efforts to get a federal building for Virginia Beach.

Payne said he was not certain about how to proceed but had planned a meeting with First District Congressman Thomas N. Downing concerning the matter. He added that he hoped to have enough information to offer a resolution requesting the building to City Council next Monday.

Payne is chairman of the city building committee. He said the idea of a federal building, probably at or near the municipal complex at Princess Anne was prompted by the increasing demand for space by so many agencies.

While the need may not be pressing at present, Payne says that the time to start active thinking and work on acquiring such a facility is now, while there is still a choice of building sites.

Hospitalman Donald F. Jackson, USN, son of Mrs. Helen M. Jackson of Sirlino Avenue, and Airman John M. Barkey, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Barkey of Concord Bridge Road, are serving aboard the aircraft carrier USS Franklin D. Roosevelt at Norfolk.

Council also faces a number of other zoning matters Monday, including a request by Russell and Elsie Chaplain for a change of zoning and use permit for a 50-unit motel in the False Cape area on the oceanfront where the state is acquiring land for a state park. The planning commission has already recommended denial on the basis that the application is premature since services could not be provided and the change would constitute spot zoning.

Several applications, totaling 327 apartments, are expected to be approved, the largest at Green Run planned development. A 52-unit motel is also expected to be approved near Rudee Inlet.

In closed informal session last Monday Council was told by the city's financial advisor, Lawrence Wales, it is committed to sell $5 to $6 million in municipal bonds this year to finance projects, regardless of the high interest rate at present in the bond market.

The commitments are for water, sewers, schools, street and highways and buildings. Wales said the city cannot wait for a more favorable market.

Police are hindered in locating the owners of these bicycles, which have been recovered after being lost or stolen, because of improper registration. Incidentally police have recovered these bicycles since the last public auction on June 15.

Full Check Expected

A complaint against Virginia Beach 3rd Precinct police officers over the treatment of Bruce J. Keith, Jr., had been followed with complimentary words from the manner in which the situation is now being handled.

Keith, 20, of Tyson Road, complained he was mistreated when taken to a detention cell at 3rd Precinct after being arrested on a reckless driving charge early Sunday morning. According to the complaint, Keith, after objecting to have his thumb print taken and refusing to accept a warrant for the charge, was placed in the detention cell. Keith then reportedly threw toilet paper about the cell, while singing loudly.

Desk Sgt. William Kiger then reportedly ordered Keith to clean up the cell and brought K9 Corps officer Arthur Guertin, Jr., into the cell with Guertin's dog, to enforce the clean up order. Keith also indicated his shirt was torn by Guertin when he grabbed him.

An investigation into the incident is being conducted by Capt. Harry Terry, 3rd Police Precinct C.O., who said that the investigation should be completed within several days and "the results of the investigation will be forwarded to the Chief of Police."

Police Chief Col. W. W. Davis indicates his investigation of the incident thus far indicates that Keith refused to accept a summons for a charge of reckless driving, leaving officers no alternative but to place Keith under arrest and that recording Keith's thumb print is required under state law in cases of physical arrest.

The question of Guertin's dog being brought into the cell, and allegations of the ripping of Keith's shirt, are still under investigation.

The reckless driving charge against Keith was dismissed during court proceedings.

Keith's father, Navy CPO Bruce J. Keith, Sr., reportedly has stated he is certain that Col. Davis will make a full investigation of the incident and guard against any future improper acts by members of the police department.

While Keith's complaint over the handling of his son has not been withdrawn he has indicated he holds no vindictive feelings towards police officers.

Lam Fills Vacancy

Henry Leslie Lam, an attorney, has been appointed to fill the unexpired term of Municipal Court Associate Judge Frank J. Butler III, who resigned, effective July 14.

Lam will be a full-time traffic court judge. Judge Butler worked on a part-time basis. Butler's term was to expire Dec. 31, 1970.

Little Attends Round Table

D. Conrad Little, CLU, of the Leslie B. Disharoon Agency, qualified for Connecticut Mutual Life's Leaders Round Table Conference held June 30-July 2 at The Greenbrier, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

The three-day program centered on current uses of life insurance in the complex areas of pensions, profit sharing plans, business life insurance and estate planning.

Little lives at 53rd Street in Virginia Beach.

New Office Opened

Wheat & Co., Inc., member firm of the New York and American Stock Exchanges, has opened an office in New York City at 120 Wall St.

Harold Flieger has been appointed New York Cashier according to an announcement by Irving L. Brittle, vice-president of the firm. The New York office will handle all of the clearing operation of Wheat & Co. in that city.

This is the ninth office of the Richmond-headquartered firm. A tenth office in Newport News will be open for business.

Lydia J. Goffigan of First Colonial Road is participating in a Health Careers Summer Program being held at Harvard University.

Miss Goffigan, who attends St. Augustine's College, is one of 54 minority-group students from more than 30 U.S. colleges attending the program.

The eight-week program has been initiated jointly by the Harvard Medical School and Harvard School of Dental Medicine to stimulate interest in the health professions among minority-group students now in college, and to strengthen their preparation for graduate study in medicine and dentistry.

Dr. H.D. Kahn Is Appointed

Dr. Howard D. Kahn, Virginia Beach Optometrist, has just been formally notified of his appointment to serve as a member of the Committee on Education of the American Optometric Association.

Dr. Kahn has practiced in Virginia Beach since 1951. He has served as President of the Tidewater Council of Optometry and of the Virginia Optometric Association. Tapped as Optometrist of the Year in Virginia in 1967, he just concluded a term as president of the Virginia Academy of Optometry.

This Was the Place

While statistics are still being compiled and compared with tabulations of years past, indications are last weekend will go down as one of the busiest, if not the all time record, of any 4th of July holiday weekend in Virginia Beach.

Thousands of persons converged on the city filling hotel and motel accommodations; engaging in leisure pastimes such as basking in the sun on the miles of beaches offered by the city; swimming and frolicking in the waters of Chesapeake Bay and the Atlantic Ocean, swimming, boating and/or water skiing on the many rivers, lakes and streams bountiful in the region; camping or hiking in the vast expanses of Seashore State Park; trying a hand at bringing home a "citation size catch" on a fishing trip; or just eating a picnic lunch in a shady spot while enjoying a cool breeze.

The number of persons who moved into the city to enjoy the holiday weekend can be attested to in part by the number of vehicles travelling to and from the city via the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway, E. H. Orange, State Highway Commission toll facility director, said tolls were paid at the Expressway main gate by 123,219 vehicles during the holiday period.

While other roadways throughout the city were travelled heavily as well, the holiday proved to be a safe one for motorists. Orange reported no major accidents on the Expressway during the holiday, and police records indicated 72 accidents on Virginia Beach thoroughfares did not result in any fatalities and only a few reports of injuries as a result of the accidents.

The city's two police patrol boats had a busy time of it over the holiday patrolling the waterways. Most of the activities were confined to offering assistance to boaters who may have momentarily broken down, advising boaters and surfers of guarding against entering areas set aside for swimmers and checking boats for amplesafety equipment and proper registration.

The recently opened Armed Forces Hospitality House at 18th Street and Arctic Avenue suddenly burst into a beehive of activity during the holiday. At least 1300 servicemen and their wives or dates visited the facility over the weekend and consumed hundreds of hamburgers, and doughnuts, plus a like number of servings of soft drinks and/or coffee.

Reflecting over the activities of last weekend one fact stands out above all else...Virginia Beach is rapidly becoming known as the place to enjoy a holiday.

BADGES & BANTER

By Les Lehigh

Competition reportedly is growing keener among the golfers in the Virginia Beach police department. Lt. E. L. Knowles tell us he had a mighty fine round over the Stumpy Lake course last Thursday and came in with a 77. Knowles says the score has been duly attested to by one of his minister friends, and he plans on framing the score card as a last memento of the event.

The city of Virginia Beach made quite a showing this year in the various classes conducted at the Central Police Training School in Richmond. The last class of the current academic year graduated last Friday and included police detective Michael Palmer, and officers W. W. Taylor, G. T. White, and S. F. Bennett.

Sgt. C. E. Sorey tells us one of the main topics of conversation around the 2nd Police Precinct concerns the trouble one of his colleagues is having with his water pump at home, and how much time is being required to correct the difficulty. Sorey says the water pump's troubles ironically coincide with the periods of time of good fishing conditions in the Lynnhaven region.

Speaking of fishermen...we understand a rather unusual trophy attesting to the fishing skills of Sgt. Norman C. Morse has been placed in the office of the Atlantic Marina at Rudee Inlet. Reports are still coming in concerning the good time had by all at the Hawaiian Luau staged last week at the Princess Anne F.P.O. Lodge #8 home. We understand Dickie Munford's seven month old daughter walked away with the title of "belle of the ball". Everyone complimented Miss Ruth Munford on the authenticity of her costume of native dress, complete from sarong to the flower over one ear. However, there seems to be a difference of opinion as to whether the placing of the flower indicated that Ruthie was spoken for or whether she still hasn't found the young man who has become "the light of her eye".

Loan Investments Listed

American National Insurance Co., 18th largest life insurance firm among 1700 in the U.S., now has a total of $18,000,000 invested in mortgage loans in the state of Virginia.

Of the total, $3,000,000 is invested in the Norfolk-Newport News area and $2,000,000 in Richmond, R. A. Furbush, board chairman, reported from the company's home office in Galveston, Texas.

American National has $10 billion life insurance in force, assets of $1.3 billion and serves the state of Virginia with district sales offices in Alexandria, Lynchburg, Norfolk, Portsmouth, Richmond and Virginia Beach.

Beach Ford, Inc., of Virginia Beach was honored by Ford Division for outstanding sales and service performance during 1968. J. W. Nevins (right), president of the dealership, accepts Ford's Distinguished Achievement Award from J. S. Straub, the division's Richmond district sales manager. The award is presented annually to the nation's outstanding Ford dealerships.

Richardson Drive Chairmen Named Joins City

Jay A. Richardson of Carling Road has accepted a position in the city attorney's office.

The position, that of an assistant city attorney, was created in the June School Board meeting. At that time the School Board voted to pay the salary of a full-time lawyer on the city attorney's staff who would be assigned to School Board business.

Richardson assumes his duties on July 14.

Robert Addenbrook, Victor K. Almond, William S. Anderson, J. Oscar Atkinson, Jack R. Braun, Edward P. Brogan, Algy W. Cohen, Ernest C. Consolvo, Milton O. Culpepper, Frank E. Dickerson, William P. Dodson, Jr., Frank L. Fentress, Leonard F. Koehler, J. V. Powell, Henry A. Shook, Israel Steinfeld, William G. Temple, Reuben F. Trant, Jr.

The campaign is seeking $1,000,000 in three-year subscriptions from the public to enlarge the hospital by some 85 beds. Campaign funds will augment those secured through long-term loans in order to finance the $3,600,000 expansion which the hospital board and administration say is critically needed.

R. Bradshaw Pulley is general chairman of the campaign which will be launched July 17th with a "kick-off" dinner for workers. Hunter C. Phelan is president of the hospital board of directors.

IF YOUR HOME HAS ELECTRICITY, YOU ALREADY HAVE THE BETTER PART OF A NEW HEATING SYSTEM.

With some outdated heating systems, you need a lot of equipment. And a place to store the fuel. A pipe to carry off the smoke. And some way of releasing the heat through your house in a pre-set pattern.

But with modern electric heating, you already have the better part of the system installed. No fuel storage or pipes, either. Because all you need is a trim electric baseboard heater in each room. And that means room-by-room temperature control.

Move up to clean, economical electric heat.

For Guy and Murphy

The next two years will be of extremely great importance to the city of Virginia Beach as it continues to grow so rapidly and to take its place as a major force in the state of Virginia.

Its representatives in the Virginia House of Delegates must be the very best the city can offer if the greatest potential is to be realized. Responsible, efficient leadership is a must.

Of the four candidates seeking the nomination for the two Virginia Beach House of Delegates seats in next week's primary, we support and endorse Richard Guy and Bruce Murphy.

Both are conscientious men, highly skilled attorneys and civic-minded leaders. Both are serious campaigners and have honestly tried to discuss the issues which will be confronting all of us in the coming years. Both have their feet planted firmly on the ground in Virginia Beach and both are working diligently for its future.

While they have run separate and independent campaigns, with backing from all factions of the Democratic Party in Virginia Beach, they have espoused essentially the same ideas and concepts. There is no doubt about their ability to work together, if nominated and elected.

Their opponents are also honorable men, but the voters must make a choice. We feel that choice must be for the two men who can do the better job for Virginia Beach and Virginia.

We feel that those two men who should be supported and nominated next Tuesday are Guy and Murphy.

A Reasonable Request

A recent article in a Norfolk newspaper regarding the fees for ambulance service is misleading. It tells of the cost of ambulance service in Norfolk and in Virginia Beach.

The fees, up to $30 for a call in the area, apply only to private ambulance service in Virginia Beach. Public ambulance service, through the various rescue squads is free.

This is not true in other cities, notably Norfolk, where there is no free service.

In Virginia Beach the rescue squads are manned by volunteers and supported mainly by contributions. Yet during their present campaigns to raise money the volunteers are having great difficulty.

Perhaps there will be a charge someday, partly because of this lack of cooperation. Then maybe our residents will realize how lucky they once were.

Still No Solution

At midsummer the surfing problems faced by Virginia Beach have again been swept under the sand. The city is no closer to resolving what will eventually be a crisis than it was a year ago at this time.

A conscientious committee worked hard during the winter and spring to find more space and to help the growing surfing population as much as possible. The proposals met with stiff opposition from Croatan area residents, where a new surfing area was suggested.

Other suggestions included longer surfing hours. But nothing was ever formally adopted by City Council. In fact Council has continued to look the other way.

The needs of the surfers are very real, just as are the needs of the bathers, the sun-worshippers and the fishermen. No one group can be coddled. But the surfing needs can only get worse.

With the new motels and hotels that are bound to be built adjacent to the present major surfing area, the problem will soon become acute.

Even the suggestion of a flag system which would allow surfers to use any part of the beach when weather conditions are unfavorable to others is only part of an answer.

The surf, the interest in surfing and the surfers will not go away. City Council must do something to settle the surfers' plight, at least temporarily. Meanwhile the problems cannot be pushed backward into a sand dune to be forgotten or ignored.

It's Up to Us

Statewide and on the local scene the campaigns for the Democratic Primary have been dull and almost lifeless. The issues have been reshaped many times. Personalities have been examined just as often.

Many political polls have been taken. Now the ultimate poll is up to all of us. We must not allow the dullness of the campaign to cause apathy on election day. The larger the vote the more the winner is the choice of the people...all of them.

A small vote is expected. Let us prove that expectation wrong. Too much is at stake to let others do it for us. Next Tuesday....vote.

'Down with Filth'

Editor's Note: The following two letters were received in answer to last week's SUN SURVEY question concerning the seizing and banning of the film "I Am Curious (Yellow)". Our movies and literature are continually going downhill.

As the mother of two teenaged children, I hope our officials will go a step further and ban some of the other movies that are being shown.

really is, is down and out freedom of filth.

Delighted

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: I was very pleased to read that our Virginia Beach officials have banned the movie "I Am Curious (Yellow)". Our movies and literature are continually going downhill.

As the mother of two teenaged children, I hope our officials will go a step further and ban some of the other movies that are being shown.

Against Closing

Editor's Note: The following letter was received concerning the same question and the same movie, but with a negative reply. Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: What a shame "I Am Curious (Yellow)" was closed down. Certainly our esteemed Commonwealth's Attorney received some calls about this "dirty" movie, but it is doubtful that he received calls from all those who saw it and enjoyed it. What right have a few "blue noses" got to pass judgement for all the rest of us.

Hope the court will toss the whole mess out...because it was closed down the night before I planned to go to see it.
R. E. Pleasants

Prose to Poetry

Editor's Note: The writer of the poem below is a regular contributor to the "Letters to the Editor" section of this newspaper. Obviously the forthcoming Apollo shot has prompted his change from prose to poetry.

For many years we hear the tune,
We heard the tune of "The man on the moon".

But now, do you know what's about to be?

A real "man on the moon"-you wait and see.

We can no more doubt the age old tune.

For it will happen very soon.

We'll put a "Man on the moon", says Uncle Sam,

And we'll put him there as soon as we can.
Ed L. Applegate

The Moment of Truth

The moment of truth is near. For the gubernatorial candidates the Democratic primary marks the culmination of as much as a year-and-a-half of campaigning all over Virginia. It marks the close of the books on as much as $250,000 spent on campaigning. And it marks the end of a very boring campaign for the voters.

The apathy of the voters virtually on election eve is appalling, yet understandable. Not only have they had as much campaigning as they can stomach, not only have they heard so little in real issues and not only have they listened to little petty personality skirmishes until they are sick of them, but they have also adjusted to the idea that it's only partly over.

Unless there is some magic change the races, with the possible exception of the nomination for Lt. Governor, are going to be very close. And that will mean a runoff next month with more campaigning in the meantime. That will mean the voters must find their way to the polls again in the heat of the summer to choose finally between the top two contenders.

But that is still only part of it. They must then prepare for another string of oratory on partisan lines between Labor Day and election day in November. And no doubt it will come, as the GOP nominee seeks to unsettle the long-entrenched Democrats and shake the very foundations of Richmond.

By the time November comes there is either going to be a large turnout to settle the matter once and for all or a very small turnout of weary, poll-shy voters who no longer care. Hopefully the apathy can be overcome, but it is definitely doubtful.

The reasons for all of this are remarkably clear. There are many factors leading up to this feeling of apathy a few days before one of the most important elections the state of Virginia has faced in many, many years.

The length of the campaign has been interminable. Henry Howell has been saying he was running for Governor for four years, but his active campaigning, trying to keep the big boys honest, began well over a year ago. Fred Pollard jumped into the fray earlier than usual. His formal announcement last October came before the Presidential election, unheard of in the past.

And William Battle's name has been bandied about for the nomination for better than two years, although he was the last to make the candidacy official.

Fear of confusing the voters has also caused many problems. The candidates have spent more time agreeing with each other on basic issues than ever before. Actually they must, for fear the voters won't understand in November when Linwood Holton is the common enemy.

Even the public debates, including television debates, have been relatively free of any real confrontations. Henry Howell has continued to needle his opponents in his folksy manner. The Kennedy image of Battle has been exploited fully, and whether Pollard is the only one who can legally stand under the Godwin umbrella of progressive government has also received its share of publicity.

They have all talked about conflict of interest legislation, education, efficient government, welfare and a host of other innocuous problems that the state is facing.

Now the voters must make their choice. All indications are that it will be close enough to make a runoff a necessity in the gubernatorial race, but still no one is willing to predict who will be in that runoff.

The "undecided" vote is still very large, even after more than a year of speeches, endorsements by other politicians, campaign promises and plans for a rosy future for Virginia.

Those that are still undecided next Tuesday just may stay home. That would be a shame, and the small turnout would prove nothing.

But the moment of truth is really here at last. The vote comes Tuesday. Then we'll take a deep breath and get ready for the runoff campaign and another moment of truth. Then after that, another deep breath, another campaign and, yes, still another moment of truth.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"I know you've been told never to lie," he said. "That's absolutely correct, but you don't have to tell everything you know."

"What do you mean?" asked the inquisitive six-year-old. "Well, for instance, when my boss called the other night, you could have told him I'd be with him in a minute or something like that," he said. "You didn't have to tell him I was in the bathroom on the potty."

"Weren't you?" she asked simply.

"That doesn't make any difference," he said. "It's just not something you go around telling someone on the phone."

"Okay," she teased him. "Next time I'll say you're in the bathroom reading the paper."

"That won't be necessary," he said. "Just ignore where I am. Okay?"

"Oh, all right," she said honestly. "But it still doesn't seem right."

"Now listen to me," he said. "I know I shouldn't lie either. But I'm expecting a call from someone I don't want to talk to today. I'll be out in the garage working. If any calls come, just say I'm not in the house. That way you won't have to lie. I'll be in the garage."

"I understand," she said. He went out and began working, forgetting the conversation until he heard the phone ring.

"Hello," he heard the six-year-old voice say. Then she looked toward him in the garage.

"Do it right," he mumbled to himself.

"No," she said. "He's not in the house."

"Good girl," he thought.

"No, I don't know when he'll be back in the house," she said into the telephone. "Daddy, when will you be back in the house?"

He ran in and grabbed the phone. "Hello. . . Oh, Hello, Mother. . . No, I was expecting a call from an encyclopedia salesman and I told her how to answer the phone. She just messed it up a little bit. That's all."

"I goofed again, didn't I?" she asked after he hung up.

"You might say so," he said. The phone rang again.

"Hello," she said. "Is this the encyclopedia salesman. . . ?"

Daddy said to tell you he isn't in the house. Bye." She hung up, and he winced.

"Well, that's one way to get rid of an encyclopedia salesman," said his wife, who came in on the end of the conversation.

"Yeah," he said. "Maybe little children have the right idea. The direct approach seems to work pretty well for them."

"Is she up to some of her telephone antics again?" she asked. "I'm not so sure whether she does it out of honesty or out of pure devilment."

"So she's done it to you too," he said as his steady gaze sought out the innocent looking six-year-old.

"On, yes," she said. "The principal of my school called the other day to talk over a scheduling problem. The little one answered the phone because I had just stepped out of the shower. She said 'Just a minute, please. I'll get her. She's just standing here naked.'"

The phone rang. They all looked at each other.

"Get it," he said. "But this is your last chance."

"Hello," he heard her say. "No, he isn't. You must have the wrong number, but I'll talk to you."

"Get off that phone," he screamed.

"I have to go now," she said. "I think my Daddy's going to kill me." She hung up.

The industrial revolution was one of the greatest achievements in man's pathway from the caves to his present level of progress; for it took much of the burden from the back of man and beast and placed it on the machine. It was only natural that under these circumstances, a very high regard would be placed on man-made devices. Today, electronic robots with the human characteristics of fear, love, hate and memory are in existence.

With the dawn of the 20th century, America became the land of production lines and literally became the slave to pre-timed production schedules such as the assembly lines of the automotive industry. It is undeniable that the machine which replaced the hand-hand who picked cotton; or the man-drawn barge; or the stage coach; or the horse in agriculture; or the oxen, added immeasurably to the ease and comfort of man. The victories of the American forces in World War II were attributable largely to the superior machines and mechanical devices available from the industrial heart of our great nation.

Unquestionably, the machine or the mechanical device has provided man with new luxuries and ample necessities; has relieved man of many labor-burdens; has given man many free hours of relaxation, and for these achievements man is truly indebted to the machine age. With these blessings, one would expect to find a happier more contented breed of man in 1969 than existed for example in 1869. This is probably not true, for today man seems to be more neurotic; more frustrated.

It is possible that as man has gained more and more respect for the machine and its accomplishments, that unconsciously he has lost more and more respect and appreciation for nature and its beauty. With his eyes and thoughts riveted on the works of man it is possible that man has spent fewer and fewer moments with his eyes and thoughts directed towards the wonders of nature? Is this condition in turn responsible for man's discontent and general condition of turmoil? The answer to each of the foregoing questions, is "yes".

Consider for example, the beauty of a sleek new jet air liner representing as it probably does, the highest level of man's achievement. Does it begin to compare, for example, with the majestic and inspiring beauty of flying above the white, rolling, silver sun-drenched clouds at 30,000 feet? Nature in all its variety has beauty and serenity incapable of being attained by the works of man. Surely nothing man can make can compare with the beauty of the Swiss Alps or the Black Forests of Germany; or the sight of a bear fishing in the headwaters of an Alaskan stream.

Is it not possible that man has elevated his works above the works of God and in so doing has lost much more than he has gained? Has man over-emphasized the role of the machine and its potential at the expense of something of far greater and lasting value? The answer would seem to lie in the fact that never before has man employed more machines, more effectively, for more purposes while at the same time being more discontented and troubled than ever before.

Is this the message the Book of Psalms is trying to convey in Chapter 4, verses 6 through 8 when it states:

"There be many that say, 'Who will show us any good? Lord, lift thou up the light of thy countenance upon us.'"

Thou has ~~put~~ gladness in my heart, more than in the time that their corn and their wine increased.

I will both lay me down in peace, and sleep; for thou, Lord, only makest me dwell in safety."

He Knew He Had to Help Her Vaccine Expected

Young Clayton R. (Rocky) Bailey, Jr., was enjoying the balmy 4th of July weather last Friday afternoon on a boating trip into waters of Chesapeake Bay off Lynnhaven with his uncle and cousin without the realization that before the day was over he would become a hero as the result of saving a woman's life.

Rocky, the 13-year-old son of Virginia Beach police Lt. C. R. Bailey, disregarded his own safety to rescue Mrs. Virginia Combs struggling to cling to an overturned float after she had drifted some 150 yards offshore.

Mrs. Combs, of Beach Street, and her three children had gone to the beach for a day when she reportedly "dozed off" and began drifting seaward on a float. She suddenly realized she had drifted farther from shore than she intended and overturned the float in her attempt to reach shore. Although she called for help her cries went unheeded.

Young Bailey said he saw the raft "flipping over" as his boat passed near her and called to her, "Are you all right?" Rocky continued, "She didn't say anything and looked like she couldn't hold on. I told my uncle to take over the boat and I told her to 'hold on' and got her to put her arms over the raft, and grabbed the raft and swam into shore with her."

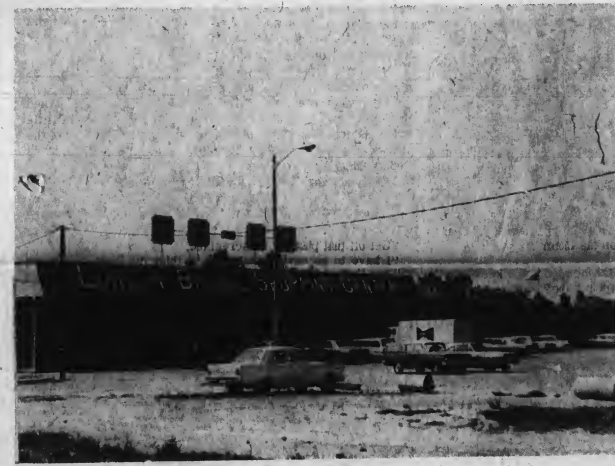

Upon reaching the beach Mrs. Combs was given artificial respiration and rushed to the Fort Story dispensary by several persons who gathered at the scene.

stop for the "Sports" who won the Virginia Beach Little League baseball championship, in the majors category. When questioned as to why he took the action he did last Friday, Rocky simply said he saw the woman was in trouble and knew he had to help her. As to how he felt when he had safely brought her to shore, Rocky very unassumingly replied "I was pretty tired."

London Bridge Shopping Center Shopping Center to Expand

Phase two of a development program is now underway for London Bridge Shopping Center.

The Shopping Center, which is owned by DeHart Enterprises Inc., presently houses approximately ten stores. Upon completion of the third phase of the development program at least 30 businesses will be located at the center, which primarily faces Great Neck Road at Virginia Beach Blvd. The businesses that are located there moved into the center September and October of last year. Phase two includes the construction of a Colonial style building, facing Great Neck Road, to house eight or nine offices and service shops. This phase should be completed the latter part of this year, according to Roy L. DeHart, president of DeHart Enterprises, Inc. Phase three is tentatively scheduled to begin in 1970.

The phase two building was designed by architects McClurg and Wall; it is being built by DeHart Construction Corporation.

Group Elects Kirkpatrick

The Southern Cemetery Association and the Virginia Cemetery Association jointly held their annual convention at the Cavalier Hotel, June 22 through 25, with an attendance of over 300 members and guests.

A local cemetery president and co-owner of Rosewood Memorial Park and Princess Anne Memorial Park, Charles C. Kirkpatrick, was elected to the Board of Directors of the Southern Cemetery Association for a three-year term and also elected vice-president of the Virginia Cemetery Association. Kirkpatrick's term as Director of the National Association of Cemeteries expires 1970.

On a national level the National Foundation March of Dimes has contributed over $600,000.00 for research on the Rubella vaccine for German measles.

This vaccine will go to private physicians and some health departments sometime in the fall, although supplies will be limited at the beginning. The local chapter of the March of Dimes expects to cooperate with

Schedule Based On Demand

The Virginia Beach Public Library system has released a change in the bookmobile schedule.

Beginning July the bookmobile will be at Sandbridge on the 1st and 3rd Fridays from 10:30 a.m. until noon; it will be at the SPCA Shelter (instead of Dam Neck store at the traffic light) on the 1st and 3rd Fridays from 2 p.m. until 3:30 p.m.

These changes have been necessitated because of scant use of the facility and heavy traffic on the road.

If circulation does not improve at certain stops, the service will be withdrawn and the bookmobile will move to other areas.

Any neighborhood which is located more than five miles from one of the library buildings, desiring bookmobile service should prepare a written request for the service and address the letter to: The Library Director, Virginia Beach Public Library Headquarters, Bayside Branch, 936 Independence Blvd., Virginia Beach, 23455.

Diamond Springs residents are urged to come out to the bookmobile parked at the Key Market on the 2nd and 4th Tuesday of each month, 10 a.m. - 12 noon. It is felt that not everyone is aware of this recent change.

There will be changes in the schedule again after Labor Day.

the local health department, possibly in the administration of the vaccine if a clinic is available. Anyone wishing further information on the vaccine and who should receive it may get this information by calling Mrs. Simiele at 486-4044.

The approval by the Federal Government of a vaccine to prevent German measles, marks a significant step forward in the fight against birth defects, the primary interest of the March of Dimes.

Rubella is usually a mild childhood disease but may cause serious defects in the unborn baby when the mother is infected with the disease in the early months of pregnancy. Young children are the principal source of the infection of pregnant women. Epidemics occur at irregular intervals of 6 to 9 years. The last major epidemic was in 1964. This epidemic caused an estimated 50,000 abnormal pregnancies, resulting in some 20,000 live-born babies with birth defects and about 30,000 fetal deaths. With widespread immunization of children, this tragedy may not be repeated.

The March of Dimes is conducting a major educational campaign to promote public and professional knowledge of the new vaccine. Thousands of victims of congenital rubella from the 1964 epidemic have been cared for at the 107 Birth Defects Centers supported by the March of Dimes.

It should be stressed that school-age children should receive the immunization. Infected boys and girls often move about normally, exposing everyone around them. When a child with German measles unwittingly infects a pregnant woman, the result may be a major tragedy for her baby.

'Oliver' Continues Four Weeks

According to James R. Wannall Jr., manager of the Princess Theatre, "Oliver" will be showing at the theatre for another four weeks.

"Oliver," the winner of six academy awards, has had a five month run at the Princess; it opened February 12. Wannall says that the viewing audience had begun to slow down, but when the tourist season began the audience doubled. Many local people have been to see the movie twice.

Special group showings of the movie are still being made. A group from North Carolina viewed the movie yesterday. Just before school was out a group from Tennessee attended, got underway at 10 a.m.

One highlight of the day was the crowning of "Miss Independence". The title went to Stephanie Early, a 21-year-old, curvaceous (36-24-36) freckled-faced, blonde, civil service secretary. Miss Early, who resides on Artie Avenue in Virginia Beach is employed at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base.

Despite the trying traffic conditions created by the large influx of people indications are that a good time was had by young and old alike during the 12 1/2 hour celebration which

United Investment Savings.

A new way to make your money grow.

The way your United Virginia Banker looks at it, it's better to invest your money than just save it. That's the idea behind our new United Investment Savings.

Start with an initial deposit of $500 or more. Then, as often as you like, make deposits of as little as $50.

Now here's the interesting part. United Investment Savings pays the nation's highest allowable bank return. The interest—5%—is compounded continuously. Your interest earns interest all the time, so you get more than 5%.

But that's not all. You get the convenience of a quarterly statement. Deposits are simpler to make, while there's no need to come into the bank to have your interest posted. And you even have a choice of how we credit interest to your account.

Withdrawals are easy too. No notice is required at the beginning of each calendar quarter. And only 90 days any other time.

Ask your United Virginia Banker about United Investment Savings. The sooner you do, the more money you'll make.

Dome Is Entertaining Job

By Yatta Jones

Donna Caulfield and Judy Lambeth feel that they are fortunate to hold the jobs they do, and they enjoy every minute of work. They work at the Civic Center; Donna as secretary and Judy as administrative assistant to the Civic Center director, Samuel W. Scott, Jr.

Donna, who has been there for only two and a half months, lists part of her duties as handling publicity for the Center--and, of course, general secretarial duties. Donna had attended a business school prior to working at the Civic Center and had worked as a long distance telephone operator. Her present job is the first secretarial position she has held.

Donna is thoroughly satisfied with her job. She says that where she is she meets all kinds of people and that's the part of her job that she likes best. As for particular qualifications for the job Donna says, "It has to be somebody outgoing enough to want to meet people and make them comfortable and yet remain businesslike...I'm not so sure I'm qualified, but I'm working on it, and they say experience is the best teacher."

One aspect of Donna's job--that of meeting some of the top name performers--has taken a little enjoyment out of a former practice. "I always managed to get backstage to meet performers," she says, "It takes much of the fun out of it when you can do it legally...it was more exciting when I had to sneak back and tiptoe!"

Donna is 21, single, and has blonde hair and brown eyes. She likes the beach, sports ("both spectator and participating sports...even walking"), dancing and music ("I like all kinds of music but I prefer to dance to contemporary 'soul' music) and clothes ("I love miniskirts and bell bottoms...I particularly like casual clothes and I wear them everywhere because they are 'me'").

She has definite ideas about certain things and doesn't mind stating them ("I don't drink because girls don't have to drink to have a good time whereas boys feel they have to in order to uphold a standard of some kind.") Donna says she enjoys meeting people, all kinds of people, and she likes dating.

Right now Donna stays quite busy, which seems to be a part of her nature. She summed it up by saying, "I lead a full life...I like to be active."

Judy Lambeth has worked at the Civic Center for three and a half years. She started to work part time as soon as she graduated from school and then began to work full time when there was an opening. She says that her predecessor was very efficient and hard to follow. "I had to feel my way along and it took a lot of effort and long hours, but it was worth it...I love my job," Judy is conscientious about her work and has even gone back to school to improve her abilities.

Judy, like Donna, lists meeting people as one of the best parts of her job. In addition she says the diversification of the job makes it attractive. "I have to be a hostess, bookkeeper and receptionist...I don't think you could find a better combination of ingredients for an interesting job," she admits that there are times when things get quite hectic, though.

Judy finds that her job holds many little surprises for her. Several years ago she was backstage and started talking to a nice young man who was traveling at that time with the "Beachboys." The name of the nice young man? Glen Campbell. Judy says that she and Gene Pitney both are "reserved, delightful people."

Judy is also 21 and single, and filling in as the city's representative at various functions has proved to be one of the nicer aspects of her job. When the "Blue Angels" were here she dated one of them and found him to be "very nice and charming."

Judy lists her taste in clothing as "traditional...I feel a lot more comfortable in them." She likes the beach ("although I don't get to see a lot of it"), plays, good movies and sports. Her preference in dates is "neat men...entertaining...tall, although that really doesn't matter."

It would be hard to find two people any more satisfied with their jobs. At least their boss doesn't have to worry about them handing in their resignations any time soon.

L.U.V. Gains New Meaning

By Carolyn McAllen

L.U.V. has taken on a new meaning for a seventh Sunday School class at Callee Episcopal Church this summer. To them L.U.V. stands for "Let Us Volunteer."

Since school recessed in June, 10 girls in the Sunday School class have been meeting twice weekly with 10 first and second graders from Seaback, picked because they would profit from extra help in reading before school reopens in September.

The Sunday School teachers, Mrs. William Bruce and Mrs. John Crawford, tried to think of some way to get their class "involved in the community." Mrs. Crawford, a teacher at Friends School, said that Friends last winter had let older children tutor younger ones and they responded very well. The Sunday School class was enthusiastic, and so was the pastor, the Rev. John Jordan who commented "What are Sunday School rooms for if they can't be used?" Next the Seaback Community Center was contacted for children.

Since Mrs. Bruce was unable to help in the program, Mrs. Douglas Hubbard was recruited. The girls in the Sunday School class received preparatory help from Mrs. Robert Peabody, another Friends School teacher, who explained to them what first and second graders were expected to know in school.

"Their need is so great," said Mrs. Crawford. "They need entertainment in the summer. They hang around the Child Development Center in Seaback and get in the way. There's no program for children this age."

The mothers of the Sunday School class have taken turns at picking up the children at the Center and transporting them to the church. They have also provided snacks.

A typical day begins with the volunteers and children meeting together for a "warm up" session of games, nursery rhymes and singing mixed with a generous sprinkling of review of past lessons. For instance, the children played one game in which they had to tell what letter of the alphabet different children's names began with and what sound.

Later the volunteers and children divide into small groups for individual attention in reading, scrapbooks, handicrafts, etc. The one volunteer to one child ratio is a feature of the program.

One of the most memorable days was when the volunteers took the children to the beach. This, too, was a practical experience. Many of the children had never seen the ocean although they had lived within several miles of it all their lives. Later the children learned what ocean it was and to recognize the words "ocean" and "Atlantic."

"We're hoping to set up something on Saturday mornings during the winter," said Mrs. Crawford. "The girls don't want the classes to end."

Volunteers were Debbie McIntyre, Anne Carver, Frances Withers, Margaret Guy, Gay Kampmuller, Susan Coleman, Susan Lawrence, Kimberly Olsen, Lisa Cairns, and Katherine Beasley.

"A lot of it was just plain loving," added Mrs. Hubbard.

Helping Others Is Their Goal

The main purpose of S.T.O.P. (Southeastern Tidewater Opportunity Project) is to "help people help themselves and show them how," Miss Margaret White, S.T.O.P. community involvement coordinator, told members of the Virginia Beach Ecumenical Association Monday night at St. Aiden's Episcopal Church.

The Ecumenical Association was formed several months ago to coordinate volunteer efforts of local churches. One of its latest projects was to arrange for volunteers to drive children from poverty areas to a circus for which they had free tickets. It has also organized a program to provide food in emergencies for the needy. In addition rides are provided to purchase food stamps. The Association is seeking information on agencies needing volunteers as well as trying to make others aware of its existence.

"When you give of yourself, you learn so much," said Miss White, adding that speaking before such an enthusiastic group was inspiring to her.

She said that in S.T.O.P. volunteers are needed as teachers' helpers, to donate clothing, men to mend toys and equipment--"The children need men. Many have never seen a man working around the house"--recreation, arts and crafts, transportation, advice from businessmen on job programs, jobs and counseling.

Lack of understanding is a big handicap in S.T.O.P., Miss White said. "Four years ago before I began working with S.T.O.P. I thought those people (in poverty areas) were lazy, that they didn't want to get off welfare, that they had no sense of responsibility. They don't have. They've never been taught."

She pointed out that there are 105,000 people in the 2,200 square miles covered by S.T.O.P. that qualify under the government yardstick for poverty. She said that self respect is almost as important as jobs and job training for the poverty stricken.

Understanding supervisors on the job are needed too, she said. "After a man gets a job, he may not have an alarm clock to wake him up. He may have no money for bus fare, or lunch money or food at home for lunch, or clothes to wear. If he does not show up for work he's termed 'irresponsible.'"

Miss White told of appearing before the Mayor's Youth Council in Virginia Beach where she was told "We don't have people like that in Virginia Beach." "But you do," she told the Association, "many of them. Everybody knows about Seaback, but what about Pungo, Newlight, Fentress?"

Then she added, "Virginia Beach has the worst commuter system around. After a man gets a job he may have to walk two or three miles to a bus. He can get into Norfolk, but he can't go anywhere else in Virginia Beach."

Miss White praised efforts of St. Aiden's Church in setting up a S.T.O.P. Child Development Center. "It's only the second white church in 2,200 square miles that has a center."

The next meeting of the Ecumenical Association will be at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 15 at St. Aiden's Episcopal Church on Edinburgh Drive in Kings Grant. All churches are invited to send representatives.

Dancers to Entertain at Ball

The crowning of Queen Lotus XV will take place Wednesday, July 16 at the annual Lotus Ball to officially kick off the Virginia Beach Lotus Festival, sponsored by Cape Henry Woman's Club.

The ball this year will feature a dance exhibition by Miss Jan Faye and Alton Peele, Miss Faye, a local secretary, has taught dancing from go-go to the Charleston for six years and has been a night club entertainer in Washington as well as locally. She also taught at the Northern Virginia Sheltered Occupational Center for Retarded Children; Peele has taught dancing with a studio for 15 years and also teaches at a local country club.

Dance music will be provided by Ted Weems, Jr. for the ball, which will begin at 9 p.m. at the Cavalier Beach and Cabana Club. Tickets will be on sale at the door for $5 a couple.

Miss Jan Faye and Alton Peele.

Brunch, Tennis Ball Scheduled

A brunch and fashion show is planned for this morning, July 10, at the Capes, sponsored by the Virginia Beach Tennis Patrons as a part of their Tennis Week activities.

Starting time is 11 a.m. Fashion (tennis, naturally) will be from Miller and Rhoads, Alexander-Beele and local pro shops.

The ticket committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. David N. Stormont has announced that the Third Annual Tennis Ball is scheduled at 9 a.m. for Aug. 17 at the Cavalier Beach and Cabana Club. Mrs. Henry A. Shook, general chairman, said that proceeds from the ball will be used for tennis courts for the proposed Boys Club in Virginia Beach when it is built.

or from Cape Henry Woman's Club members.

Master of ceremonies for the evening will be City Manager Roger Scott. The queen will be crowned by Capt. William A. Schroder, Commanding Officer, Oceana NAS. The queen's train bearers will be Marianne Upton and Jonathan Claude Evans.

There will also be a drawing for door prizes, tickets for four to the Cavalier Dinner Playhouse.

The Lotus Festival is sponsored by the Cape Henry Woman's Club each year not only as a fund raising project but to promote and conserve one of the last natural stands of the American lotus in the United States. The Lotus Gardens are in Tabernacle Creek on Sandbridge Road past Princess Anne Courthouse.

The club last winter had the creek dredged to allow fresh water to circulate through the gardens and hopefully increase the number of blooms. It is believed that stagnant water has caused the decline of the lotus in the past few years.

There will also be boat trips through the gardens.

Other events connected with the Festival include a band concert by the U. S. Atlantic Fleet Band at 8 p.m. Friday, July 18 at the Statue of the Norwegian Lady, a church service attended by the club women at 11 a.m. July 20 at Tabernacle Methodist Church and Woman's Club Day on July 21 when all women's club members are invited to bring a covered dish to the gardens at 11 a.m. for a picnic lunch.

Mrs. Russell Cole is chairman of this year's festival, which lasts through July 23.

Sugar and Spice And Everything?

Have you ever sat up all night with a cake? I almost did.

The other night I stayed up until after midnight waiting for one to get done after my faithful family had all deserted me in favor of bed. It wasn't that I waited so late to start the thing, it was just that the electricity went off just after I began mixing it (the recipe calls for using an electric mixer). Besides, even if I could have mixed it by hand, there was still the matter of baking it without electricity.

The first problem to be solved was how to light some candles so I could read the recipe in the dark kitchen. My husband gave up smoking four months ago, and we didn't have a match in the house--or so we thought. The maid found some in her drawer.

So then, after getting all the ingredients in the bowl, I had to leave to take a picture before the lights came back on. When I returned home an hour and a half later, we had company. Since I hadn't met them before, I didn't think I should bake a cake in front of them. So I waited until they left, which was nearly eleven.

Thus back to the cake. The recipe is interesting in itself. One of the main ingredients is two jars of junior baby foods--you have your choice of fruits. Then you start baking it with a cold oven. It takes an hour and a half to bake. Really, it's delicious. At least my husband thought so--even after I told him what was in it.

The worst thing was that I didn't even get a piece of it, I had made it at the request of a friend who bought the ingredients and asked me to bake it for her to take on vacation.

My next house will have a gas oven.

Itch Is Natural

If you suddenly develop a rash under your wedding ring, is this a sign that all is not well with your marriage?

Some psychologically-oriented doctors favor this explanation, but a woman doctor takes a prosaic view. In a letter to a medical journal, Dr. Bernadine Z. Paulshock reasons this way: take a young woman, put a wedding ring on her, place her in the kitchen to wash the breakfast, lunch and supper dishes day after day, add several pounds as the years pass "distributed from head to toes, including the ring finger," then notice the itchy rash under the wedding ring. That's Wedding Ring Dermatitis, caused by dishpan detergent trapped beneath the tightening band.

And what if your rash appears only under the wedding ring and not under other rings you're wearing? Paging Dr. Paulshock.

Soup Can Be Transformed

You can transform canned, frozen or homemade soups into an epicurean's delight, according to food experts of The West Bend Company.

Interesting pasta such as tiny elbow macaroni or fine curly noodles, for example, add interest to the broth. Oregano will spark clear soups.

Sprinkle chopped chives over individual servings of soup or use watercress or green onion tops for variety. Cheese croutons sprinkled with parsley or rye rounds with parmesan cheese are two more favorite soup companions.

Miss Sommer

Fall Wedding Planned

Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Sommer of Northridge, Calif., announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Elizabeth Sommer, to Capt. Kenneth Wayne Spitzer of Virginia Beach.

Capt. Spitzer is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth W. Spitzer and the late Wilbur Stover Spitzer of Virginia Beach.

Capt. Sommer received her B. S. Degree from California State College at Northridge. She is serving as a Research Dietitian at the U.S. Army Institute of Surgical Research, Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Texas.

Capt. Spitzer graduated from Princess Anne High School. He received his B.A. Degree from Virginia Military Institute and his M.S. Degree from Virginia Polytechnic Institute. He is serving as a Research Physiologist at USAISR, Fort Sam Houston, also.

A Fall wedding is planned.

Grapes and Cottage Cheese Salad makes a cool dish for hot summer nights.

Cool Salad Whets Appetites

Is your fork poised and ready? It should be, for here is a combination of ordinary foods that becomes an extraordinary salad.

Of course, you can't really call California grapes ordinary! They are a special fruit that can always be relied upon to give that gourmet touch. Sun-ripened, full of sweetness and vitamins, the California grape has just about "everything". In fact, besides being a great nibbling food, it can be also used in a garnish for meats, fish, salads, and dessert dishes. What could be more pleasant than to be able to use a garnish that is so edible?

If you are serving this salad as the main dish for lunch, you may want to include some crackers. And perhaps offer mayonnaise dressing, to which frozen chopped chives have been added.

LAYERED COTTAGE CHEESE GRAPE SALAD
Makes 1-9x5x3 inch loaf
1 pkg. (3 ounces) lemon gelatin
1-3/4 c. gingerale
2 c. halved and seeded red, green and black grapes

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
3 c. sieved or fine curd cottage cheese
2/3 c. sour cream
1/4 c. finely chopped celery
2 tbs. frozen chopped chives

Dissolve lemon gelatin in 3/4 cup of the gingerale which has been heated to boiling. Stir in remaining gingerale. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold in grapes; pour mixture into a 9 x 5 x 3 inch loaf pan. Chill until firm. Soak unflavored gelatin in 1/2 cup water; let stand 5 minutes. Place over low heat, stirring constantly until gelatin dissolves. Combine remaining ingredients and blend well. Stir in dissolved gelatin. Spoon mixture over grape layer. Chill until firm. Dip mold into lukewarm water, tap to loosen and invert on a platter. Cut into slices and serve each slice on a lettuce leaf. Serve with mayonnaise to which a sprinkling of Frozen Chopped Chives have been added. Serves 6 to 8.

Quick Meals Aid Busy Cooks

Rush to the supermarket. Pick up Susie after her swimming lesson. Stop at the hardware store, take Bobbie to the dentist. Pick up Dad's watch at the jeweler's. And speaking of Dad... it's almost time for him to come home from the office. You promised the kids a picnic supper, but there just isn't time!

Or is there?

With a few "Quickie" outdoor recipes, you can have supper ready by the time Dad gets home, and still keep your promise to the kids. How about serving exciting, but easy to prepare "Hamburger Surprises," corn on the cob and a fresh vegetable salad? A cold drink and some watermelon for dessert should round out your menu.

Hamburger Surprises are made by putting together—sandwich style—two thin patties of ground beef with a surprise filling between. The filling can be a slice of tomato, some cheddar or bleu cheese, a spoonful of pickle relish, an onion slice or anything else that goes well with hamburgers. Or try combinations of fillings. Press the sides of the patties together neatly to hold the filling inside. Just before serving, brown your rolls near the edge of the grill.

If you light your grill just before you start to prepare the food, the fire will burn down to its hottest, most even heat by the time the hamburgers and corn are prepared. Lighting the fire is no difficult task, today. It's safe and easy with a new product, Bernzomatic's "Fire Starter," a clean solid fuel that lights instantly with a match and cannot flare up. Just break off one or two cubes, place it in your grill and cover with charcoal. After the charcoal has started, spread the coals for even distribution of heat.

"Fire Starter" provides an added plus, no chemical tastes on your food to detract from the flavor you've worked to preserve and enhance.

roast corn on your grill. Wrap each husked ear in aluminum foil with some butter, salt and pepper. Place the ears on the grill for 15 to 20 minutes, turning frequently. Serve with extra butter and seasoning for a real old-fashioned roasted corn flavor.

Your salad can contain as few or as many fresh vegetables as you like. If time is running out on you, why not limit the salad to just crisp lettuce with a tasty dressing? If you use a mayonnaise-base dressing, you may want to put a spoonful of the salad on top of your hamburger surprises. It gives the burgers extra flavor and may appeal to kids who don't normally enjoy salad.

Beverage, too, can be whatever you have handy—lemonade, iced tea, fruit punch. Either lemonade or orange juice will mix nicely with iced tea and give it a fresh, summer-time flavor.

There you have it, Mom—a complete meal, charcoal-grilled and on the picnic table in about 45 minutes!

4-H Cooks Make Pizza

Someone has called homemade bread a "social food" because it's magic ingredient that transforms everyday meals into special occasions. It might be added that a slice of homemade bread is a conversation piece.

At least a half-million 4-H cooks agree that yeast breads, rolls and coffee cakes fresh from the oven do evoke a lot of "ah's and oh's." Homemade breads smell so heavenly and taste so good.

These particular 4-Hers are busy with a 4-H Breadmaking project that is both rewarding (good to eat) and challenging (try new recipes). And it is possible to earn a bonus.

Annual awards are provided by Standard Brands, sponsor of the national 4-H Bread program now in its 18th year. There are four medals per county for a blue award group; and expense-paid trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago for the best bread baker in the state; $600 scholarships for six national champions.

During the 4-H Congress Standard Brands will give a recognition dinner for the 1969 state and national award recipients. The gala event will feature a well-known entertainer and each girl will receive a special gift.

The Extension Service, supervisor of the 4-H program, offers numerous bulletins on bread baking as does Standard Brands. Information on nutritive value of bread, tested recipes, short cut methods, and simplified directions are offered to members and local 4-H Club leaders.

This modern home-based 4-H program is open to girls, and boys too, between 9 and 19 years of age. Besides learning the art of bread baking, youngsters try cookies, pizzas, pancakes and waffles.

Information regarding 4-H membership can be obtained by calling or writing to the VPI Extension Office, Princess Anne Courthouse.

HERE COMES OLGA!

The fourth of July weekend and what a beautiful one for the beach. The beach was crowded from one end to the other, hot was not even the word for the weather. In fact I would say it was impossible weather.

The younger set were the smart ones. They held their party Saturday night at the pool of Birdneck Village Apartments. The temperature at 11 p.m. was 86--believe me it was not a night for dressing to go out. I often wonder what we did before "air conditioning."

What was his roommate on, L.S.D. he very quickly answered me by saying they don't bother any thing stronger than the coke he had in his hand. If you see these T shirts being worn remember they are members of the club. I often wonder what they will think of next.

Music was provided for dancing but not many participated. Most of them preferred the pool. This was certainly the coolest of enjoyment Saturday night.

Some of those attending were: Paulette Eghazarian, Allen Migdall, Ellen Caffo from Arlington, Jack Ingles, Dale Luck, Lana Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Pen Woodward, John Ivy, Joanne Cross, Charles Thorp, Andrea Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hill, Jr., Arlene Speech, Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Pittman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. John Ferguson, Mr. & Mrs. Gary C. Perrin, Lonnie Walker, Barbara Smith, Mr. & Mrs. Steve Rankin, Steven Wilson, Nancy Kemp, and Bill Branton.

Sorry I did not get all of the names at the party but I was getting rather warm so I headed for the air conditioned apartment and was glad to get there.

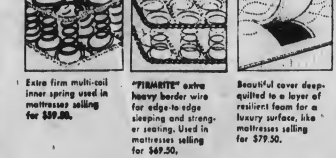

In the crowd were some very attractive young ladies and goodlooking young men. I might add that none of these young men had long hair as so many of the young ones do have today. I was indeed pleasantly surprised.

pH Scale Is Gardening Aid

(Editor's note: Here is another in the series on home horticulture by Wesley P. Judkins, Extension horticulturist at Virginia Tech.)

The acid or alkaline condition of the soil, which you may refer to as sour or sweet, has an important effect on the growth of your plants. There are several reasons for this. The two most important are that some plants grow best at certain acidity levels, and also, the acidity has a direct effect on the availability of the nutrients which they need.

For most flowers and vegetables you will probably need to add ground limestone to reduce the acidity. Apply about ten pounds per one hundred square feet to raise the soil one pH value. Mix this thoroughly with the top several inches of soil. If this is not possible, scratch it into the surface where it can be moved down into the soil with rain water or irrigation.

If you need a more acid soil for azaleas, blueberries, or rhododendrons, apply iron sulfate or sulfur. Use about two pounds per one hundred square feet.

Test your soil again in six or eight months to determine the effectiveness of the treatment. Water moving through the soil will leach out the basic elements and cause the acidity to increase gradually. Therefore, you may need to apply lime every few years to maintain the best level for your particular garden or lawn.

Food Problems Arrive

Summer means family outings, parties, plenty of tasty dishes to eat and, of course, the possibility of food poisoning.

Many cases of intestinal upset, often referred to as food poisoning, occur every year because of food mishandling, said Dr. E. O. Essary of Virginia Tech's food science and technology department.

This is especially true, he said, during summer months. While the exact cause for the illness is not always determined, it is evident from the symptoms that the food had become contaminated through mishandling.

One of the bacteria responsible for the majority of intestinal upsets caused by food mishandling is the golden-colored Staphylococcus aureus.

This microorganism is prevalent on hands, utensils, in the air, and in fact, most everywhere, so it can easily contaminate unprotected food.

Foods often prepared for picnics include meat sandwiches, egg and potato salads, pies and similar items which are an excellent media for bacterial growth.

When food becomes contaminated with Staph, the organisms multiply undetected and produce a toxin which causes an intestinal disorder.

To prevent bacterial action, Essary said, food should be kept free of recontamination after it is prepared. The temperature of prepared food should be kept above 120 degrees or below 50 degrees.

An important thing to remember, he said, is to never hold a cooked food product between 50 and 120 degrees for more than four hours. This temperature range, often referred to as the "inoculation zone" is the ideal temperature for the growth of bacteria responsible for gastrointestinal upsets.

Another group of bacteria called Salmonella are also troublemakers at picnics. They do not produce a toxin as do Staphylococci, but cause a gastrointestinal infection which persists longer than attacks caused by Staph toxins. Salmonella organisms may also enter food by improper handling, or from individuals carrying the organisms.

Hands should be washed thoroughly before food is handled, Essary warned. "This is particularly important with raw foods for salads and foods that will not be reheated at the picnic area," he said.

Foods should be kept out of sunlight and away from insects and animals. Left-over food should be covered and held in a cooler.

Wood Wall Ideal Behind Paintings

Area rugs, whether antique Orientals or exciting contemporary pieces, look best laid on a wood floor, where the background of subtle wood tones and textures works like a picture frame.

A collection of paintings also needs an important but neutral background. Many collectors favor walls paneled in a vertical grain, golden-brown like western hemlock to highlight pictures.

Corn Fritters

Cook 5 ears Florida sweet corn and cut kernels from cobs. Add to fritter batter made with 1 cup packaged pancake mix, 2 eggs and 2 tablespoons milk. Drop by the teaspoon into deep hot fat heated to 365 F, and cook 3 to 5 minutes or until brown. Yield: Approximately 3 dozen.

Notice how many business concerns in the tourist area of Virginia Beach ignore the city ordinances having to do with cleanliness of their premises. The ordinance states that property owners or occupants are responsible for keeping their premises free of litter and are also responsible for the cleanliness of the sidewalks in front of their premises and for keeping them free of all litter, trash, garbage and other refuse (Virginia Beach City Ordinance Article I Section 17). It is also unlawful to sweep such litter into the gutters and streets. Do you sometimes wonder whether business people and private residents in the downtown tourist area are unaware of this city ordinance or whether they choose to ignore it?

1 pkg. of cake Fleischmann's yeast, active dry or compressed
2-1/2 c. prepared biscuit mix

Filling
2 pkgs. (6-ounce) sliced mozzarella cheese
3/4 c. chopped onion
1 clove garlic, chopped
2 c. tomato sauce
1 c. chopped salami or 1 c. cooked Italian sausage or 2 cans (2-ounce) anchovies, chopped or 2 cans (3-ounce) sliced mushrooms

Salt and pepper to taste
1/3 c. grated Parmesan cheese
Oregano as desired

Measure warm water into large warm bowl. Sprinkle or crumble in yeast; stir until dissolved. Add biscuit mix; beat vigorously. Turn dough out onto board well dusted with biscuit mix. Knead until smooth, about 20 times. Divide dough into 4 pieces. Roll each piece into a circle 10 inches in diameter. Place on greased baking sheets or in shallow pie pans. If baking sheets are used, make a standing rim by pinching the edge of the dough.

To make filling, arrange slices of mozzarella cheese in curls. Mix onion, garlic and tomato sauce.

To filling mixture, stir in one of the following: salami, sausage, anchovies or mushrooms. Add salt and pepper and spread on dough. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and oregano.

Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) for 15 minutes or until crust is brown and the filling is hot and bubbly. Serve in wedges. Makes 4 10-inch pies.

Beach Means Wardrobe

The days of heading for the beach with a swimsuit and just any old bath towel are long gone.

Sea sirens this summer will take to sand and surf with a swimsuit plus a whole wardrobe of carefully matched accessories.

Major accessory, of course, is the cover-up--which comes in as many varied shapes as the girls who wear them. It may take the form of a bra dress, jumpsuit, long wrap skirt, surfer pants, or pull-over shirt. To coordinate with these are matching beach sandals, bags, and hats.

The total look doesn't stop there, reports the National Cotton Council. The gal who really wants to make the most of the wardrobe bit can wear sunglasses with wide printed frames that match her swimsuit... or even carry a bottle of sun-tan lotion "slip-covered" in matching print.

As for swimsuits themselves, it's the one-piece style that creates new waves of fashion excitement on the beaches. It turns up in classic-looking swimdresses--youthfully demure in crisp white cotton pique or fetchingly feminine in softly draped cotton satin. It's seen in clinging bodysuits of striped knit cotton--reminiscent of the slinky vamp suits of the 40's. And it takes on the all-girl look in fragile cage suits of lace-embroidered cotton voile, dotted swiss, and cotton flisse.

For the beach bunny set, bikinis and modified two-piece suits continue as perennial favorites.

Menu Explained for Visitors

How many Americans think of Smithfield ham as "salted and smoked hind leg of hog"? Or of liver smothered in onions as "animal's organ with high vitamin content"?

These very literal descriptions of American foods are taken from a glossary of typical menu items encountered in the United States. The glossary is published by the Foreign Liaison Office of the Transportation School at Ft. Eustis, Va., for the large numbers of foreign visitors and students who are official guests of the school each year. The Liaison Office maintains an enrollment of approximately 130 foreign students from 20 countries each month, in addition to a company of Air Force students from the Republic of Vietnam.

In addition to the menu items, an explanation of terms and phrases frequently encountered in dining, and a brief section on etiquette are included. In an attempt to furnish a useful guide for visitors unfamiliar with American foods and eating habits the writers of the glossary have provided an unusually realistic view of a frequently "romanticized" subject.

The subject requires a great deal of explanation and translation. Such idioms as "over light", "sunny side up", and "cold plate" are obviously not self-explanatory, especially to people who are unaware of the connections with eggs, and salad and cold sliced meats. The fact that pancakes are also referred to as hot cakes, griddle cakes, or flapjacks might not confuse an American, but four regional names for the same dish could easily present a problem of choice for someone not accustomed to an American fondness for variety in names.

The fact that Americans themselves have such varied backgrounds both simplifies and complicates things. A West German would recognize Wiener schnitzel, but he conceivably would find chili con carne, Welsh rarebit, or pizza new and different.

The glossary can be quite informative to Americans as well as to visitors. For example, many French expressions, which are known throughout Europe and by others for whom French is a second language, are unfamiliar to many Americans. Carte du jour ("today's menu"), frappe ("ice"), and petit fours ("small cakes of various shapes with a great variety of icings"), are not so well known to Americans as Kentucky-fried chicken and barbecue.

Other interesting examples to be found in the glossary are: toast (slices of bread browned on both sides, served warm with butter); beef (cow served as roast, steak, chopped beef (hamburger), or stew); chili sauce (like catsup, but thicker); cake (like sweet bread, made in many flavors and served with a sweet topping called "frosting" or "icing"); hush-puppies (southern fat-fried fish of corn meal); round steak (meat from the top of the hind leg of beef); farfalle (small tort); tip ("to insure promptness" was displayed as a notice which guests read on entering a tavern many years ago. Now it is a sum of money given for good service).

American eating habits are mentioned with descriptions of typical menus for breakfasts, lunches, and dinners. There are also explanation of the differences in eating in cafeterias, restaurants, counters, and snack bars. No effort is spared in the attempt to provide information of real value to the student.

The next time you're puzzling over the Oyster Blennville or Hor d'Oeuvres a la Broche listed on your menu, just ask the gentleman from Thailand at the next table. He'll be happy to explain.

To Coin a Phrase: Coleman dotes on outdoorsy people, especially when they carry the right type of camping equipment. Now the company describes a feminine camper as, "The Outgoing Woman."

Essex House Motel -- to be used by Virginia Wesleyan College as off campus housing for 50-60 men students for the 1969-70 academic session.

Motel Helps Housing Problem

Virginia Wesleyan College has signed a one year agreement with the Essex House Motel of Virginia Beach for use of this facility for off campus housing of 50-60 men students for the 1969-70 academic session, beginning in late September and ending in early June.

The agreement was reached last week between James H. Capps, owner of the Essex House and college officials. The Essex House, built in the early 1940's is a two-story brick and frame structure. Thirty rooms will be available for college use. Twenty of them have adjoining baths. Ten have private baths. Each room will house two men students.

Virginia Wesleyan expects a minimum fulltime enrollment of 400 students in September 1969. The present Academic Village I which the college is occupying has four dormitory units with a total capacity of 220 residents students. Frank S. Badger, Director of Admission, expects approximately 140 of the 400 fulltime students to be local commuting students. The remainder will have to be placed in satisfactory off-campus housing. Transportation for those living in the Essex House will be provided by the college.

This facility will be considered off-campus housing. It will have a resident manager living in the facility and will not be considered officially as a college dormitory.

The Essex House is located on the corner of 16th Street and Atlantic approximately 16 miles from Virginia Wesleyan's campus. At one time, the Essex House had a cafeteria attached and was used primarily as a boarding house with a number of teachers living there.

Virginia Wesleyan's present plans call for the addition of two dormitory units to house a total of 120 students for the fall of 1970.

The total cost of the two units, similar to those in Village I and ultimately to be a part of the second village, is estimated at $800,000. Wesleyan has made application for $500,000 to the Department of Housing and Urban Development through the college housing loan program for assistance on this project. College officials indicate that they will not have a formal reply to the application until later this summer.

In announcing the leasing of the Essex House Motel to house students for September 1969, Virginia Wesleyan President Lambuth M. Clarke said: "We are very pleased to have this relationship with Mr. Capps and the Essex House. Mr. Capps is a teacher and he enjoys working with young people. He and his resident manager have had experience with housing college age students in the Essex House. Although, we wish it were possible to house all of our resident students on campus, we are very pleased with the significant increase in applications and enrollment for 1969-70.

Development Corp. Forms

First & Merchants Corporation announced last week the formation of First Development Corporation as its real estate development subsidiary.

Robert L. Gordon, Jr., president of the parent company, stated that the new company will augment the current lending activities of First & Merchants National Bank and First Mortgage Corporation.

Jack W. Burd who will serve as president explained that First Development "will make available supplemental and equity capital for land development and construction of both residential and investment properties." He added that, "such assistance to builders seeking additional development capital will also serve to complement the mortgage activities of First Mortgage Corporation."

Directors of the company will be Claude R. Davenport, Jr. and Jack W. Burd, both of First Mortgage Corporation; James S. Watkinson, president of Morton G. Thalheimer; and Harry I. Schulte, Jr. and Zach Toms, Jr., of First & Merchants National Bank.

The new company is being initially capitalized at $100,000. It will be provided additional funds by its parent and capitalization will be increased as growth demands. Approval for the formation of the new subsidiary has been received from the Comptroller of the Currency.

Skaters Score in Regionals

A Virginia Beach roller skating rink will send eight persons into national competition in nine events at the end of this month in Little Rock, Ark.

The Plaza Roller Rink skaters earned the right to compete nationally by placing first, second or third in regional competition last weekend in Richmond. The Eastern Regional meet was held at Skateland July 4-7, under the auspices of the Roller Skating Rink Operators of America.

The eastern region includes Virginia, North Carolina, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and the District of Columbia. More than 400 skaters were entered in the various regional events. Skaters from all over the country will compete in Little Rock, according to John Olsen, Plaza Roller Rink skating professional.

Douglas and Pamela Schloemer, brother and sister, won the only first place rating for Virginia Beach with a win in Senior Pairs.

Pamela Schloemer also won second place in Senior Ladies' Free Style and with her partner Gareth Mayo, another second in the Free Dance event.

Douglas Schloemer and his partner, Delores Carr won another second place in the Novice Dance category. In Juvenile "D" Girls Speed, Donna Blount also placed second.

In that same event Linda

Pamela Schloemer and Gareth Mayo as they competed in free dance in the regional championship.

Carr placed third. Miss Carr also placed third in the Juvenile "B" Girls' Free Style event.

In the Juvenile "C" Girls' Speed category Susan Carr placed third, and in Intermediate Men's Singles Free Style Robert Sukup also placed third.

The skaters will take part in the national competition from July 27-August 3.

Virginia Beach Juvenile Court

Case Summation June 27 to July 3

The court had hearings on 113 juvenile petitions which concerned persons accused of violating state laws or city ordinances. Included in these hearings were 57 cases involving felonies, 52 of which were continued to future dates, one was reduced to a lesser charge and ended in a period of probation, three were withdrawn and the remaining one was forwarded to a grand jury.

Other cases which the court settled involved 32 on alleged traffic law violations and 11 on family domestic problems. There were two cases of parental non-support during the above calendar dates.

Holding Company Proposed

J. Burton Harrison, Jr., president of the People's Bank of Virginia Beach, has scheduled a special meeting of shareholders to consider the formation of a one bank holding company.

The Board of Directors unanimously recommends the formation of the Peoples Corporation, which would become the owner of one bank, more often referred to as a "one bank holding company." To achieve maximum corporate flexibility, this corporation will be chartered with broad business powers under Virginia law.

Stock in People's Bank of Virginia Beach will be converted on a share-for-share basis into common stock of Peoples Corporation, which, in turn, will own the stock of the bank. The achievement of this program requires a two-thirds favorable vote of shareholders. The plan also requires approval of the Virginia Bureau of Banking and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, which is now pending.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. on July 28 at the Mariner Motel in Virginia Beach.

Airman Leary W. Casper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hardy L. Casper, Thaua Road, has completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex. He has been assigned to Keesler AFB, Miss., for training as a personnel specialist.

Traffic Lanes Should Ease Boating Dangers

The proposed Chesapeake Bay traffic lanes will be a reality Oct. 6 of this year announces Adm. Willard J. Smith, Commandant of the U. S. Coast Guard.

In a recent letter Adm. Smith informed the Commander of the Fifth Coast Guard District, Rear Adm. E. C. Allen Jr. that the traffic lanes proposed by a study committee had been reviewed and accepted.

The traffic lanes, under study since 1966, establish channels for entering and leaving Chesapeake Bay at Cape Henry and also at Smith Point, a high hazard area in Chesapeake Bay, just south of the border between Virginia and Maryland.

The Commandant set Oct. 6 as a target date for implementation of the scheme, which will revise and expand the present number and position of buoys in the Chesapeake Bay entrance area and will necessitate chart amendments.

The accepted plan also establishes a pilotage area in the vicinity of Cape Henry where the two traffic lanes converge. The committee also proposed a change to the "Chesapeake Bay entrance line of demarcation," extending the inland rules of the road slightly farther to sea in order to put all ships converging on the two separate lanes under the same set of rules. This proposal must yet be considered by the Merchant Marine Council Committee at its meeting Aug. 4 in Washington.

There are two sets of lanes at the Chesapeake Bay entrance, converging from seaward to a point two and a half miles east northeast of Cape Henry light. A northern channel, seven and a half miles long, is oriented in the direction of 250 degrees true inbound and 070 degrees outbound. The deep draft (50 feet) southern channel is seven miles long and is oriented in the direction of 313 degrees true inbound and 133 degrees outbound. Fairway buoys mark the center of these channels, and, in accordance with the rules of the road, ships will stay to the starboard hand of the channel and leave the fairway buoy on the port hand.

Smith Point lanes have two legs totaling a distance of one and a half miles, each lane being three-quarters of a mile wide. The turning point for the lanes is at a fairway buoy located one and three quarters mile due east of Smith Point Light. The northbound lane is oriented in the direction of 015 and 340 degrees true; the southbound lanes are in the direction of 160 and 195 degrees true.

The traffic lanes were devised to assist masters of large vessels to prevent collisions in these congested areas, and are of an advisory nature. The new charts that will carry markings of the traffic lanes will also bear the statement: "All vessels entering or leaving Chesapeake Bay entrance should leave all fairway buoys on their port hand."

Mayor Frank A. Dusch cuts the ribbon to mark the opening of the pool built by the Pembroke Meadows Civic League. He is assisted by Jennifer McLaughlin. Formal ceremonies for the opening were held on July 3.

403 Artists Enter Show

The 1969 Virginia Beach Boardwalk Art Show will exhibit the works of 403 artists from throughout the United States.

Last year's show contained the works of 450 artists, but, according to entries chairman Mrs. J. S. Strole Jr., the artists are requesting larger spaces, thereby limiting the number of entrants.

Judges for the 1969 show are Ida Kohlmeier, a painter from Metairie, La., and William Bendig, editor and publisher of "The Art Gallery." The awards will be presented Saturday, July 19. Last year's awards and prizes totaled $2,675, with $1,000 going for the Best in Show purchase award.

The show will be held July 17-21 along a one-mile stretch of the Boardwalk.

Seven past Best in Show winners of the Virginia Beach Boardwalk Art Show will be exhibiting during the show.

The artists who have received the Best in Show Purchase Award are William Fletcher Jones, 1959; Lois Greiger, 1953; Marc Moon, 1964; Bruce Fink, 1965; A. B. Jackson, 1966; James Barbee, 1967, and Sharon Whitley, 1968.

The awards will be presented at 2 p.m. Saturday, July 19, in front of the Bel Harbor Motel, 13th Street. Last year's awards totaled $2,675, with $1,000 going for the Best in Show Purchase Award.

New Adm. Has Beach Ties

Capt. Vincent A. Lascara, SC, USN, a native of Norfolk and Virginia Beach has recently been nominated for the rank of Rear Admiral.

Capt. Lascara is the son of Mrs. Grace Lascara and the late Joseph Lascara, of Norfolk. His wife, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Lyons, is also a native of Norfolk, and the daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Lyons and the late Howard Lyons of Cardinale Road in Virginia Beach.

Capt. Lascara

Since September Captain Lascara has been commanding officer at the Navy Fleet Material Support Office at Mechanicsburg, Pa. He previously served more than a year as executive officer of the Navy Ships Parts Control Center, also at Mechanicsburg.

Among other decorations he wears the Navy Commendation Ribbon, with a Gold Star in lieu of a second ribbon. He received the ribbon for achievements in the field of nuclear propulsion for Navy submarines and surface ships, and the Gold Star for the leading role his Inventory Control Department at the Norfolk Naval Supply Depot, played in the implementation of the uniform automated data processing system for Navy stock points.

He is a graduate of William and Mary College. He was commissioned a line officer in December 1942. In 1951 Captain Lascara received a master's degree in business administration from Stanford University.

He and his wife have four children. They live in quarters at the Mechanicsburg, Pa., Naval Supply Depot.

The Fleet Material Support Office, one of five commands at Mechanicsburg, acts as the Navy's retailer for items bought in mass lots for all services, prepares many of the lists of parts to be carried by ships and shore stations, designs uniform computer programs for use throughout the Navy supply system, and does research into logistics problems.

Local Youth Joins Vista

Buford E. Collings III, Kingston Circle, the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Collings, was one of 36 trainees who were graduated recently from the VISTA Training Center at the University of Colorado in Denver, Colo.

As a Volunteer in Service to America, Buford will spend one year working in Scottsbluff, Neb., with Our Lady of Guadalupe Parish serving Mexican-Americans, seasonal workers, and Indians. His activities will include initiating tutoring and adult education programs, organizing consumer education and homemaking groups, organizing youth recreation programs, counseling probationers in cooperation with the juvenile probation office, acting as a liaison between individuals and existing programs, and working with families of day-care center children.

Buford graduated from Northern Burlington High School. He attended Middle Tennessee State University and Pennsylvania State University. He has done previous volunteer work for McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey.

Close City Political Race Has a Few Surprises

A very close race between the three top contenders in the Virginia Beach House of Delegates race in the Democratic primary Tuesday saw Richard D. Guy lead the ticket and incumbent B. R. Middleton come in second.

Bruce G. Murphy placed third by only about 100 votes. The fourth candidate, Rhane W. Adams, ran far behind.

Guy and Middleton will face Republicans Walter Schwieger and Robert Furniss, Jr. in the November General Election.

In the statewide races William Battle barely carried Virginia Beach by about 30 votes over Norfolk State Sen. Henry Howell, Jr. Lt. Gov. Fred G. Pollard ran a poor third. Unofficial tallies gave Battle, 5,355; Howell, 5,325; and Pollard, 3,728.

Richmond State Sen. Sargeant Reynolds, in the race for Lt. Governor, was the top vote-getter in Virginia Beach, polling 7,926 votes. Chatham State Senator W. Carrington Thompson was second with 1,873. He narrowly edged out Herman "Hardtimes" Hunt, who had 1,849. Moses Riddick ran last with 1,323.

For the Attorney General nomination Norfolk Del. Bernard Levin placed first with 3,901. Second was Del. Guy Farley with 3,676. Third was Andrew Miller with 2,497. C.F. "Flip" Hicks came in last with 2,117.

In the House of Delegates race Guy polled 6,269. Middleton had 6,195. Murphy polled 6,103, and Adams had 5,500.

The total of 14,840 votes cast in Virginia Beach barely fell short of the estimated 15,000 turnout. Almost 32,000 voted in last fall's Presidential contest in Virginia Beach.

Guy ran strong in all boroughs of the city but was particularly successful in the middle-income populous sections of the city, where his key campaign workers say they concentrated a great deal of effort.

Guy ran a totally independent campaign, shunning all ties with any organization or political faction. It was no secret, however, that the old Organization in the city threw its support to the Guy campaign.

The campaign was called dull and lifeless throughout. The only times that image was changed came in minor skirmishes during joint appearances between Guy and Middleton.

Middleton did not win by a comfortable margin for an incumbent. His nomination was almost blocked by Murphy, like Guy, an attorney and a newcomer to politics.

Adams and Middleton ran as a ticket under the United banner, which two years ago elected Middleton, State Sen. Edward T. Caton III, City Treas. V.A. "Jack" Etheridge and Commonwealth's Attorney, Andre Evans.

Etheridge was credited with putting together the Adams-Middleton ticket, and the blame for Middleton's narrow victory and Adams' defeat was also given to him.

Etheridge, in the last few days before the primary, received adverse statewide publicity concerning payment or non-payment of real estate taxes on his summer home at Fals Cape which burned recently. Another story charged that Etheridge had been violating the law by purchasing tax delinquent lands. Earlier in the campaign Howell hit at Etheridge for the same thing and questioned his involvement in other real estate deals.

The Etheridge forces had expected an easy win for both Middleton and Adams, and many expressed surprise over the closeness of the vote and the relatively poor showing of Adams.

Because of a clerical error at the new central tabulation center at City hall, Murphy was first declared the winner over Middleton. But it was later learned that the figures for two candidates had been reversed on the election tally board which reversed the decision in Middleton's favor.

Murphy said he was pleased with his showing in his first venture in politics and offered his support to the party nominees. Adams went to Guy campaign headquarters and offered his support to Guy, when the results were known.

Talk of unusual splitting of votes in the House of Delegates race failed to materialize. In precincts where Middleton ran strong, his running mate, Adams, also ran strong, although always getting a few less votes. In precincts where Guy ran strong, so did Murphy, although again not quite settling the pace enjoyed by Guy.

The four-way race ended far closer than most political observers had felt it would. These same observers feel the Guy-Middleton ticket can win easily over GOP opposition in November.

(See "Political Races," p. 5)

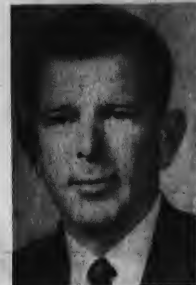

Adams and Middleton (circled) stood in the crowd outside their campaign headquarters and watched election returns being posted on the tally board.

Thoroughgood

Settlement Rejected

City Council disposed of the controversial Thoroughgood entrance problem at its regular meeting Monday, but the matter would appear to be as far from settled at present as it has ever been.

Council denied all efforts by residents of the area to have the entrance property rezoned from commercial to residential and at the same time rejected a complicated compromise plan drawn by Planning Director Patrick Standing and his staff and accepted for recommendation by the City Planning Commission.

But what the future holds is still not known. Civic league officers met briefly with their attorney Louis Fine immediately after the Council decision was announced. Later Fine said no decision on legal action had been made, but earlier the president of the league, Bailey Condrey said the residents were in a mood to take the case to the State Supreme Court if necessary.

The matter has been dragged out since last fall when the Thoroughgood Corp. first made its intentions known to build a service shopping center at the Thoroughgood entrance, which had previously been an open area. The land, however, had been zoned for commercial use in 1954, and was apparently so noted on all deeds to homeowners.

The residents maintained that the nature of the area had changed and there was no longer a need for more shopping area nearby. They took their case to City Council in a jammed meeting room, Council sent the matter to the planners. It was delayed for several months, while compromises were attempted.

The so-called Standing plan would have rezoned a small portion of the area and made the shopping center a separate unit because of closing one street. It also required the opening of a new entrance street and a property exchange.

Finally the residents generally agreed to the plan, but the corporation did not. When it reached Council Monday, Thoroughgood residents again filled the Council chamber. As in a melodrama, they applauded their attorney when he made a pertinent point. They hissed the opposing attorneys. And they grumbled loudly at the final action.

That action actually came as a surprise. Councilman Lawrence Marshall, himself a resident of Thoroughgood, noted the number of vulgar and abusive telephone calls he had received. He said he and his family were subjected to a steady stream of insults after the vote on the matter also.

The motion to do nothing was made by Vice Mayor Robert Cromwell, Marshall second it, and it was passed unanimously.

In other zoning matters that consumed better than two hours of Council's time an application of Donald Wayne Purcell for rezoning and a use permit for eight apartment units in the Croatan area that are in line with the accepted land-use study there was granted under the objection of residents and former Planning Director Mason Gamage. Gamage offered several changes to the land-use plan which he said the residents favored, but they were not acted on.

An application of Russell and Elsie Chaplain for a change of zoning and use permit to build a 50-unit motel in the False Cape area near the North Carolina line where the state is in the process of developing a state park was deferred for 90 days at the applicant's request.

The planning commission had recommended denial because of the lack of city services and because of spot zoning.

An application for 300 garden apartments at Green Run Planned Development was approved, although the School Board noted that existing schools could not handle the children that would be generated by this and other previously approved projects. Cromwell suggested Council look into the school situation there.

An application was also approved to build a new Colonial Store on marshland at 29th and Holly Road in Virginia Beach Borough. Present plans reportedly call for the driving of piles, concrete capping, then building the new store.

A use permit was also approved on application of Martin Dehaan for a new 50-unit motel east of Rudee Blvd. and Atlantic Avenue.

Robbery Attempt Foiled

Virginia Beach police detectives Joseph R. Shortal and Robert H. Meeks apprehended a suspect within 20 minutes of the Monday morning attempted holdup of the Princess Anne Plaza branch of the Virginia National Bank.

Officials identified the suspect as Gerald H. Helstrom, 19, whose address is listed as Elmira, N.Y.

According to authorities a man holding a paper bag approached a teller in the bank shortly before 11 a.m. and handed her a note demanding $2,000. The note reportedly contained words to the effect that this was a hold up, for the teller not to do anything foolish and that the man had a bomb in a paper bag he was holding.

Officials said the woman teller instead of complying with the man's demands turned to a male employee of the bank and called for help.

The holdup man then fled on foot carrying the bag with him. In reconstructing the crime officials said the would be hold up man fled across Virginia Beach Blvd. into a wooded area. (See "Robbery Attempt," p. 2)

Questions Arise About Etheridge

A few days before the Democratic primary Virginia Beach City Treas. V.A. "Jack" Etheridge, became the center of two controversies, which Etheridge called political attacks. Etheridge was William Battle's statewide precinct co-ordinator.

The first incident came when it was learned that Etheridge had never been assessed for or paid taxes on his beach home at False Cape which burned recently. The City Assessor, Bill Connell, said the matter had come to light during attempts to place a value on the old converted Coast Guard station after it had burned.

Etheridge

Connell, a political enemy of Etheridge, noted that he had intended to keep the matter quiet until after the primary. The story, however, leaked out.

Etheridge also has not paid taxes on a smaller cottage on the same property, left standing after the June 19 fire, which he says he is not sure he owns.

He has, on the other hand, paid taxes since 1964 on a house appraised at $900, but actually did not buy it until 1968. That house is now owned by Etheridge's brother.

How the mixup came that Etheridge was assessed for the $900 building, supposedly on a tract he did own is not certain, but at last report it appeared that the building in question was not the home that burned.

Etheridge claimed he did not consider the $900 assessment on the old station too low since he had purchased it for $1,250 and moved it to his property. He admitted that a number of improvements had been made. It was insured for $20,000.

Connell said he would assess the old station for the last three years and bill Etheridge.

Etheridge, who was out of town most of the week prior to the election called the entire matter a "political smear."

Even before the controversy was settled, another cropped up. A campaign co-chairman for State Sen. Henry Howell charged that Etheridge was apparently in conflict of interest in a series of land transactions concerning tax delinquent properties in the early 1960's.

Although he asked an explanation of the City Treasurer, Etheridge again called the charge "an 11-th hour attack for political purposes." He said he had never purchased any property sold at a tax sale.

Investigation by reliable sources, however, revealed that Etheridge had been a director of the P.A.C. Corp. along with his deputy C.E. Upton and attorney L. Charles Burlage. Their wives had also been officers of the company at one time.

Reports were published that stated at least two tax delinquent properties being sold directly to P.A.C. and two others sold at $50 over the original cost were sold to P.A.C. by W.C. Alibert, whom Etheridge said he believed was related to Upton's wife.

In another transaction that was investigated, records indicated Burlage sold another tax delinquent tract for which he was receiver to P.A.C.

Only a few days before the election, candidate for the House of Delegates Bruce Murphy questioned the propriety of Etheridge being connected with the candidacy of Rhane Adams and B.R. Middleton in light of all the allegations. He suggested that the two should seek and accept his resignation from their campaign organization. Nothing more was heard from this suggestion.

At no time did Battle comment directly on the charges against Etheridge.

Beach Safety Questioned

A complete report was presented to City Council Monday by the Committee to Aid Water Safety, a study group made up of a few persons in Virginia Beach who say they are concerned over the safety of the beaches in the city.

In fact the substance of their report was to be held with city officials Wednesday afternoon as the result of the report.

Specific proposals included separating the lifeguard service from the rental service, since Bollman said a time and motion study he made showed too often guards were preoccupied with rental transactions.

Other criticisms included inadequate rescue devices, difficulty in recognizing lifeguards or supervisory personnel, inadequate communication facilities and lack of training. Bollman said the only way a rescue squad can be reached is by telephone, and that one guard he asked did not know where the nearest phone was or the number of the squad.

Bollman added that the concern had come about following "two drownings" this year on protected beaches.

The operators of the beach service and lifeguard service said a sand bar offshore has caused many problems this year, but added there have been more rescues made this year also because of the additional tourists.

W. H. Kitchen, Jr., one of the principals, said that the lifeguards receive full and complete training, and that rental transactions are usually handled by assistants.

He did not comment further on the charges.

(See "Safety," p. 2)

School Accounts Balance

The Virginia Beach School Board came close to breaking even on the 1968-69 budget of $19,132,000. They wound up the fiscal year June 30 with a surplus of only $3,500.

No major business came before the School Board Tuesday except the election of officers. J. W. Buffington, who was not at the meeting, was re-elected vice chairman for one year term as required by state law. A reorganizational meeting is held at the beginning of each fiscal year. H. S. Abernathy was re-elected clerk and School Supt. E. E. Brickell, deputy clerk.

The School Board formally accepted the deed to a 40-acre school site on North Landing Road which was given to the School Administration several months ago by Beach Interstate Associates. The School Board plans to use the site for the vocational-technical high school when it is built and for an elementary school sometime in the future.

Miss Louise Luxford, director of instructional personnel, reported that all vacancies have been filled except for two specialized positions for which there are no applicants. One is for a psychologist and another is for a teacher for trainable retarded children.

Mrs. Reva Kelberg, a board member, was reappointed to be the City's representative to the Hampton Roads educational television network.

The board adjourned to enjoy a party given in honor of Mrs. Emma Hairston who retired June 30 after 37 years in the Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County school system. She was presented a framed resolution of appreciation by the School Board. In addition she was given an engraved Revere bowl by the school administrators and elementary supervisors. Mrs. Hairston, formerly a teacher and principal at Sealeak Elementary School, was an elementary supervisor before she became coordinator of cultural activities, a federally funded position to provide cultural enrichment for culturally deprived children.

School Supt. E. E. Brickell presents a hand-lettered resolution of appreciation to Mrs. Emma Hairston, who retired after 37 years.

and emerged about a half mile from the bank.

It was at this location where Shortal and Meeks reportedly apprehended their suspect on the basis of a description of the man as supplied by bank employees.

Authorities said Helstrom was then taken to Virginia Beach police headquarters and turned over to agents from the Norfolk FBI Office. Officials said Helstrom was placed in a police lineup at headquarters and was identified by the woman teller and other bank employees as the man who attempted the holdup.

Monday afternoon Helstrom had a hearing before U.S. Magistrate Gilbert R. Swink, Jr. on a federal charge of attempted bank robbery and was placed under $15,000 bond. Last reports indicated Helstrom was still in custody of the U.S. Marshal's office, in lieu of bond, pending an appearance before a U.S. District Judge.

The committee also asked that Croatan be set aside as a surfing area, as had been originally planned by city officials until residents objected strenuously. Part of the objection concerned ownership of the beaches, which City Manager Roger Scott now says has been resolved.

There is speculation that the Croatan area may yet be designated as a surfing area, following meetings of the committee, with city officials.

In other action Council received $584,906 from the School Board that was received over and above last year's needs, but then re-appropriated $125,000 to the School Board for completion of construction projects at Creeds and Seaboard elementary schools and for completion of the stadium at Kempsville High School.

Council adopted an ordinance for the issuance of $2 million in water and sewer bonds, and adopted a resolution seeking to secure a federal building for Virginia Beach.

An ordinance was also adopted banning parking of campers and recreational equipment on streets or in driveways, but removed the sidewalk restrictions which had been previously objected to by owners of such equipment. The matter received no additional discussion and was passed quickly and unanimously.

Scott was also authorized to enter into a contract with Talbot and Associates for an engineering and design study of Rosemont Road from Virginia Beach Blvd. to Holland Road, similar to the one already underway on South Lynnhaven Road.

THE BEACH THIS WEEK

Rash of Break-Ins

Police are investigating at least 12 break-ins which occurred in Virginia Beach last weekend. Nearly $4,500 was reported taken in cash, assorted personal effects, household goods and merchandise. Six private homes were reported broken into, with the largest loss reported during a break-in of the William O. Burns home on Downey Drive where thieves made off with an estimated $1,500 in cash. The largest loss in three business firm break-ins was reported at the Western Auto Store, 600 block Virginia Beach Blvd. Officials said merchandise valued at $2,075, including an assortment of rifles, ammunition, radios, television sets and radio-tape players, were taken from the firm. Small amounts of cash were reported taken during break-ins of the Woodstock Elementary and Bayside High Schools, the Bayside Baptist Church, Thalia Lynn Baptist Church and Thalia Methodist Church.

Woman Drowns

Accidental drowning has been ruled as cause of death of Mrs. Molly Lee Lantosca, 55, who police said was discovered in a private pool at the home of Dr. Craig W. Morris in the 1500 block of Little Horse Shoe Drive last Friday evening. Police quoted Mrs. Morris with saying Mrs. Lantosca, along with the Michael D. Suiters, was visiting at her home when the accident occurred. Mrs. Morris said that Mrs. Lantosca indicated she was going to her home across the street for her bathing suit. After a few minutes Suiters said he was returning to the pool area for his cigarettes and discovered Mrs. Lantosca in the pool. Officials said Suiters' attempts to revive Mrs. Lantosca until the Virginia Beach Rescue Squad arrived were to no avail, and she was pronounced dead at Virginia Beach Hospital.

Suffolk Man Charged

A 25-year-old Suffolk man has been charged by Virginia Beach police with grand larceny and embezzlement. Officials said Johnnie Ray Roberts, Plinner Street, Suffolk, has been charged in connection with the theft last May of $2,479 from the Burger Chef restaurant at Chinese Corner. According to authorities Roberts was arrested Monday in Dare County, N.C., where he was just recently employed at the Nags Head Casino. Roberts was returned to Virginia Beach Tuesday night.

Drug Arrests Made

Four more arrests have been made in the city of Virginia Beach on violations of State drug laws. Police said they have charged William C. Stanclil, 19, General Street, with illegal possession of narcotics; Oussama F. Fieflieh, 21, USS Forrestal, with illegal possession of narcotics; Patrick A. Wagel, 20, of Pleasure House Road, with illegal possession of narcotics and dangerous drugs; and William K. McDonald, 25, of Rudee Avenue, with illegal possession of dangerous drugs. According to authorities Wagel and McDonald were arrested last weekend, while the Stanclil and Fieflieh arrests were made Tuesday night. Court appearance is pending for all four suspects.

Diver Drowns

A 45 year old Alexandria, Va., man drowned last Sunday in Chesapeake Bay while on a scuba diving expedition. Officials identified him as Lloyd H. Berger. According to investigators, Berger's body was found floating on the surface of waters off the Baltimore Channel north island about 45 minutes after he entered the water wearing his diving gear. Berger was among a group of about 15 scuba divers who had chartered a boat "The Diver" from the Lynnhaven Waterways Marina earlier Sunday morning for the trip into Chesapeake Bay. An investigation ruled Berger's death was the result of accidental drowning.

Navy Man Charged

A Navy enlisted man stationed at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base is scheduled to enter Virginia Beach court charged with the armed robbery of William E. Harris at his grocery store this week. Officials said the suspect, identified as Loren E. Smith, 19, was apprehended in Norfolk within 17 minutes after the reported armed robbery of Harris' grocery store at the intersection of Princess Anne and Salem roads. Harris said he was robbed of $22 by a man who came into the store and demanded, at pistol point, that he hand over his cash receipts. The description of the man and the car he used to flee the scene led to the apprehension of Smith minutes later in Norfolk.

Suspect Arrested

Police Det. Sgt. E. F. Buzzy says another arrest has been made in connection with the 4th of July attack on three women and two men as the group were on a holiday outing to a lonely stretch of beach off the 2900 block of Shore Drive.

Buzzy says he has charged Michael Hyman, 19, of Olds Lane, Virginia Beach, with rape in the crime. Two other men were earlier reported arrested during investigation of the crime. Court appearance is pending for all three suspects in the case.

Investigators said one of the women was raped during the attack. Rape was attempted on the other two women and both men were beaten by the assailants.

have to share his kingly throne with an imperiously demanding and squalling infant.

Jane Garrison will have the role of his middle-aged wife who regards the new situation joyously, though she has a lot of difficulty getting her crochety husband adjusted to it. Elektra Lobel and Blane Walker will portray their grown-up daughter and son-in-law, and others in the cast are James Cade, Oliver Lewis and Terri Reed. Timothy L. Jones is directing.

Sunday dinner and performances at the Lake Wright Playhouse will be at the same time as regular weekdays, beginning Sunday evening, July 19.

Municipal Court Judge P.B. White has continued until Aug. 15 court proceedings resulting from the recent showing of the movie "I Am Curious (Yellow)" at the Star-Twin Indoor Theater.

Police officials on the night of July 1 charged theater owner Kenneth W. Andrews and manager Calvin T. Gray with violation of the state statute covering the showing of an obscene movie, and confiscated the film, moments after the final showing.

During last Friday's court hearing on the case, Judge White again denied a defense motion that the film be returned to the theater pending the outcome of legal proceedings. White also denied a defense motion to dismiss the charges on grounds that the affidavit on the search warrant, issued for the July 1 proceedings by police, wasn't sufficient grounds to confiscate the film since that affidavit was based on the opinion of only one person--namely a police officer who after viewing the film felt portions of the movie constituted an obscenity.

Judge White also requested defense and prosecution attorneys to submit a summary of past judicial rulings in similar cases, which thus far have been referred to in hearings regarding "I Am Curious (Yellow)". Indications are this request was made from White to allow him to clarify how such previous rulings might affect his decision on the case.

became the 14th longest-running play in Broadway history to that time, will open at Norfolk's Equity Professional theatre, the Lake Wright Playhouse this evening.

Lake Wright will kick off the new show with a traditional Hawaiian Luau prepared by a new kitchen staff and new food manager. Pretty girls and handsome young men will greet the Playhouse's guests with kisses and leis. The second in a series of "special" nights, the Lake Wright Playhouse plans one every week.

"Never Too Late," by Sumner Arthur Long, details the hilarious upheavals that come into the lives of an average small-town family when a belated Blessed Event looms for them 20 years after any new Bundle from Heaven might be expected.

Gonzalo Madurga, who received critical praise for his performance in "Black Comedy" will be seen as a sixtyish husband who is devastated at the news that he will no longer have peace and quiet in his home, as well as undisputed power to have his whims satisfied, and that he will soon

Art Show Opens Today

Artists exhibiting during the 14th annual Boardwalk Art Show will compete for $2,800 worth of prizes and awards, the greatest amount ever offered by the show.

The show will be held July 17-21 along a mile of the Boardwalk. During its run, the art show will open at 10 a.m. and close at 5 p.m. daily, except for Sunday when it will close at 8 p.m.

Judges are William Bendig, editor and publisher of "The Art Gallery," and painter Ida Kohlmeier. The major award to be offered is the $1,000 Best-in-Show Purchase Award. Last years awards and prizes totalled $2,675.

The awards presentation will take place at 2 p.m. Saturday, July 19, in front of the Bel Harbor Motel, 13th Street, Virginia Beach. Prior to the presentation a concert will be given by the band from the Navy School of Music, Naval Amphibious Base, Little Creek, Va.

This year 403 artists will be exhibiting during the show. Sales in 1968 totalled more than $80,000.

Pond Appointed To Vepco Here

The Virginia Electric and Power Company today announced the appointment of R. G. Pond as assistant district sales manager at Virginia Beach, effective Aug. 1.

Pond, a native of Siler City, N.C., joined Vepco in 1962. He is presently sales engineer at Norfolk.

Lions Install Officers

At its recent Ladies Night Meeting which was held at the Fort Story Officer's Club, the Bayside Lions Club installed H. Bates Reese as president for the 1969-70 year.

The following Lions were also installed: First Vice-President, Sam Martinette; Second Vice-President, Bill Fulford; Third Vice-President, Bill Towers; Secretary, Sid Askew; Treasurer, Hal Mahler; Lion Tamer, Joe Aikman; Tailtwister, Phil Stadler; 1 year Directors, "Mac" Wilkins and "Kelly" Davis; 2 Year Directors, Allen Raines and Malcolm Nock.

The club was honored by the presence of Edward (Moon) Kosjer, newly elected District Governor for District 24-D, who performed the installation ceremony. Other honored guests present were Past District Gov. Lewis Dillon and Past Deputy District Gov. John Wood, who presented 100% attendance pins to a large number of the club members.

Several Lions received pins for 100% attendance for longer periods. Three of the club's Charter Members were awarded pins for 18 years perfect attendance: George Lyon, "Mac" Wilkins and Gene Caldwell. Fred Russell received a pin for 20 years perfect attendance, part of which was with the Ocean View Lions Club.

"Kelly" Davis was awarded the club's annual "Lion of the Year" Award, a handsome bronze plaque, for his outstanding work throughout the year—especially for his fine work in heading up the Bayside Joy Fund.

After the business was concluded the Bayside Lions, their ladies and honored guests were entertained by units of the International Dance Studio, under the direction of Tom Davis.

Bicycle Thefts Fought Marines Have Command Change

Virginia Beach police are taking steps to curtail the increasing number of bicycle thefts occurring in the city.

According to officials a strict enforcement will be made of the city ordinance requiring all bicycles in the city to be registered. This is accomplished by obtaining a bicycle license from the city treasurer's office for the fee of one dollar. This fee will provide the owner with a decal license to be attached to the bicycle, and provides official registration of the bicycle's make, color and serial number to assist in locating the proper owner in the event the bicycle is ever lost or stolen.

A second step in the enforcement program requires shops in the city handling the purchase and/or sale of second hand bicycles to file weekly reports of such transactions with the police department, thus providing a more permanent recording of such transactions to assist in the tracing of stolen bicycles.

Officials also said they will begin strict enforcement of the bicycle registration regulation, and point out that violators of the ordinance could make themselves subject to a $10 fine.

Claiborne R. Hicks Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Claiborne R. Hicks Sr., Pinehurst Point, will participate in the Apollo 11 lunar landing mission. He is chief of the flight operations advanced planning office in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston.

With the passing of the unit color during a change of command ceremony June 30, Lt. Col. Richard L. Etter turned over the command of Headquarters and Service Battalion, Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic, to Lt. Col. William H. Davis, Jr.

Lt. Col. Etter was presented a Certificate of Commendation by Lt. Gen. Richard Weede, Force Commander, during the ceremony for the colonel's performance as battalion commander since last June.

Col. Etter has been reassigned to the staff of the Commander, Amphibious Force Atlantic, at the Naval Amphibious Base, Little Creek, Va.

Teens to Learn Auto Mechanics

The Department of Parks and Recreation is offering another new course for the teens this summer.

Automobile Mechanics will begin on Wednesday, July 23 at Holt Buick. Karl Carr will instruct the teens in basic mechanics. Any interested teen should contact the Recreation Department as soon as possible.

Lt. Col. Davis reported to FMFLant headquarters in July of last year and was assigned as Commanding Officer of the Battalion's Headquarters Company. He was reassigned as battalion Executive Officer last November.

Col. Davis is the son of Mrs. Marie A. Davis of Baltimore, Md. He is married to the former Florence M. Hilmer of Pittsburgh, Pa., and they have four children: Joy, 16; Denise, 12; Dawn, 10; and William, 8. They live at Palute Rd. in Virginia Beach.

Independence—Primary Result

The people of Virginia Beach did not turn out in large enough numbers on election day, but those who did made their choice known quite clearly.

Their choice of newcomer Richard Guy to head the Democratic slate for the House of Delegates is particularly pleasing, since Guy maintained a complete independence from any political faction in the city. He conducted an effective and clean campaign, which netted him the most votes of the four candidates. Now it is up to the voters to elect him in November in the same spirit.

Incumbent B. R. "Bev" Middleton also was nominated, however narrowly over the other newcomer Independent, Bruce Murphy. He also has our support for election in November as a nominee of the Democratic Party.

It is particularly significant, however, that the highly organized precinct work and tremendous amount of money spent was not enough to elect Rhae Adams and almost not enough to squeak Middleton through. Perhaps it could be becoming evident that the voters are tiring of factionalism and machine politics in favor of Independent thinking.

Murphy is also to be commended on his splendid showing in his first political race.

In the gubernatorial race the narrow victory of William Battle over Henry Howell was surprising, but could have been caused in part by those who supported Battle here. Howell is certainly a formidable candidate, as has now been clearly shown, and the Battle-Howell campaign of the next five weeks may well tell the story of the November election.

The overwhelming choice of Sargeant Reynolds in the Lt.

Governor's race was not particularly surprising in view of the young State Senator's independence of other candidates, coupled with the new-found independence of Virginia Beach voters.

The Bernard Levin win in the Attorney General race was probably a giant "thank you" from Virginia Beach for his help in getting liquor-by-the-drink. But regardless of how it came about he was not successful statewide, although his opponent, Andrew Miller, who supposedly enjoyed wide support in Virginia Beach, is in the runoff.

Miller received tacit support from the Battle folks here and ran third in a four-way race.

The trends in this election seem clear: Voters are feeling more and more independent-minded, and they no longer like big politics. This should be a serious lesson for elections to come.

Cool Heads Prevail

Congratulations are in order for City Council on the action taken Monday concerning the Thoroughgood entrance.

Regardless of the eventual outcome of the matter, legal or otherwise, Council chose a wise course in staying out of something it should never have allowed itself to be drawn into in the first place.

The residents of Thoroughgood who attended were often rude and did not respect the Mayor's gavel. Bayside Councilman Larry Marshall has been subjected to much abuse in the matter, which seems most indelicate.

If the matter can be solved out of court, that is fine. But if it cannot, perhaps the courts can stand rudeness and abuse.

To Clear the Air

Politically motivated or not, the allegations concerning Mr. V. A. Etheridge and purchase of tax delinquent land, either directly or indirectly, need looking into. He is the Virginia Beach City Treasurer and he is a key campaign worker for gubernatorial aspirant, William Battle.

Any charges of conflict of interest should not be so easily dismissed as a "smear" or "political attack". If there is no substance to any of the charges made against him recently, he should be the first to want his name cleared entirely. If there is really some involvement, the people of Virginia Beach and Virginia are entitled to know about it.

Actually we still feel Etheridge should initiate the investigation, but since he apparently won't, someone charged with responsibility in these matters should.

Dismal Airport

What seems to be the trouble with Norfolk officials anyway? Two highly-respected citizens of that city are trying to make officials see the importance of a totally new airport in a new location that will serve all of Tidewater in the future. But they can't get anywhere.

Could it be those officials are committed to a bad plan at Norfolk Regional already? And that they don't know how to get out of it?

The proposed Dismal Swamp airport that could be expandable to international status would be more than acceptable to all of Tidewater and to the airlines as well. And it would serve the needs of the more distant future.

The Norfolk Regional plan won't serve long, and officials know it. It's not too late to try out the reverse gear and to serve all of us. Wouldn't it be a good idea to listen to Messrs. Hogan and MacKethan.

'NOW LOOK HERE, LITTLE MAN --'

Censorship

Editor's note: The following letter was received too late to be included in last week's edition, although it concerns the SUN SURVEY question of July 3, regarding the banning and confiscation of the film "I Am Curious (Yellow)" in Virginia Beach.

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN:

It's hard to say when I know so little about the film, but I realize that the question here is should officials in Virginia Beach have taken action when no one else felt it necessary.

Or possibly when no other community bothered.

If Virginia Beach officials did in fact find the movie obscene I feel they should have taken legal action against the showing of the film. I might ask this question. Do the citizens of this community trust the judgment of the officials in Virginia Beach enough to have them decide what movies should or should not be shown in local theaters?

Actually I do not find the new rating system for movies completely satisfactory because what is obscene for one person is quite beautiful to another. I suppose this puts the primary responsibility on the individual. You have to decide for yourself if you feel the ratings are too strict or too lenient, or come close to fitting your own personal rating system.

It's distasteful to most people to pay the often high price of a movie only to find it what they consider obscene. Quite a few people seem to have found an alternative that may cause movie producers some concern. They just don't go at all. In this way they miss "the good, the bad and the ugly" altogether. Special Report

Round Two Coming Up

Round one is over. It was known as the Democratic Primary. Round two comes up on Aug. 19. It is known as the Democratic primary runoff.

As predicted there will be runoff contests for the gubernatorial and Attorney General nominations. This was almost a certainty from the very beginning, especially in the four-way Attorney General race.

But William Battle almost pulled it off. He kept up his confident approach campaigning right to the end, saying he could win it without a runoff. The voters proved him wrong and now Mr. Battle is rightfully worried.

Norfolk State Sen. Henry Howell, enigma that he is in politics, managed to poll almost as many votes as Battle, forcing the runoff. Lt. Gov. Fred Pollard was a disappointing third.

Howell proved his strength does not lie in Tidewater alone, with any one race, with any income group or with any type of employee. He proved that his stamina stood him in excellent stead across Virginia. He proved that lots of little people in the Old Dominion want to keep the big boys honest, like he does. He proved to be a most formidable opponent, much to the shock of some political analysts who are still scratching their heads in disbelief.

Many believe Howell, perhaps with a few Republicans to help out, can beat Battle in the runoff. Then many also believe he can beat Linwood Holton in the fall regardless of the way Virginia usually votes. Many look to Howell as the redeemer of the national Democratic Party in Virginia. For those skeptics who say it can't happen, please see Howell's statewide tally in the primary. No predictions are being made here. Just thinking out loud.

Of course it is more likely that Howell is similar to the quarter-horse in a half-mile race. He comes on extremely strong in the first quarter, but drops back into oblivion in the second quarter.

To carry the horse race analogy a little further, the odds are good on Mr. Battle right now, but a lot could depend on the next five weeks of campaigning.

Whether the general public can stand the frantic pace set by Howell that long and the matter-of-fact pace set by Battle at all in the all-important run for all the marbles is doubtful.

Probably both will adopt a little of the other's strategy in the weeks to come. Battle must get a bit more forceful and Howell must calm down a bit.

Sargeant Reynolds is home free without a runoff for the Lt. Governor's nomination, and he is wisely staying out of the runoff entirely. He doesn't have to get in. He can just relax and wait.

Not so in the race for the Attorney General nomination. Taking sides may be the only way out. And if it comes to that, Battle has an edge. It is doubtful that Guy Farley could go from Pollard to Howell, or from right to left as it were. The trip wouldn't be as far for Andrew Miller, but he has ridden the middle-of-the-road well so far, as has Battle. If both can avoid side-taking and run on their own merits, they must find some issues to campaign on. The issues were lacking in the primary. No one is willing to predict this one either, particularly since Farley did so well, and his running mates did so poorly.

Pollard, who proved the people don't give a hang about experience in state government and that they could care less about seeing his half-hour TV program blitz, becomes an anachronism. He came along at the wrong time. At any time in Virginia history he would have been a shoe-in to the Governor's chair. But this is the age of independence and time to call for a change, right or not. Mr. Pollard is a victim of circumstances. His leadership in state government will be sorely missed.

Let us remember that round number two is still only part of the preliminary. Round three is the main event. And KO in the fall election means a shakeup in Richmond the likes of which haven't been seen in this century. Round two is important and Democrats across Virginia had best get together in that one, or round three may be a bloody mess.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"Now aren't you glad it's over?" he asked. "Doesn't he look like a boy now at last?"

"Yes, I suppose he does," she conceded. "But somehow or other he doesn't seem like a baby any more."

"No," he asked. "That's funny. He still uses enough diapers every day and he can't walk yet and still drinks his bottles lovingly. That sort of makes him seem like a baby to me."

"You've made your point," she said. "But the first hair-

Nothing to all this. I'm bored.

fall asleep. He looked terribly bored."

"I was just a little upset," she said. "He was supposed to act like other kids the first time in a barber chair. . . ranting, raving and so forth."

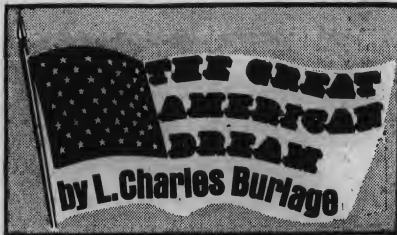

"I explained it to him," he said. "I told him it was necessary and important to show his virility. So he withstood it well."

So that's called a clipper, huh?

"Do you really think he understood?" she asked. "Oh, by the way I saved those long blonde ringlets that were on the back of his head. I'm going to send your mother and my mother some."

"Save some for us too," he said. "For our old age."

"Why, I believe you're getting sentimental," she said. "Don't tell anybody," he said.

The three most significant forms of government in existence on this earth for the past 100 years have been nazism or facism, communism and the republican form of government or representative democracy.

Facism and nazism are essentially the same form of government. Although state ownership of all real property and means of production was not a part of the program, which rather favored an alliance with private enterprise to foster the capitalistic order, yet the state reserved the right to intervene wherever it decided private initiative was proving incapable, or when political interests were at stake.

Communism is a system of government which pays lip service to democracy and parliamentary procedures, but in fact is against both.

A republic such as America belongs to and exists for the benefit of the people.

The interesting fact about these three forms of government is how each blends into the other in a continuous circle. In order to understand the above statement, picture a circle which is divided into three pie-shaped equal portions. In one section insert the words "representative democracy", traveling in a clockwise direction, insert the word "communism" in the next section, and continuing in the same clockwise direction, insert the word "facism" in the last section. Having drawn the circle, as you look at the section marked "representative democracy" which section for the purpose of this illustration should be on the bottom of the circle nearest you, then the section marked "communism" should be to the left of the "representative democracy" section, and the section marked "facism" should be to the right of the "representative democracy" section.

To illustrate the cyclical nature of the three systems of government place the circle in such a manner as to locate the "representative democracy" section nearest you. Consider then, the various blends of political thinking in America. The liberal, the moderate and the conservative, or stated in another manner, the left, the center and the right. The left is closest to the section marked "communism" and the right is closest to the section marked "facism". A "far out" liberal if he becomes radical enough, crosses in a clockwise fashion into that section marked "communism".

Under a right wing communist system, the "favored few" have wealth and material available to them in vast amounts. In short, if one travels to the right far enough under communism, he enters that section of the circle marked "facism" and becomes a right wing facist of the type of Adolph Hitler or Benito Mussolini. As the political trip continues in a clockwise fashion around the circumference of the circle, we make-believe traveler would soon become a liberal facist. If he became liberal enough, he would soon leave the facist section and become a conservative or far right citizen of a democratic

R. T. (Dickie) Munford, attached to the city's Animal Control Bureau, was honored during a special ceremony Wednesday at the Princess Anne Courthouse Volunteer Fire Dept. Munford was presented with a gold pin denoting that he has given 12 gallons of blood in the Red Cross blood donor program.

Members of the Davis Corner Volunteer Rescue Squad this week received a donation from the management of the Holiday Inn on Northampton Blvd., which is located in the area served by the Squad. The donation, which was money which had been tossed into the wishing well in the lobby of the Inn, was in appreciation to men of the Squad for their service to residents of the area.

Four more Virginia Beach police officers have completed training at the Tidewater Police Academy at Old Dominion College. Those who graduated this week included officers E. J. Bray, D. E. Mitchell, H. T. Padrick and B. D. Zelms.

Examiners in the Virginia Beach office of the Department of Motor Vehicles tell us one lady motorist made an unusual use of the office camera when she renewed her drivers license. While preparing to have her photo made, a necessary step under the issuing of recently revised operators permits, the lady was dissatisfied with the appearance of her hair. Discovering she was without a mirror in her purse she unhesitatingly stepped up close to the camera and went about her hairdressing chore by make-up of her reflection off the lens of the camera. We understand she was also quite pleased with the resulting photo.

Men of the Princess Anne Plaza Volunteer Fire & Rescue Dept. staged a family picnic and beach outing last Sunday for members of the department. We understand there was plenty of food for everyone and that "a good time was had by all" who attended. Officer F. R. Scarborough, who is a member of the squad assigned to duty on the two Virginia Beach police patrol boats, received an unexpected honor this past week. Scarborough was duly appointed an "Admiral of the Hampton Navy". We have been told by authoritative sources at the 2nd Police Precinct, to which Scarborough is attached, that his appointment however will in no way affect his patrol rank which has been classified as "Coxswain".

Dropouts Eligible For GI Bill

High school dropouts who enter the service may return to get their diploma under the GI Bill, according to E. P. Brosnan, manager of the Roanoke Veterans Administration Regional Office.

The VA will pay veterans up to $130 a month (if single and they are full-time students more if they have dependents). Those attending adult evening school may not be paid more than a half-time rate.

These payments will not reduce their college or on-the-job training benefits, Brosnan said.

A number of colleges and universities have embarked on new programs for returning veterans who do not possess a diploma but desire a higher education.

republic. Thus, by travelling always to the left in a clockwise fashion, our traveller would wind up where he started.

It becomes clearer when one considers the circle that in order to preserve a republic, a country needs an active liberal, moderate and conservative group of citizens. When a country moves too far to the left, the moderates and conservatives join forces against the liberals, and vice versa. This happened nationally with Nixon's election and locally in Norfolk with William Whitehurst's election.

Political Races

Etheridge was Battle's precinct coordinator statewide, and was praised by Battle on election night. Battle's victory in Virginia Beach, narrow as it was, was considered a major one, especially since Pollard polled so few votes. Observers say this reflects the swing to the middle-of-the-road by city voters.

But the Howell near-miss was also considered. Howell campaigned little in Virginia Beach but still won 11 of the city's 26 precincts. Battle captured 14, and Pollard won only one, Virginia Beach Borough, No. 1.

Thoughts now turn to the runoff primary only five weeks away on Aug. 19, when Battle and Howell meet head-on in a clash that is expected to give

Pilot Program for 4th & 5th Graders

Camp Provides 'Painless' Education

By Carolyn McAllen

One group practiced the back stroke in the pool while two other groups counted bugs and painted.

If you think the scene is some far off summer camp, you're wrong. It's right here in Virginia Beach and some 1,600 children will participate in the free camping program before the summer is over.

Formally labeled the Tri-Outdoor Education Program, the camp is a pilot program jointly sponsored by the School Administration and the Parks and Recreation Department to introduce fourth and fifth graders to nature. One of the main purposes of the camp is to teach the children water safety.

The site of the program is the now defunct Playland Park on Salem Road near Kempsville which is being sub-leased by the City for $150 a week. It includes a swimming pool, several shelters and one building which is used for rainy-day activities.

Children attend three-hours a day for one week. There are two sessions a day. Children are scheduled according to the school they attend, and transportation is provided by school buses. Every fourth grader in the city was given the opportunity to enroll. When enrollments did not meet the maximum, fifth graders were also invited. The camp, which will be operated 10 weeks, is averaging about 160 children a week.

In the three-hour sessions the children each day have swimming, nature and science and arts and crafts.

"We think they learn more from being out of the formal atmosphere of classes," commented Jim Spencer of the Parks and Recreation Department. "They're learning through their senses."

That is a brief summation of the stated objectives of the camp which are: To enrich, vitalize and complement the content areas of the school curriculum by first-hand observation and participation. Outdoor teaching is an attempt to improve instruction. We need to do a better job of teaching youngsters to observe by looking, smelling, listening and touching. Direct experience learning needs to be added to our curriculum to improve upon the artificial atmosphere.

Water safety and swimming is especially important since many of the children were not taught swimming last winter in the fourth grade program. Although fourth graders are usually bussed into Norfolk for swimming classes, the YMCA pool was closed part of last winter for repairs and the schedule was crowded the rest of the time.

"Whether there is advancement in learning to swim is questionable," said Spencer, "but they learn pool etiquette, get their faces wet, learn basic safety. Some do learn to swim, but five hours is a short time. We'd like to extend it to two weeks so they would become self sufficient in swimming."

Swimmers are divided into beginners, advanced beginners and intermediate. The ratio of children to instructors is ten to one. "We stress things that are an advantage to them in water such as safety and survival. Those that don't learn to swim learn to float. It's strictly instruction. There's no free

On stormy days (unless there is lightning the children swim in the rain) swimming classes move into the activity building for movies on boating and water safety.

In the nature classes the children pursue wildlife while armed with homemade nets made from nylon hose and wire, sticks, etc. They compete for points in the number of specimens they collect. Receiving points are mushrooms, leaves, insects, wildflowers, ferns and mosses. The children receive instruction then take hikes on the several trails in the area. Later they compare collections.

"The girls even learn to pick up bugs and frogs without flinching," said Spencer.

The children learn to reproduce what they see around them by using a number of art media such as crayons, charcoal, paints, India ink and water (See 'Nature' p. 7)

Lotus bloom each July in Tabernacle Creek.

Lotus Festival Continues

The 15th Annual Lotus Festival sponsored by Cape Henry Woman's Club is underway after the official opening Wednesday night with the Lotus Ball at the Cavalier Beach and Cabana Club.

There will be a band concert at 8 p.m. Friday at the Norwegian Lady, 25th and Oceanfront, by the U.S. Atlantic Fleet Band.

Next on the agenda is Woman's Club Day on Monday. All woman's club members are invited to bring a covered dish to the picnic grounds adjacent to the Lotus Gardens for a picnic luncheon.

Every day the gardens are open to view and boat tours are offered. The lotus blooms are now at their peak.

Tabernacle Creek is the home of one of the few remaining stands of native American lotus in the United States. The festival is co-sponsored by the U.S. Department of Conservation.

American lotus differ from Oriental lotus in that they are yellow while the Oriental variety are pink or white. Oriental lotus are sacred in both the Hindu and Buddhist religions.

American lotus transplanted to Japan first produced white blooms. Then, when water conditions were made equivalent to their natural habitat, the blooms became yellow again.

Insurance Women Elect

The Insurance Women of Virginia Beach elected officers in a general meeting held June 23.

Those officers elected were: Mrs. Ruby Ann Dunn, president; Mrs. Pat A. Stott, vice president; Mrs. Lillian D. Entsmger, treasurer; Mrs. Marge A. Lehner, secretary; and Mrs. Peggy Roberts, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Martha Lee Densmore agreed to serve the clubs as Parliamentarian for another term.

The club is in its third year and is a member of the National Association of Insurance Women (International). Their aim is to further fellowship and education in the insurance field.

The Insurance Women of Virginia Beach will resume their regular meetings in September. The chapter invites anyone in the insurance field to join. Further information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Ruby Ann Dunn at 427-2900 or 428-7876.

In arts and crafts the children work with a variety of media.

Child Development Center

She Wants Community Support for It

By Yatta Jones

One of the biggest supporters of the Pre-Headstart program is Mrs. Carole von Wallmenich, secretary at St. Aidan's Episcopal Church.

Mrs. von Wallmenich has been involved with the program since St. Aidan's, whose pastor is the Rev. Robert Newland, became the location for one of the three Virginia Beach Child Development Centers; that was in September, 1966.

At that time Mrs. von Wallmenich was overall volunteer coordinator of the church's communities commission. A study was made of community needs, and the Pre-Headstart centers were just beginning to open. The study proved that there was a need for such a center here and, knowing that this would be one way to effectively put the church building to use during the week, they asked for a center to be located at St. Aidan's.

Mrs. von Wallmenich had only been in Virginia Beach a year and a half when the Child Development Center opened. Her husband, a technical writer for ITT, had been transferred here from New Jersey. In addition to the time and work Mrs. von Wallmenich put into the Center, she became church secretary two years ago.

Between her family (the von Wallmenichs have two boys, 14 and 11 and two girls, 5 and 3) and job, plus her work with the Center, Mrs. von Wallmenich doesn't have much time for her hobbies, which she lists as the beach, reading and writing for her own personal satisfaction.

Mrs. von Wallmenich, who says about the Pre-Headstart program, "It sounded pretty important... it was too worthwhile to leave... there was too much hope and promise in this ...," has a dream about the Center—she would like to see it become completely community supported.

The Center at St. Aidan's is (See 'Center' p. 8)

Mrs. Carole von Wallmenich keeps a watchful eye on the children's playground activity. Learning to communicate with each other is a large part of the Pre-Headstart program.

An Old Friend Bites the Dust

The washing machine died.

Unfortunately, it was a slow and somewhat messy death. It had been in ill health for several months.

First it wouldn't spin. It took three repairmen three trips out to our house to come to the conclusion that it would cost more to fix it than it was worth. So we started wringing out clothes by hand so they would be dry enough for the dryer.

That wasn't too bad after the first few blisters and calluses built up on your hands. Then last week it gave up entirely. My husband (conveniently home on vacation) opened the washer to take out the clothes and it was still completely full of water. He bailed it out by the painful and finally conceded that we would have to get a new washer.

It was sad, really, to see the old friend go. After all, it had been a faithful member of the family for nearly nine years and had survived three children through their infant years.

The new machine was eagerly awaited Monday. Unfortunately, we got a call from the store on Saturday saying that the last one in stock like we wanted had been sold a few minutes before we ordered ours. The salesman hadn't known at the time. He didn't know when a new shipment would be in, but it was due any day.

Well, the underwear and pajama situation became critical on Sunday, so I spent Sunday afternoon at the laundramat. I'm just hoping we can survive until the washer does arrive.

That wasn't the only alternative, however. The store offered to let me bring my wash in and use the demonstrator model. I can just see walking into a busy store carrying a basket of dirty clothes and trailed by three kids bearing their dirty underwear.

There's one bright note. If the new one lasts as long as the old one, the kids will be old enough to take their own clothes to the laundramat when it gives out.

Times Have Changed

Shades of Gussie Moran. She should have been around when the Virginia Beach Tennis Patrons Association had its tennis fashion show last Thursday at the Capes. For you who don't remember, Gussie was banned from the tennis courts for wearing lace on her britches.

Fashion for the courts modeled at the show included everything from shifts to one outfit with a zip-off top which converted to a bikini bathing suit for after tennis dips. Tennis fashions now conform to regular popular styles with modifications. Also modeled were fashions, including several see-throughs, for wearing to the Tennis Ball which is scheduled for Aug. 17 at the Cavalier Beach and Cabana Club.

Models were Miss Susan Eubank from Earl Myers pro shop at Princess Anne Country Club; Miss Debbie LeCompte and Miss Missy Sadler from the Shelly Cabell pro shop at the Capes; Mrs. John Foster from Miller and Rhoads; and Mrs. Mason Gamage and Miss Spencer Jester from Alexander-Beegle. Mrs. Robert Stroud was chairman of the brunch-fashion show.

Mrs. Mason Gamage modeled this see-through pants dress in navy and white from Alexander-Beegle.

Keep the Windows Open

The charcoal fire that whets everyone's appetite at a barbecue can convert a room into a death trap.

Burning charcoal gives off carbon monoxide, which is colorless, odorless and potentially lethal, warns Mrs. Marjorie B. May of the Greater New York Safety Council.

French Spicing

Marinate 1/2 pound sliced fresh mushrooms or 1 can (6 to 8 oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained, in 1/4 cup bottled French dressing at least 1/2 hour. Add 1/4 pound fresh spinach, torn into bite-size pieces; 2 tablespoons sliced scallions; 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper and salt, if necessary. Toss gently. Garnish with 2 sliced hard cooked eggs. Yield: 4 portions.

Do not peel the modern cultivated mushroom—this is both a waste of time and fine flavor.

WITH BLADDER IRRITATION
Suffer Many Troubles

After 21, common Kidney or Bladder Irritations affect twice as many women as men and may make you tense and nervous from too frequent, burning or itching urination both day and night. Secondly, you may lose sleep and suffer from Headaches, Backache and feel old, tired, depressed. In such irritation, CYSTEX usually brings fast, relaxing comfort by curbing irritating germs in strong, acid urine and by analgesic pain relief. Get CYSTEX at drugists. See how fast it can help you.

This tennis shift not only has open work trim, but it also has a low neckline in back. Sue Eubank models the outfit from Earl Myers.

Ask Questions Before Buying

Heartbreaking fact: though it's furniture she expects to live with a good part of her life, the average woman choosing a living room sofa doesn't know whether she's bought a love or a lemon.

So bemoans an executive of one of the world's top ten furniture manufacturing companies. Usually, says he, she knows exactly the color she wants. But rarely, if ever, does she know anything about the construction. The part that does or does not give her value for her money, the executive points out, is the part she's stuck with.

What should a woman do? Furniture Buyer. Homemaker know to keep her from wasting the family money on a lemon grove? What questions can she ask as she shops?

"If there were any one rule I'd give to help a woman shop for furniture," says Joseph H. Hogrefe, sales manager for upholstery with Johnson-Carper Furniture Company, one of the nation's top ten furniture manufacturers with 40 years in the business, "I'd tell her to Seven important points can make the difference between getting a sofa that you'll love and one that's a lemon. Asking whether the frame is hardwood and what's in the cushion are two questions that can cushion you against discontent with a sofa.

ask questions. Then I'd tell her to choose a brand name she can trust, a manufacturer with a long history of good feeling in the trade and one who advertises widely the 'inside' story of his furniture."

Here are his suggestions in choosing upholstered furniture:

Ask whether the frame of the furniture is hardwood (1).

Ask whether the base has either coil springs with soft edge (2), or convoluted springs.

Ask what the cushions are made of (3). The two preferred materials are 100% latex foam rubber, or the durable heavy-density synthetic, Polyurethane foam.

Ask if there are "extras," niceties you don't have to pay extra for, like protective arm covers that match and fit (4), and self-decking (5), the fabric beneath the cushions matching that of the whole piece.

Look, after you ask, is the detailing fine? Is the cording straight on arms, back, cushion and base (6)? Is the upholstery fabric pulled smooth everywhere, with no visible wrinkling (7)?

You might even have what we call hot flashes and feel sad and slightly off-balance.

Consider Convenience

Are you shortchanging your family, food-wise, by using convenience foods in recipes instead of starting from scratch?

Though researchers report many busy housewives believe just that, in fact, convenience foods do not contribute to "kitchen delinquency."

Home economists of The West Bend Company, major cookware manufacturer, advise that you carefully compare both methods of food preparation. Compare prices to see if it pays to prepare a product yourself from basic ingredients.

Also consider your time and the quality of the finished product in deciding between convenience and self-prepared foods.

Your choice will, of course, be influenced by how much you enjoy cooking and how much time you can spend in the kitchen.

Many authorities, aware of the quality of prepared foods, have encouraged their use. They have contributed to cook books which draw heavily on convenience foods for recipe material. Following these recipes, the housewife still contributes skill and a watchful eye, but there is a great saving in time of preparation.

Liquid Makes the Difference

There's no doubt that corn or maize was one of the greatest treasures discovered in the New World. Indians throughout the Americas had grown corn for many centuries and worshipped the plant as a god. Corn was taken to Europe by the early explorers.

At the same time that many new foods from the Western Hemisphere were introduced to Europe, invading Turks came from the Near East bringing their foods, also new to most of Europe. Europeans became confused by the sudden influx of new foods. That is how corn came to be named "Turkey wheat," and was often called that by settlers who came to New England in the 17th Century. Naturally corn grew happily in the land of its origin and one settler wrote this about the corn crops he had seen:

"The abundant increase of corn proves this country to be a wonderment. Thirty, forty, fifty, sixtyfold are ordinary here. Yea, Joseph's increase in Egypt is outstripped here with us."

The secret of good corn flavor is to prevent heat from converting the corn's sugar to starch. If the ears are chilled as soon as picked, and shipped and stored under refrigeration both in the food store and in the home, you will have perfect corn.

It's lily-o'-gilding, all right, but the flavor of fresh sweet corn can be varied deliciously by cooking it in bouillon, clam juice or a spiced liquid.

COOKING LIQUIDS FOR FRESH CORN

- BLEND I
1 pkg. (1 3/8 oz.) onion soup mix
1 qt. water
1/2 tsp. instant onion powder
- BLEND II
1 can (12 fl. oz.) mixed vegetable juice
1 can water
- BLEND III
4 beef bouillon cubes
3 c. water
- BLEND IV
2 bottles (8 oz. each) clam juice
1/4 tsp. ground white pepper
6 ears of husked corn

Combine ingredients for each blend in a large skillet. Bring to boiling point. Add corn. Reduce heat, cover and simmer 10 minutes or until done, turning occasionally. Leftovers, broth may be used in soups, sauces, etc. Yield: 6 portions.

Teacher Is Engaged

Mrs. Elizabeth Bolam of Alexandria, Va., announces the engagement of her daughter, Linda Jayne Bolam, to Lt. Joseph Lynn Corcoran.

Miss Bolam, a graduate of Longwood College with a degree in biology, is a teacher at Plaza Junior High School.

Lt. Corcoran is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Corcoran of Wilmington, Del. A graduate of the University of Nebraska with a degree in mechanical engineering, he is stationed with VF-41 at Oceana NAS.

A nuptial military mass is planned for Oct. 4 at Fort Belvoir, Va.

CORN FRITTERS

- 1 1/2 c. (3 ears) corn cut off the cob
3 eggs, separated
2 strips bacon
1/4 c. finely chopped onion
3/4 c. sifted all-purpose flour
3/4 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. ground black pepper
Deep fat for frying

In a medium bowl combine corn with egg yolks, set aside.

Crisp fry the bacon, reserving 1 teaspoon bacon fat. Crumble bacon. Sauté onion in the reserved bacon fat until transparent. Add bacon and onion to corn mixture. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and black pepper. Add to corn mixture, blending well. Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry. Fold into corn mixture. Drop from tablespoon into deep hot fat (375 F.). Fry until golden brown, about 2 to 3 minutes, turning once. Yield: Approximately 24 fritters.

Nature

colors. They also work with paper mache.

"It's based on nature and becoming aware of what they see," said Welton Williams, the instructor. They start with trees on Monday and each day they draw more of what is around the tree as they become more aware of it. They learn the techniques of foreground, middle ground, background and infinity. Animals that the children have learned something about are also included.

Friday is the summation of what they have learned during the week. According to Williams, 75% is what they see, 15% is what they feel, 5% is "how I tell them to do it," and 5% is how they interpret what they see. "It's their own work," said Williams.

The program was well researched in advance. Parks and Recreation personnel traveled to Cumberland County, Md., Raleigh, N.C. and Norfolk to study their outdoor education programs.

The program in its first year is a success. However, its future is somewhat questionable. The 110 acres on which Playland Park is located is now for sale. The program without a pool is undesirable. Although the possibility of a portable pool has been discussed, there is still the problem of where to locate it. Whatever happens, there will still be 1,600 children who enjoyed a week of "painless" learning.

An apple a day keeps the doctor away. And when you fill cored apples, you'll have a hard time limiting the kids to just one a day. Home economists at Shedd-Bartush Foods suggest this kid-tested treat: Tuck a scoop of chunk style peanut butter inside a halved apple. It's nutritious and delicious.

one of 28 centers in the area, presently serving about 760 children; this barely scratches the surface of the thousands of children who would be eligible for the program if there were room. The centers are part of the Southeastern Tidewater Opportunity Project (STOP). The school-readiness program of the centers reach children from three years of age until they reach the first grade in public schools.

The Pre-Headstart program was begun when it was found out that the six to eight week summer Headstart program could not reach as far as was needed--the children were unable to absorb the skills necessary for starting to school in such a short time. Some of the problems encountered were the inability to communicate outside of immediate surroundings, ill health caused by an inadequate diet and even the inability to use indoor sanitary facilities.

The Pre-Headstart program has a two-fold purpose: to get the child out of a deprived condition and get him where he can learn, and to free the mother of the family so that she might get a job and help upgrade the family income. (In order for a child to attend the center his family must be at or under the poverty level set by the government. For a family of four, for example, the family income poverty level is set at $3500.)

The government provides funds for 80% of the program. The remaining 20% is provided by manhours, certain supplies and professional services that are donated to the program. Some of the funds have been cut from the program since its beginning. At first many of the supplies were generously supplied for the centers. This is no longer the case. Mrs. von Wallmenich feels that this development is not all bad, however, because the community is having to assume responsibilities for the program. As she says, "Help and commitment jump with need."

Parents of children in the center often raise money for supplies and equipment such as outdoor playground equipment. They have managed to raise money by projects such as bake sales, king and queen contests, etc. Mrs. von Wallmenich describes the concept of the center as "a total family thing... The parents have a meeting once a month, thus the center becomes a learning situation for them...it's an excellent method of communication."

Part of the center's contract for government support provides that the center must have volunteers or else close. The Center at St. Aidan's uses two volunteers a day, giving four hours each, plus the regular staff composed of Mrs. Beatrice Haynes, head teacher; Miss Kerry Mooney, assistant teacher; and Miss Lucinda Jackson, dietitian. (Mrs. Haynes and Miss Jackson have been with the center since it opened.) Also part of the staff now is Mrs. Ida Harrison, bus driver.

During the summer months the center uses teenage volunteers, from 14 on. "These volunteers," says Mrs. von Wallmenich, "have worked out very, very well." Her oldest son has worked there this summer as a volunteer.

Although the volunteers and staff sound adequate for the 20 children in the school, Mrs. von Wallmenich says, "It's scarcely enough for the individual attention required by the children." They have an extreme shortage of volunteers during the winter months. Mrs. von Wallmenich says this is due primarily to lack of knowledge of the program and the extreme requirements placed on the individual volunteer. "It takes great dedication because so many youngsters are real problems...it takes 'grit' to stay...you have to be able to get outside yourself...some stay, some can't."

In addition to the shortage of volunteers, the center at St. Aidan's runs short of supplies such as sheets for cots and crayons. Different groups and organizations have been responsible in the past for keeping the center supplied with such equipment, but there is never enough.

Children attending the center at St. Aidan's come from Kempville to the Beach Borough. Some of the areas are so isolated that the church purchased a bus to transport them. Recently finances were so low that the church could not afford to maintain the bus. It costs $250 a month for servicing, gas and a driver for the bus--the church was running $50 a month in the red. The Center appealed to the community, however, and several area churches came to their aid. They now have enough money to run the bus for three or four more months. Mrs. von Wallmenich says something else is bound to turn up then.

As a community project Mrs. von Wallmenich says the Center could be run at a cost of $24,000 to $26,000 a year for 40 children. In addition to the school readiness program the Center would provide two hot meals a day for the children and medical and dental care.

The concept of the community-run center is, in Mrs. von Wallmenich's estimation, a workable dream. "The Center has opened up many people's eyes, my own included, to the fact that the world is not encompassed by your immediate surroundings...you become part of something larger than yourself...and, when you're broken through to a child, it's really quite a gift."

Booklets Tell Story Of Buying

Have you ever asked what quality guides to look for when shopping for celery or cantaloupe? Or, what's the best grade and cut of meat for Sunday dinner? What's the difference between egg size and egg quality?

All these questions--and many more--are answered in a new packet of nine "How to Buy" publications just issued by the Government Printing Office. This packet, called "How to Buy Food," is available from GPO for $1.25. It is for sale only and is not available from the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

These popular, readable leaflets--prepared by quality specialists in USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service--give useful tips on buying, storing and using a wide range of food products.

Booklets included in this handy packet are: How to Buy Beef Steaks, How to Buy Beef Roasts, How to Buy Fresh Fruits, How to Buy Fresh Vegetables, How to Buy Eggs, How to Buy Butter, How to Buy Poultry, How to Buy Cheddar Cheese and How to Buy Instant Nonfat Dry Milk.

All nine may be ordered by check or money order from: Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402. Ask for the "How to Buy Food" packet, and don't forget your zipcode.

Beets Are Useful

(Editor's note: Here is another in the series on home horticulture by Wesley P. Judkins, Extension horticulturist at Virginia Tech.)

The beet is a very useful vegetable. It is easy to grow in spring, summer or fall, and can be used in the menu in many different ways.

Some of the early, short-season beets will mature in 60 days or less. They may still be planted anytime during July or early August and produce a crop of fine edible roots before growth is stopped by cold weather. Being a half hardy vegetable, they will tolerate light frosts without being killed.

The exact location or origin of the beet seems to be unknown. Wild forms occur throughout southern Europe and northern Africa in the regions around the Mediterranean Sea. Historical records indicate that it was cultivated not more than two or three centuries B.C.

For many years, until relatively modern times, the principal use of beets was as a potherb or green, because the root was relatively small and slender. Plant breeders have now developed many fine varieties with large dark red roots of excellent quality.

Beets may be used in many different ways in the menu. The most common method of preparation is by boiling or steam pressure cooking. The beets should not be peeled or sliced before cooking because this increases the loss of red color. The cooked product may be served hot or cold, or pickled.

Beet tops are commonly used as greens. They may be used in this way until the small root becomes about a half inch in diameter.

Beets may be used in several other ways which may be less well known to the average homemaker. Sliced or cubed beets may be added to tossed salad, or molded in gelatin. Cold beet slices may be used as sweet or sour hors d'oeuvres. Beets may also be added to vegetable soup, or they may be baked or fried.

A colorful and unusual dish may be prepared from shredded fresh beets mixed with parmesan cheese, cottage cheese, or sour cream.

In general, beets are quite low in calories and contribute a useful amount of vitamins and minerals to the diet. Beet greens are high in Vitamin A and iron.

Many fine varieties of beets are now available. Early Wonder matures in about 60 days, and Detroit Dark Red in about 70. These are among the most common and dependable. Seeds are available from most garden centers and seed supply sources.

The Long Season or Winter Keeper takes about 80 days to mature. As the name suggests it will keep for many months in a cool basement storage. This beet is large, and has a rough appearance, but it remains very tender and sweet even when full grown and in storage.

If you prefer the unusual, you may want to try the white or yellow beets.

Plant beets now for a fall crop. Sow the seeds somewhat thinly in a three inch wide band. You may thin out the young plants for use as greens and allow the remainder to mature. The roots which develop during cool moist weather in the fall will remain succulent and sweet longer than those which mature during hot weather in mid-summer.

Plan Ahead With Flowers

It takes no great genius to make a nice flower arrangement, but it does require care and thought.

So believes Miss Katherine Habel, Extension home furnishings specialist at Virginia Tech, who adds that flowers cannot be jammed carelessly into a vase if they are to show off to best advantage.

Choose the right place in your home for your flower arrangement, she urges. Perhaps this will be the dining room table, or the mantle or a bookshelf.

The dining room table arrangement requires one not too tall and that may be viewed from any angle. The mantle and bookcase require arrangements that fit into the arrangement of accessories and that are seen from the front, with a wall for a background. For a flower show the arrangement must conform to the specific requirements for the show.

Knowing where you will use flowers will help you in selecting the right colors, the right kinds and the right amount, said Miss Habel.

But, too many bouquets will make your rooms look like the horticultural hall at the county fair, she warns. "The garden does not always supply the special kind of flowers we like to have and friends sometimes present us with their own choice of flowers. In such cases we must decide where the flowers will appear to best advantage."

The Parks and Recreation Department still hasn't figured out why, but the huge concrete pipe sections are highly popular with the kids.

Everyone Had the Same Idea

There were some 3,800 persons at Redwing Park between 8 a.m. and 9 p.m. Sunday, and the restrooms couldn't take the strain.

Several times this summer there has been trouble with the septic tank system because of large crowds. The maximum crowd to be handled at one time has been figured at 3,500.

Presently two more shelters and 35 or 40 more tables are being added to the front section of the park. These will accommodate some 4-500 more people. However, there are no plans to add more restrooms. "These will have to suffice," said a spokesman for the Parks and Recreation Department.

The City's one major park will be relieved somewhat next summer when the new park at Landstown Road and Princess Anne Road is completed. The 28-acre park will have parking for 250 cars, three picnic shelters and a horse ring.

Meanwhile, the kids at Redwing couldn't care less. They were too busy having a good time.

A traffic jam developed at the bottom of the slide.

Notice how well the oleanders have bloomed this season. They were at their best in June, but they will continue to have some blossoms all summer.

Oleanders were first introduced to Virginia Beach about 10 years ago when the Cavalier Garden Club planted them in four spots on Atlantic Parkway as a test planting. A couple of years later the Council of Garden Clubs of Virginia Beach became interested in oleanders and made them available to their member clubs for a nominal sum. Over 600 were distributed. Many fine specimens you see in gardens and in residential beautification projects stem from that mass planting.

Notice the red oleanders on Pacific Avenue at 38th Street planted by the Virginia Beach Garden Club. Their efforts to beautify what was an ugly weed patch have resulted in the attractive little street garden now maintained by the City.

Oleanders grown best in full sun. They love the heat and take kindly to heavy pruning. They do not do well near the ocean unless they have some protection from the wind and salt spray.

"PEUGEOT" Why Not Leave A "PEUGEOT" Good Thing Alone?

Because nobody's perfect. And while we may be a little more perfect than other cars, we go right on making "the world's toughest car" a little bit better. Year after year. While some cars are just now getting one stabilizing bar, Peugeot gets two. While some cars are getting 25,000 miles to a set of tires, Peugeot's Michelin X radial tires get a good 50,000. While some cars are getting better, safer steering units, Peugeot is getting the best: self-adjusting positive rack and pinion steering. And while some cars are gobbling gas like it's going out of style, Peugeot goes right on getting better than 25 miles to the gallon, with or without automatic transmission.

No, we just can't seem to keep our wrenches off the Peugeot... but maybe that explains why we have such a good thing going.

The Quality-Built Peugeot is Available in the 404 Sedan and 404 Station Wagon! Automatic Transmission Optional--Low-Low Financing!

At the District Commissioners meeting July 8 Ramon L. Smouse became District Commissioner for the Virginia Beach District, Boy Scouts of America.

Smouse has taken an active part in Scouting since 1948. He has held such positions as Assistant Scoutmaster, Scoutmaster and Neighborhood Commissioner. At present he is employed with Civil Service at Dam Neck and is in the Active Naval Reserve.

Assistants to Mr. Smouse will be Rodger A. Palmer and Paul J. Hoffman. Both men have taken an active interest in scouting for many years.

Reservists Return Here

The Virginia National Guard Emergency Operation Headquarters (EOH) under the command of Col. Samuel R. Gay departed from the Thomas D. Howie Armory, Staunton, on July 12 for two weeks summer encampment at the State Military Reservation here at Virginia Beach.

This is the first time since 1948 when the former 29th Infantry Division was reorganized following World War II, that any members of the unit have had the opportunity to train at this site.

Junk Pile Yields Stage Set

"Black Comedy," the current production at Williamsburg's Wedgewood Theatre, takes place in a wacky sculptor's London flat during a supposed power failure that has plunged the sculptor and friends into utter darkness. Actually, the set is brightly lit to give the audience a chance to see the wild goings-on.

Consequently, Wedgewood property mistress Sherri Reid has had the task of furnishing the room with objets d'art, including a mobile, a large piece of iron sculpture, a supposedly priceless vase, paintings for the walls, and a statue of Buddha! Where did she find them? Well, the mobile was made with various odds and ends from the theatre junk pile. The sculpture was constructed with the help of a welding machine by Gary Ryan of Yorktown. The vase was transformed from a dime-store purchase into an antique with the help of some bronzing powder. The same was used on plaster of paris Buddhas made by the Ceremaks Art Studio of Hampton with special care that one would break nightly as required in the script. The paintings came from the brush of Wedgewood's set designer, Lawrence Miller. And as a final crowning touch for the artist's apartment, paint was splashed on walls, floor, and furniture!

"Black Comedy" continues at Wedgewood through July 19, Tuesday through Saturday nights, buffet dinner at 7, curtain at 8:30. On July 22 "Dark of the Moon," a folk musical, will open with one of the largest casts in the Theatre's history.

School Master Picked

Aviation Ordnanceman I.C. Melvin Swartz, Jr., has been selected by the officer in charge, Naval Air Maintenance Training Detachment (NAMTD) and six judges to represent the detachment on July 30, at a place still to be designated, in a contest against ten others to select the East Coast School Master of the Year.

The winner of that competition will go to Headquarters, Naval Air Maintenance Training Group in Memphis to compete against nationwide entrants for the "School Master of the Year for 1969" in October.

AOI Swartz was chosen from approximately 120 instructors at NAMTD, Naval Air Station Oceana. He was recommended to the selection board by AOCs G.E. Field, senior course instructor. He has been stationed at Oceana since October 1967, and reported here from Patrol Squadron Two, Whidbey Island, Wash.

Swartz and his wife, Cheryl, reside at Skylark Drive in Cardinal Estates. They are both natives of Tonawanda, N.Y.

Bank Promotes Ceremaks

At its meeting July 14, the Board of Directors of United Virginia Bank/Seaboard National promoted Thomas J. Ceremaks to the position of vice president and manager of the bank's Credit Department. Announcement of the Board action was made by M. Lee Payne, president of the bank.

Ceremaks received his BS degree from St. Joseph's College in Philadelphia, Penn. He is also a graduate of the University of Virginia's, School of Consumer Banking. Prior to joining the bank's Executive Training Program in 1963, Ceremaks was service manager of the Norfolk Office of Dun and Bradstreet. He was named assistant cashier in 1964 and assistant vice president and manager of the bank's Pembroke Office in 1967. In November, 1967, he transferred to the Credit Department at the Main Office.

Ceremaks serves as a Commander in the U.S. Naval Reserve; is a member of the Naval Reserve Association-

Promotion Announced

Princess Anne Memorial Park has announced the appointment of Robert H. Goette as sales manager of Princess Anne Memorial Park.

Goette has worked at Princess Anne Memorial Park for the last two years, first as sales manager and then as assistant sales manager, prior to his promotion.

Goette resides at Kellam Road, in Virginia Beach with his wife Melva, and his son and daughter. He is the winner of the Tidewater Distinguished Salesman Award for 1968.

Mary Ann Waller of Country Club Circle is one of 236 high school graduates who will be freshmen at the University of Oklahoma in September chosen to participate in OU's Honors Housing program, the university's program of special residence halls for outstanding students.

Initiated six years ago, the Honors Housing program was designed to enable freshmen of exceptional academic ability to live together. To qualify, an incoming freshman must score 28 or above on the American College Test (ACT) or a comparable test. Honors Housing residents participate in special programs in their housing units to supplement classroom work.

Dinner To Open Campaign

The General Hospital of Virginia Beach will move into the general public phase of its campaign for one million dollars tonight, Thursday, with a dinner meeting at the Cavalier Hotel at 7 p.m.

Attending the dinner will be all Area Chairmen, Team Captains and Team Workers of the General Solicitation Division. This Division, under the chairmanship of B. M. Stanton, will solicit prospects on a selective basis in 17 areas of Virginia Beach seeking commitments over a 36 month or four tax-year period.

The entire organization for this phase will involve some 200-300 volunteer solicitors working over the next two weeks to obtain their share of the total goal for the Hospital. The report of the achievements of Advance Gifts will be announced at the dinner meeting on Thursday night by the General Chairman, R. Bradshaw Pulley.

The Thursday night meeting will hear the story of the needs of the Hospital from Pulley and the task of the General Solicitation Division from Stanton. The teams will then receive the instructions relative to the solicitation which will begin immediately in all the areas.

The Hospital Campaign Office, located at 25th and Arctic in the Annex, will be open for any persons who may have questions relative to the conduct of this campaign for the enlargement of the facilities for the General Hospital of Virginia Beach. The phone number at the Campaign Office is 425-9444.

Smith to Speak At Convention

John H. Smith, of Virginia Beach, will be among the speakers at the 71st Annual Convention of the Virginia Professional Photographers' Assn., meeting at Norfolk July 26-29.

Smith, who operates Mar-Jon Studio in Virginia Beach, will speak Saturday during a special "Industrial Photographers Day" program on the elimination of unwanted backgrounds in photographs such as wires, poles, etc.

DMV Moves for Remodeling

The Virginia Beach office of the Division of Motor Vehicles is being operated temporarily in the Lynnhaven-Masonic Lodge at the intersection of Ingram Road and N. Lynnhaven Blvd.

The temporary relocation of the office was made to allow remodeling of the building at 19th Street and Arctic Avenue which for years has served as the DMV Virginia Beach office. It is hoped this remodeling will be completed by Oct. 1, at which time the issuance of drivers permits will resume there.

As of July 1 the Virginia Beach DMV office joined hundreds of others throughout the state in the issuance of a new two part drivers license. A major change in the license is in the form of a photo card, which contains a full-color photograph of the driver for purposes of identification. The second part of the new license is an information card, containing biographical data about the driver. Another important addition to the drivers license is recording of the drivers social security number on the license. Both cards must be carried in a special case supplied drivers at the time of issuance of the license.

license, or renews a license. This photo card then serves as a drivers license, provided it is carried in the special case with a receipt issued at the examiners office, until the information card is mailed to the driver from the DMV headquarters office in Richmond. Examiners are reminding all motorists that under the new plan anyone wishing to renew his license must apply in person at the examiners office because of the new "photo card" being issued, and that any renewal applications received by mail will be returned and only mean a delay in the issuance of the license.

Full Dress Parade Set

The Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base Gates will swing open, to Tidewater residents this Friday evening at 7 p.m. for one of the most impressive spectacles of military life--a full dress evening parade.

Over 700 Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps Midshipmen, currently undergoing three weeks of amphibious warfare training at Little Creek, will participate in the ceremony on the parade grounds adjacent to Rockwell Hall.

The ceremony will include the presentation of an organizational flag to the midshipman battalion, the award of an athletic trophy to the midshipman company which has compiled the highest point total in scheduled athletic events, and a pass in review.

The midshipmen represent 35 major colleges and universities across the United States. Their training at Little Creek is being conducted under the direction of Commander Amphibious Training Command, U.S. Atlantic Fleet and is designed to develop the midshipmen's knowledge of amphibious warfare from both Naval and Marine Corps viewpoints.

In the event of rain, there will be no parade.

Group Plans Beach Party

The Hampton Roads Retired Officers' Association will hold a beach party at the Officers Beach, Dam Neck July 18 at 6 p.m.

All retired officers and their ladies are invited to attend. For reservations call Cmdr. M. V. Cornetta, USN (Ret) at 425-6537 before noon July 17.

Navy Lt. Frederick E. Philippi, Jr., son of Cmdr. and Mrs. Fred E. Philippi of Lynnhaven Road is serving aboard the heavy cruiser USS Newport News.

deWitt Is Manager

Lillie B. Dalby, realtor and owner of Pilot Realty, announces the association of Peter deWitt as sales manager of their offices on North Landing Road in Virginia Beach.

deWitt, who was designated Salesman of the Year in 1968, and a member of the Million Dollar Club for the last three years, lives with his family at Lakeside Drive here. He is a member of one of the first families to settle in Virginia Beach, a graduate of the Realtors' Institute of the University of Virginia and immediate past vice-president of the student body of that Institute.

IF YOU WANT TO LIVE FOREVER YOU'LL NEED THE HELP OF YOUR LAWYER.

Anybody with a wife, children, grandchildren, would like to live forever. Naturally.

To make sure that the loved ones would always be taken care of.

But unfortunately, even your lawyer and a writ of habeas corpus can't raise the dead.

There's really just one legally recognized way for your influence, wishes, desires, guidance and concern to live on.

And that's through a will.

If you don't have one, call your lawyer right now. Make an appointment this week. Because if you don't have a will, you don't have any influence in how your hard-earned estate is distributed.

If you already have a will, it's pretty darn important to make sure it's going to do exactly what you want it to do. After all, it's the only thing that can speak for you.

To make sure, you're going to need the help of experts. Review your will regularly with your lawyer. He knows the ins and outs of the massive tangle of estate laws and tax regulations.

Talk to your insurance man. He can provide valuable advice on planning your insurance program.

And talk to F&M's trust people. The bank acting as executor or trustee of your estate can make sure your wishes are carried out.

Perfectly.

Horses, horsemen and spectators gather in the saddling-up and preparation area at Aldo Farms just before the July 13 race.

Racing Is Dream Come True

With their eighth race of the season finished Aldo Farms Racing Association has just begun. In fact, W. E. "Buck" Cowling Jr., promotion director for the Association, says fall is the best time for racing anyway... "it's easier on the horses."

The races, which are currently planned to run until November, are gaining momentum. Last Sunday's event was the first annual Trophy Race. Among others it attracted one horse (and the owner) from Pinehurst, N.C. and a jockey who flew here from Pamlico. Aldo Farms, located on London Bridge Road, is the scene of the races every second and fourth Sunday (post time is 2:30 p.m.). The races themselves grew from a dream of Linda L. Taylor, the owner of Aldo Farms and chairman of Aldo Farms Racing Association. Her father, Al Taylor, owned the land before her and during his lifetime he had big races there for years. Hundreds of people attended the races then, although they were held but a couple of times a year.

Then the sport died out and there was no interest shown in it until Linda visioned the races there again. Aldo Farms Racing Association was formed, and with the help of Robert C. Curling, vice chairman, J. W. Overton Jr., executive secretary "Buck" Cowling, and members Cecil J. McCarty and Herman B. McClellan Jr., races began again at Aldo Farms in April of this year. Some of the conditions the races are run under are as follows: starters in all races are limited to six; races with more than six entries are divided into two separate heats; any race with less than three horses will be canceled; prize money is awarded in each heat and if the affected race also lists a trophy it will be awarded to the winning horse with the fastest time; all jockeys are required to wear racing silks. Entry fees are $10 for thoroughbreds and registered quarter horses and $7.50 for unregistered horses. Over two hundred races have been planned for this first season.

Approximately 500 horses are being stabled here for the racing and others are being trucked here from stables nearby. It is estimated that purses in excess of $15,000 will have been offered by the end of the season in addition to annual trophies and other awards. Under the guidance of J. W. Overton many interest people have contributed manpower and time in erecting physical facilities at the racing site. Others have provided emergency rescue and ambulance service. Cowling says several members of the press and other communications media have provided an invaluable service in promoting the track. The Association itself has done much to make racing at Aldo Farms known—free passes were given to major motels at the beach last week, with a remarkable response. Apparently visitors to the area are intrigued with the idea of racing at Virginia Beach.

There is definitely some kind of an attraction, for attendance at the races increases each time. Maybe "Buck" Cowling has the answer... he says "Racing is like a big fraternity."

Chess, Checkers Winners Named

The citywide checker and chess tournament sponsored by the Recreation Dept. was held July 8 and 9 with 233 youngsters competing.

There were eight different age-sex categories with 21 different playgrounds being represented at the event, which was held at Kempsville Meadows Elementary School. The competing children represented winners from the tournaments held at the individual schools.

Brookwood was the champion in the two groups for the checker tournament and Arrowhead was the champion for the two groups in the chess tournament.

Winners and runners-up in the checker tournament are: Boys--(age 6-7) John Gawrys of Kingston, winner, Darryle O'Hara of Arrowhead, runner-up; (age 8-9) Laverne Olds of Seatack, winner, Darryle Halprin of Arrowhead, runner-up; (age 10-11) Keith Hughes of Lynnhaven, winner, Charlie High of Cooke, runner-up; (age 12-13) Mike Miner of Malibu, winner, Tassos Paphites of Alantown, runner-up. Girls' winners are: (age 6-7) Denise Zawadzki of Windsor Woods, winner, Charlene Monk of Luford, runner-up; (age 8-9) Lora Kirchner of Luford, winner, Linda Allen of Cooke, runner-up; (age 10-11) Barbara Tate of Brookwood, winner, Pat Luther of Luford, runner-up; (age 12-13) Karen Akins of Brookwood, winner, Gloria Pollack of Lynnhaven, runner-up.

Lt. Rawls Wins Title

Lt. (j.g.) William Rawls easily captured the Atlantic Fleet Service Force tennis championship July 11 defeating CWO Ralph Abenante 6-0, 6-0, and 6-1 in the final match of the singles tournament. Both men are from Explosive Ordnance Disposal Group Atlantic, located at Fort Story.

Finishing behind the two leaders were Lt. William Shields, third place; FN Bob Barrio, fourth place; and SN Gale Varin, fifth place.

The ServLant matches were played July 7 thru 11 on the CINCLANTFLT tennis courts.

The Fifth Naval District tournament, scheduled for July 14 thru 18, is also scheduled for play on the CINCLANTFLT courts. The top five finishers in the ServLant tournament will compete in the 5ND matches.

Lt. (j.g.) Rawls is one of the two top seeded players expected to enter the 5ND tournament. A total of 48 open and 12 singles entries are scheduled to compete in these matches.

Play starts at 10 a.m. each day and military personnel and their dependents are invited to attend. Admission is free.

Kickball Winners Announced

On July 14 and 15 children from 18 elementary playgrounds participated in the citywide Kickball Tournament, sponsored by the Department of Parks and Recreation. Winners in their districts were: Thoroughgood, northern; Seatack, eastern; Malibu, central; and Arrowhead, southern. Malibu defeated Arrowhead 8-2 for the city-wide Championship. The tournament was for boys 13 and under.

Finals for the girls tournament was held this morning, 10 a.m., at Louise Luford Elementary School.

Brookwood Wins at Ping Pong

The Recreation Department sponsored a city-wide Ping Pong Tournament at Bayside High School on July 10.

There were 71 entries in the tournament, representing 21 elementary playgrounds. Winners were announced in four categories: Boys 11 and under, Boys 12-13, Girls 11 and under and Girls 12-13.

Winners are: Boys 11 and under, Buddy Miller of Bayside and Ray Bjorkman of Malibu; Boys 12-13, Petty Hill of Thoroughgood and Charley Gavrys of Kingston; Girls 11 and under, Karen Akins of Brookwood and Cindy Sunner of Woodstock; Girls 12-13, Darlene Kirchner of Luford and Carol Haynes of Shelton Park.

Winners of a High School playground Ping Pong Tournament, held July 10 at Bayside High School are: Boys 18 and under, Pete Whithers of Bayside High School; Boys 15 and under, Jay Casper of Bayside High School; Girls 18 and under, Millie Downing of Bayside High School; and Girls 15 and under, Lois Craver of Bayside High School.

The top playground in the tournament was Brookwood.

GI Students Reminded

Students attending college under the GI Bill this summer are reminded that they must return their Certification of Attendance card to the Veterans Administration during the last full month of every enrollment period, including the summer session.

Failure to do so will cause payment to stop since VA computers are programmed to prepare checks only after Attendance cards are received.

E.P. Brosnan, Manager of the Roanoke VA Regional Office said the VA also urges any student who did not return his Certification of Attendance card at the end of the spring semester to do so as soon as possible to insure renewed VA payments this summer or when he goes back to school in September.

While veterans attending college under the GI Bill must return their Certification of Attendance cards during the last full month of every enrollment period, veterans attending school below the college level must return their Attendance cards every month.

Police Attend Meeting

Virginia Beach Police Chief Col. W. W. Davis was attended a four-day conference of graduates of the FBI National Academy in Bel Harbour, Fla. this week.

Chief Davis was accompanied by police Capt. Richard C. Davis and George K. Bryan, who are among other Virginia Beach police officers who graduated from the Academy, for the conference. More than 300 law enforcement officers who have graduated from the Academy were in attendance at the conference. The session is held annually by the FBI for the purpose of up-dating training received by law enforcement officers during their initial training at the FBI National Academy.

Three young people were injured early last Friday morning when this truck careened into a tree on Holly Road in back of the Cavalier Hotel. Investigators said Wendell Smith, 18, of Portsmouth, Glen Murphy, 17, of Virginia Beach and Charles E. Johnson, 16, of Norfolk received injuries. Nearly 30 minutes was required to free the three from the cab of the truck when it rammed into the tree after tearing down some 90 feet of fence along Holly Road.

College President Selected

Dr. Douglas M. Montgomery, president of Blue Ridge Community College at Weyers Cave, today was named president of the Region 22 Community College, which serves the cities of Chesapeake, Norfolk, Portsmouth and Virginia Beach. His appointment is effective July 15, 1969.

The announcement was made by Dr. M. E. Alford, chairman of the Region 22 College Board, following a special meeting of the board. Alford said that Montgomery will also serve as acting Provost of the Frederick campus of the College until a Provost is appointed.

A native of California, Dr. Montgomery, 52, served as a flight pilot in the U.S. Air Force. He retired in 1961.

He received his B.A. degree in Political Science from the University of Pennsylvania in 1938 and the LL.B. from Harvard in 1941. He earned a Master's degree in Political Science at Florida State University in 1959, with a minor in Junior College Administration.

Upon retirement from the Air Force, Dr. Montgomery was awarded a Kellogg Fellowship in Junior College Administration at Florida State University, and received his Ph.D. in Junior College Administration from that institution in 1963.

In 1962 he was named president of East Central Junior College, in Mississippi. He became president of Blue Ridge Community College in July, 1968.

It is proposed that the Region 22 Community College will ultimately have three, possibly four, campuses. One of these is the Frederick campus in Portsmouth, which had 903 students during the 1968-69 college year, its first year of operation. Consultants estimate that two years after completion of all facilities at all of the campuses the college should have 2,600 full-time and 10,000 part-time students; after five years, it is estimated that about 3,700 full-time and 14,000 part-time students will be attending the campuses of the College.

The State Board for Community Colleges has requested $3.5-million for 1970-72 for construction of a new campus in Region 22, and $1-million to begin replacement of the Frederick campus.

Presidential Ad Hoc Selection Committee of the Region 22 Community College Board was headed by George K. Eberwine, Jr., with Frank Cox of Virginia Beach, Clarence Forehand, and David Strain serving with him.

Earnings Reported

First & Merchants Corporation has reported earnings of $1.32 per share for the first half of 1969 up 23.1% from $1.06 per share reported for the same period last year by its principal affiliate, First & Merchants National Bank.

Robert L. Gordon, Jr., president, stated that average gross deposits for the first six months were $641,282,000 compared to $604,167,000 last year. Average gross loans were $435,636,000 up from $381,975,000 in the first half of 1968.

Real Estate Course Set

The Distributive Education Service of the Virginia Beach City Schools will offer a course in preparatory real estate training beginning Aug. 4.

The course is designed to introduce the theories and principles of real estate as it is practiced in Virginia and to prepare individuals for the Virginia Real Estate License examination.

The instructor will be W. E. "Bill" Glover who is the president of Glover Realty Inc. Glover was active as a representative and instructor of the world famous Dale Carnegie Course in southeastern Virginia, in both the Human Relations Course and the salesman's instructor program. For the past several years Glover has conducted classes in real estate for persons applying for the Real Estate Examination, classes in Real Estate Salesmanship and other subjects for the School Boards of Virginia Beach and Norfolk.

Glover was educated at North Carolina State College and Bowling Green University. He is currently Vice President of the Multiple Listing Service, a director of the Norfolk Board of Realtors and chairman of the Education Committee.

The 30-hour course will provide adequate instruction to obtain a license for those meeting the educational requirements. For those individuals without a high school diploma or GED certificate, the course will constitute the first 30 hours of the full 100 hour program approved by the Real Estate Commission.

Interested persons should contact Clifford H. Lewis, Distributive Education Service, Princess Anne High School, 499-1261.

Bond Efforts Earn Flag

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Virginia received the United States Treasury Department's highest award today for its employee's participation in the payroll savings plan for government savings bonds.

Samuel E. Bonsack, vice president and general manager, received the "Minuteman Flag" award from Noel Bride, the regional director of the Savings Bond Division of the Treasury Department. This is the highest award given to any industry in this undertaking.

Some 84 percent of C & P's

13,000 employees are purchasing savings bonds. This is the highest percentage of employees of any Virginia-based company to participate in this program.

In addition, Bonsack was commended by the regional director for being this year's state volunteer industrial chairman for the U. S. Government savings bond program held in May.

The "Minuteman Flag" is symbolic of the patriots whose contribution in the early days of our country were significant to help preserve the freedom we now enjoy.

Grant Received For Books

Virginia Wesleyan College has received a grant of $5,677.00 for library books and materials from the U.S. Office of Education.

The funds will be used for the purchase of books during the fiscal year beginning July 1 and ending June 30, 1970.

Parks Feature New Acts

"The Navarro Family"—mother, father and two daughters—who do balancing, racing and spinning turns on their circus unicycles started a one-week stay at Seaside Park on July 14 with two free performances daily on the park's outdoor stage at 2:30 and 10 P.M. They will appear through July 20.

"The Equations," a popular 7-piece combo who opened the 1969 season at the park's air-conditioned "Frolics Room," have returned to the bandstand this week for dancing nightly from 8 p.m. to Midnight. The group is booked to appear at Seaside Park nightly through Labor Day closing, playing for "Teen Dances" every Sunday and Monday evening.

Admission to Seaside Amusement Park is free.

Probably the most celebrated circus attraction to be booked into area amusement parks this summer, started July 14 at Ocean View Amusement Park. This act is "The Two Frauensteins," billed as the "world's foremost balancing artists," who keep a miscellany of objects—such as chairs, tables, spinning hoops, and lamps—suspended in balance atop their heads, while they themselves perform bodybalancing on large rubber balls and other moving platforms. They perform twice daily at 2:30 and 10 p.m. through July 20 on the outdoor stage at the amusement park.

The Frauensteins are currently on a tour of American amusement parks and fairs, coming to the Tidewater area after a year of being featured artists with the Moscow State Circus and an appearance on the Ed Sullivan Show.

Two Attend Program

Ricky Joseph Stangler, son of C.R. Baker of Cassidy Avenue, and Rosemary Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Taylor Jr. of Kings Point Road are among 300 junior high school music students and baton twirlers from throughout Virginia and other states who attended a two-week program at the College of William and Mary.

They were enrolled in the 17th annual Summer Band School, which ended July 12.

The purpose of the School, directed by Charles R. Varner, William and Mary band director, was to provide training for high school musicians and enable them to evaluate their own progress with their peers. They worked from 6:45 a.m. until midnight, with time out for recreation and tours to historical attractions there.

Their work leads to well-attended outdoor concerts in the historic Wren Yard facing Williamsburg's Duke of Gloucester Street. One was given July 4, another on July 6, and the final concert on July 11.

Dismal Airport Seeks Support

The Virginia Beach Jaycees may be one of the first groups to go on record-one way or the other-in the matter of a new regional airport that would have international capabilities, in the Bowers Hill-Dismal Swamp area of Chesapeake.

Tuesday night at their regular meeting the Jaycees heard Norfolk real estate developer Hunter Hogan and Virginia National Bank executive vice president Edward MacKethan discuss reasons that a new, large airport should be built there and plans for the total expansion of the present Norfolk airport should be abandoned.

Next month the Jaycees plan to hear the other side of the picture from James Crumley of the Norfolk Port and Industrial Authority.

After hearing both sides the Jaycees have indicated they may adopt a resolution advocating one plan or the other.

According to Hogan, the problem so far is that no one really seems to want to get involved. He said he believes if groups in all cities that would be affected would make known their feelings, something could be done about a new airport.

Following a consultants' report ordered by the NP&IA last year, plans were announced to increase the Norfolk airport to 1,000 acres, to extend the runway eventually to 9,000 feet, to construct new terminal facilities and to expand generally all the services of the present airport to meet the needs of the immediate future, especially the large jets that will be operational this year.

All this was projected to cost about $12 million, not to include a major network of roads needed to reach the airport now. Hogan says now that estimates now are reaching as high as $50 million, but that the NP&IA will not say exactly what current projections are.

The NP&IA spokesman is expected to be queried about this at the next meeting of the Jaycees.

On the other hand Hogansays his estimate to develop a totally new airport at Bowers Hill would be about $100 to $150 million, including $1 million for the 10,000 acres of land.

He said President Nixon has already pledged that the federal government will participate greatly in matching funds for airports across the United States. He added that the new airport would probably take about seven or eight years to build, and that as much as $5 million still be needed to update the present Norfolk airport, which is already beyond capacity.

Hogan criticized the complete expansion of the Norfolk airport

Taxpayers Must Foot Bill for Boom

Virginia Beach continues to grow rapidly, in some cases even exceeding original estimates. The population of the city is now estimated at between 170,000 and 180,000. Based on past performance that rapid growth is almost certain to continue.

The problem is that new population means new residential construction and new services to fill the needs of the new population. And that costs money.

One of the most pressing needs of the immediate future will be the new schools. School Board and city officials have recognized the problems to be faced, but so far nothing concrete has been done about it and many city officials do not seem to agree on what should be done, while some members of City Council admit they do not know exactly what is being done.

The need for new schools has been pointed out in figures supplied recently by Richmond's Federal Reserve Bank which show Virginia Beach paced all other Virginia cities in construction during June of this year. And the total permits issued did not set any new city record.

The only cities that exceeded Virginia Beach in the entire Fifth Federal Reserve District were Washington, Baltimore, Charlotte and High Point, N.C.

A delegation from the State Department of Education in Richmond was in Virginia Beach Monday and Tuesday of this week to help city school officials prepare a complete study of building needs through 1975. Several Councilmen who were contacted did not know the four-man team was here, nor did some city officials.

School Supt. E. E. Brickell and the School Board asked for the help of the state and also for the comprehensive report. When it is completed it will be utilized by the School Board's new director of school plant planning, J. Warren Littleton. His position was created recently because of the pressing needs.

The report is expected to be completed this fall, and preliminary estimates of the number of schools that will be needed is available.

The city is attempting to avoid being caught short as it was in January 1968, when a massive $14.5 million bond issue was needed for financing sorely needed schools immediately. At that time it was felt that new schools should have been built sooner.

There is little doubt that whatever new construction is recommended cannot be accomplished without another large bond issue, but perhaps not as large as the 1968 one.

This is complicated by 1970 being a City Council election year. It is almost a certainty that there will be no bond issue prior to that June election, and Council will obviously be trying to toe the budgetary mark next spring, as it was this year, to keep taxes from rising too much.

The bond issue then will most likely come in the fall of 1970, with a subsequent tax rise being felt the following year.

Vice Mayor Robert Cromwell says it may be necessary for Council to apply the brakes to so much apartment construction in the city until there is time to catch up. Many of his colleagues do not agree and feel it would be disastrous to attempt to control growth.

Cromwell cast a lone dissenting vote on a zoning permit for 300 apartments in the Green Run Planned Unit Development at the last Council meeting, although Council has been fully aware of Green Run's plans there for two years.

Cromwell's vote was based on information from the School Board that existing schools, elementary and secondary, which serve the area could not accommodate the students to be generated.

Green run has offered the city school sites in the complex at a low price of $3,500 an acre, but the city has not purchased the land.

School officials say there is no immediate plan to serve that area and that there are no funds to build new schools there anyway. They add that split shifts and changing of school districts might be a temporary answer.

They hope that by the time the apartments are completed they will be in a position to build needed schools.

The school problem is far from settled and is likely to get worse. There is growing interest in the impending bond issue, and city officials feel the entire matter must be watched closely within the next few months to make their plans.

Schools are not the only area in which there is a lag. Sewer and water projects are being approved at a rapid rate in the city. The city even doubled its non-referendum bonded indebtedness last year to meet these needs. But additional areas are requesting the services rapidly, and the services are required in new subdivisions and apartment developments.

In addition recreational needs are suffering because of lack of funds and other priorities.

Redwing Park, the city's only major developed park, is greatly overcrowded on weekends. Almost every weekend, emergency septic tank service has to be called because of the crowds. The city has Green Run Farm and other undeveloped parks, but nothing is being done at present to develop them.

The old Jewish Community Center property off Salem Road is currently being rented by the city at $150 a week because it has a pool and developed recreational facilities, yet the city is not in a position to purchase the 110 acres for $2,000 an acre as offered.

City Manager Roger Scott says he cannot justify the expenditure of $240,000 for recreational needs in that area of the city when there are pressing needs elsewhere. Recreational land in the highly populated areas are almost unavailable.

Roads and streets in the city, notably in the densely populated areas, are also in demand. Funds are still lacking for Rosemont Road, Lynnhaven Road, Great Neck Road, First Colonial Road, Holland Road and others. New public works projects are demanded by each new residential development also.

Virginia Beach has enjoyed a low tax rate for most of its young life, but that is bound to change, as needs are met.

Scott says he sees no great change in expansion of the city's tax base in the coming years. He says all that can be done is keeping a tight rein on spending, while some necessary projects must suffer.

(See 'Boom,' p. 2)

Jail Check Supported By Replies

The readers of SUN SURVEY have formed a definite opinion where the operation of the city jail and City Sergeant's office are concerned. That opinion is not favorable to present operations.

Of those who replied to last week's SUN SURVEY question, 97 per cent said "yes" to the question, "Should city officials seek a full investigation of the city jail and the operation of the City Sergeant's office, in light of the recent jailbreak there, where a prisoner was able to escape through use of a pistol and hacksaw blades?" Only three per cent said "No."

Most of the replies carried comments, especially the affirmative ones. They ranged from "Definitely yes" to "The man's too old for the job." While most were unsigned, letters were also received. One signed letter appears on p. 4.

Those who replied in the negative said generally they felt City Sgt. John Marr was a victim of political circumstances and that there was no problem at the jail, regardless of recent events.

While the public opinion poll does not profess to represent the thinking of all the residents of Virginia Beach, it does represent the thinking of a cross section of those who took time to clip it and return it to us.

Your attention is called also to this week's SUN SURVEY question which appears below in the box at the lower left corner of this page. The results will be published here next week.

Each week a new, timely question will be asked, and you are invited to participate. The more replies received, the more responsible the opinion.

Firefighting teams surrounded the wreckage of Wadsworth's jet moments after the plane crashed.

Narrow Miss Saves Residents

Residents of the 400 block of Garcia Drive in Oceana escaped injury Friday afternoon when a Navy pilot crash landed his crippled F8 Crusader jet into woods less than 100 feet behind their occupied homes.

The pilot, identified by Navy officials as Lt. David Wadsworth, from all indications stayed with his plane until the last possible moment to avoid hitting any homes in the area then ejected from the jet. Investigators and residents said this was borne out by Wadsworth being found some 10 feet from the wreckage of his plane.

Describing the crash, Mrs. Thompson said, "We saw the plane hit that big oak tree back there, but we never saw the man come out. Then we saw the fire and I grabbed my son and we ran across the street." took knives and cut him loose so the fire wouldn't get him." Despite their efforts to save him Wadsworth died about two and a half hours later at Portsmouth Naval Hospital from his injuries.

When the plane came down Gablinske's wife "Mickey" was next door in the yard of Mrs. Margaret Thompson's neighbor. scale fish on a picnic table. Mrs. Thompson's year-old and a half old son, William, Jr., was with her at the time.

Oscar Gablinske, behind whose home the plane crashed, said he was asleep at the time and was awakened by his wife yelling that "a plane hit and is on fire." Gablinske said he grabbed a hose and ran into the woods. "I saw the pilot on the ground," Gablinske continued, "still attached to his chute with fire all around him. Two of my neighbors and I

Within minutes fire fighting and rescue units from Virginia Beach and Oceana N.A.S. were at the scene of the crash, along with members of the Virginia Beach police department and the U.S. Navy Shore Patrol.

Despite the intensity of the fire, which sent a huge cloud of smoke billowing into the sky, the fire was contained to the woods in which the plane crashed.

Navy officials said Wadsworth, 25, who lived with his wife Paulette in the 8700 block of Atlantic Avenue, was on an air intercept training mission when his plane developed engine trouble. He was attempting to return to Oceana when his jet went down about two and a half miles short of the runway.

Theater Regains Film

Federal Judge Robert H. Mehri, Jr., has ordered the film "I Am Curious (Yellow)" to be returned to the Star Twin Indoor Theater. Mehri issued the ruling during a Wednesday hearing in Norfolk's U.S. District Court resulting from a constitutional challenge of Virginia obscenity laws.

The challenge of the State statute was contained in a suit filed by attorney Stanley E. Sacks on behalf of the theater owner Kenneth Andrews and manager Calvin Gray, and distributors of the film, Grove Press, Inc., of New York.

Virginia Beach police seized the film, on grounds that portions of it were obscene, following the final showing of the movie at the Star Theater on the night of June 24, and charged Andrews and Gray with violation of Virginia obscenity laws.

The case has already undergone two continuances in Virginia Beach Municipal Court, during which defense motions to have the film returned to the theater pending final outcome of legal proceedings were denied. Another hearing on the charges is scheduled for Aug. 15.

Indications are that Judge Mehri based his decision on a similar case in Richmond during which a ruling was made that a film could not be seized without a prior "adversary" hearing to determine whether or not the film was in fact obscene.

'Earthy' Issues Face Council

After taking the day off last Monday because of the moon activities, City Council meets in regular session this Monday at City Hall to discuss issues far more earthbound.

The informal meeting was cancelled last week when President Nixon requested that Monday be a day of national participation.

One of the major problems facing Council Monday will be a review of the development of Rudee Inlet. Much confusion apparently surrounds the orderly development there.

City Manager Roger Scott says he will present to Council the case of the seven-boat private marina built on Lake Rudee when the permit they received only called for a single pier.

The six persons who built the marina admit they received only one of the three permits required by law and that the entire facility was built in a single weekend to avoid a court order making them cease building.

One of the principals, Bill Meredith, said his group wanted the boat dock there and didn't want to go through "a lot of red tape" to get it. Now the matter may end in the courts.

The three permits required to build a bulkhead or pier in the Rudee Inlet area must come from the city through the Dept. of Public Works, the Rudee Inlet Authority and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Issuance of those three permits have been known to take some time. The present marina in question received only permission from the city for a one-boat dock for Sam Archbell on property just west of the city's temporary marina.

Scott now says only City Council can clear the matter up.

Council has been asked to consider similar matters before, as recently as May. The Rudee Inlet Authority asked Council on May 19 to prohibit any further permits for dredging, bulkheading or piers in the Rudee Inlet until completion of a land-use study thought to be underway by the planning department.

City planning director Patrick Standing said no such study was underway. Scott then asked the Authority to review its request. The Authority did and said it still felt the same way.

But on June 25, after the marina in question was already constructed, L. Dean Curtis, project director for the Authority, wrote Scott that there were no objections to permits being issued under existing procedures.

There has been increasing concern about the orderly development of the area and about the uniformity of bulkheading and construction of piers to meet certain standards. There is also feeling that the development of Rudee Inlet should be placed in the hands of a city department.

The new marina may also be in violation of zoning restrictions, since Meredith's boat bears a charter advertisement. Standing says if the boat owners are paying Archbell or if charters are being operated from there this would be true. Meredith says Archbell is not being paid.

Student Arrested in Case

A 24-year-old Jamaican has been arrested in connection with the April 18 arrest of Aldo Lovisi, and his wife Margaret, on a number of morals charges at their Alantone Drive home.

Police officials said Errol Romeo Dunn has been charged with two counts of indecent exposure to a minor and one count of sodomy. Authorities also said that other charges against Dunn are pending.

According to authorities on the basis of warrants issued in Virginia Beach, Dunn was arrested by police in Washington, D.C. He was employed there by the city and attending Howard University at night.

Dunn was brought back to Virginia Beach on Wednesday following an extradition hearing in Washington, to face charges here.

According to police the charges against Dunn are in connection with a large number of obscene movies and photographs found in the Lovisi home at the time of the couple's arrest.

Investigating officers in the case said that Dunn is in the United States on a student visa.

Lunar Landing Awees Virginia Beach Leaders

Virginia Beach last Monday joined thousands of other cities across the United States in enjoying a partial holiday with the celebrating of "Moon Monday" in honor of American Astronauts Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin, Jr., becoming the first men to land on the moon.

All city offices in Virginia Beach were closed for the day as were the majority of offices at the military installations, federal and state facilities. Court cases were rescheduled.

People reacted in various ways to the realization that man has at last accomplished what Jules Verne some 100 years ago had predicted could be achieved.

Several Virginia Beach city officials reacted to the lunar landing in much the same way as the general public. City Manager Roger Scott said, "I think it's one of the most fantastic things that mankind has ever achieved, and I think our country on that one night retrieved all the prestige lost on the Sputnik program. I think it was a great achievement by great men for a great country."

Mayor Frank Dusch reacted to the event by saying, "Words fail me to describe something that I had the pleasure of viewing. It is a stupendous undertaking all the way through."

Commissioner of Revenue Ivan Mapp not only expressed his feelings on the immediate meaning of the lunar landing, but projected his thoughts into the future when he said, "I think it was a great thing for the American people. I think it will serve to bring us all closer together, and it's just the first step towards space exploration which I think we should continue to do, explore outer space."

Richard D. Guy, who just last month polled the greatest number of votes in the Democratic primary for nomination to represent Virginia Beach in the House of Delegates expressed the view that, "Some have questioned the great expenditure of funds. I believe this is being very shortsighted. This venture may, and probably will, lead to discoveries that will ultimately solve some of mankind's greatest problems. Where it will lead is probably far beyond our ability to imagine with the facts we now have."

Police Chief Col. W. W. Davis reacted to the lunar landing by saying "I think it's a tremendous feat, but I think we don't fully appreciate the feat that has been accomplished simply because this whole Apollo program has been such a smooth undertaking in that they have made the program look so easy. It really has gone quite smoothly, without any hitch, and pinpointed so accurately we don't really appreciate all the technology that has gone into making this program such a success. They made the job look so easy that we don't really appreciate the accomplishment."

Recognition Outweighs Finances

Within the next three weeks a hearing will be held concerning the salary of Virginia Beach Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans, who is seeking a raise.

On June 2 the State Compensation Board set Evans' salary at $16,500 annually. Evans says that figure is based on the number of people he serves in the city, but that the state has used the 1960 census as the basis.

Because of this, Evans says his salary is based on a scale for cities having less than 100,000 people, and he believes it should be based on a higher scale for cities having 100,000 to 200,000 people.

Figures gathered by the Virginia Beach School Board last year show the city population at 168,244, while the University of Virginia Bureau of Population and Economic Research have set the population at 158,506.

Evans says that the few dollars it would add to his salary and his budget is not as important as recognition for Virginia Beach by the state as a major municipality.

The 1970 census will be completed in time for salaries of Evans and other Constitutional officers to be increased on July 1, 1972.

Evans appealed the state decision in Virginia Beach Circuit Court as required by law. Within 30 days of that filing a hearing must be held with the judge of Circuit Court and two others from other areas presiding. The two are selected by the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals.

No date had been set for the hearing, but senior Circuit Court Judge Robert Wahab asked the state high court to appoint all three judges since all three of the city's Circuit Court judges felt it would be improper for them to preside at the hearing.

Evans added that one of his major concerns is the budget for his assistants, which would also be determined in the ruling. He asked City Council earlier this year to aid his office and to raise his assistants' salaries unilaterally. Council declined, telling Evans to seek relief from the Compensation Board. The city pays half of the amount authorized by the State, and the state pays the rest.

Drug Sales Lead to Arrests

Three arrests were made in Virginia Beach Tuesday night on violation of drug laws, which according to police officials involved the alleged illegal sale of drugs to a juvenile.

Authorities said they have charged a 17-year-old juvenile with the sale of LSD; Willis Graham, 20, of Taldan Avenue, with the sale of Hashish; and Boyd James, 19, no address listed, with the sale of Meth-Crystals.

Police vice squad detective Sgt. Carl West told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN the arrests followed the alleged sale of the drugs during recent weeks on a parking lot at the intersection of 21st Street and Pacific Avenue, and that other arrests are anticipated during a continuing investigation of the case.

West said the investigation is being conducted through joint efforts of Detective Division officers J.W. Pritchard, J.P. Vitale, Jr., West, and Juvenile Det. L. Henry Capps and Division L.A. Ives.

Arrest Protested

A Virginia Beach woman has filed suit in Circuit Court seeking $500,000 on grounds that she was falsely arrested. Mrs. Virginia B. Swain of Bowden Road contends she was arrested May 17 on two bad check warrants issued against her estranged husband D. L. Swain. The suit names five defendants in the case: Bonnie Be-Lo Markets, Inc.; G. C. Castellow of Northampton Blvd., who is employed by Be-Lo; Justice of the Peace James B. Loftin, Jr., who reportedly issued the warrants; police officer James J. Sciortino, who according to the suit placed Mrs. Swain under arrest; and the City of Virginia Beach. Mrs. Swain, in her legal action, contends she protested her arrest on grounds that she was not the party against whom the warrants were issued, but was taken into custody anyway. She was acquitted of the charges during a May 26 Municipal Court hearing.

Juvenile Recharged

A 17-year-old white juvenile has been recharged with murder in the March 1 fatal stabbing of Aaron Bell. The move was made Tuesday following the nolle prosequing of the original charge on a technicality. Bell, a 17-year-old Negro, was stabbed to death during an argument in his home, Mrs. Penelope D. Coffman, defense attorney for the accused, filed a petition that the indictment of the accused by a grand jury was in error since the indict-

Council is also expected to discuss the safety of the oceanfront beaches again Monday. Since the last formal meeting, representatives of the city have met with representatives of the Virginia Beach Committee to Aid Water Safety to discuss a committee report which criticized certain safety precautions being taken by the present lifeguard service on the oceanfront beaches.

The same committee also again asked that Croatan Beach be opened to surfing, as had been earlier suggested by the city but objected to by residents. There are indications that legal objections may have been overcome and the area may still be available on a temporary basis to surfers this summer.

folk hearing on Wednesday said Judge Mehrlige, in addition to ordering the return of the film, also ruled that no additional action could be taken against the theater management by his office or the police department should the theater begin public showing of the film again. Evans said this was stipulated in Mehrlige's decision which read in part "... are hereby restrained and enjoined from seizing any prints of films, or threatening so to do, or otherwise interfering with the exhibition of any films exhibited by the plaintiffs prior to a determination of obscenity in an adversary proceeding."

Police Det. Sgt. E. F. Buzzy told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN representatives of the Star Theater came to police headquarters at Princess Anne Court-house shortly after the conclusion of the Norfolk court hearing to take repossession of the film, and indications were given that plans had already been made to begin public showings of the film.

ment was returned prior to a final ruling on the case by Juvenile Court Judge Thomas F. Betz, Jr. Asst. Commonwealth's Attorney Ronald Hammer moved for a dismissal of the initial charge and recharged the accused before Circuit Court Senior Judge Robert S. Wahab, Jr., could rule on the defense petition.

Another Fatality

A 43-year-old man became the 17th traffic fatality of the year in Virginia Beach as the result of an accident Friday night. Police identified the man as Russell Bums, Jr., of Shell Road. According to authorities Bums was attempting to cross the highway near the intersection of Northampton Blvd. and Bayside Road when he was struck by a tractor-trailer truck. The city had recorded only six traffic fatalities for the year on the same date last year.

Assailant Sought

Police are searching for the assailant of an 18-year-old Virginia Beach girl who says she was raped while walking home from a girl friend's house shortly after midnight Sunday. The girl is quoted with saying her assailant disrobed her and attacked her at knifepoint when she reached an area near the intersection of Tyson Road and Hindsdale Avenue.

Wahab Repeats Ruling

Circuit Court Judge Robert S. Wahab has again found action by the Board of Zoning Appeals "null and void" on a variance the Board granted to Edwin B. Lindsley Jr.

Wahab, who had made the same ruling in the same case earlier, said that the Board could only take action on an appeal from a ruling of the city's zoning officer and could not hear or act on an original application for the variance.

The variance had been granted to Lindsley on property that had once been platted as a street, but closed. The street was Holly Road along the eastern property line of Seashore State Park between 76th and 89th Streets.

The area is zoned residential duplex district 2; Lindsley had sought to reduce the required 75-foot street frontage and 10,000 sq. ft. lot size of this zoning to a 50-foot street frontage and 7,500 sq. ft. lot size. This would permit construction of 48 duplexes rather than 36 duplexes on the land.

Both times the variance was granted to Lindsley, residents of North Virginia Beach appealed the decision to Circuit Court through their attorney, Grover C. Wright Jr.

Lindsley's attorney, Frank E. Butler III and Wright have argued the Board's jurisdiction both times the case has appeared before Circuit Court, and both times Wahab has ruled against the Board having the jurisdiction to grant the variance.

Lindsley has yet to argue his point in court—that is, that the vast majority of lots in North Virginia Beach, even though they are zoned residential duplex district 2, have only 50 feet of frontage and 7,500 sq. ft. of area. The lots were platted before 1954 when the zoning ordinance was adopted and the city is still issuing permits for building duplex homes on the lots. Lindsley is president of Lake George Corp.

These units moved ashore as 700 Naval midshipmen conducted assault landings at Camp Pendleton Tuesday and Wednesday. The exercise climaxed three weeks of amphibious training for the Naval Reserve Officers.

Etheridge: Limelight Or Backstage Role?

There are strong indications Virginia Beach City Treas. V.A. "Jack" Etheridge will not serve in the same key role in the Democratic runoff primary in August as he did in the first primary.

Etheridge was vice-chairman of the William Battle campaign and coordinator of all precinct work statewide. When the results were in and Battle had scored a narrow victory over Henry Howell but not enough to be nominated by a majority, Battle praised Etheridge and said he had played a major part in the victory.

Almost immediately Howell began to pound at Etheridge concerning alleged non-payment of back taxes in Virginia Beach and his involvement in certain real estate deals while City Treasurer. They were the same themes that Howell had hit the week before the primary, and many political observers feel were highly successful, especially in Virginia Beach.

Only one of the Etheridge-backed candidates for the House of Delegates was nominated, incumbent B. R. Middleton, who won by a scant 52 votes over newcomer Bruce Murphy. Independent Richard Guy led the ticket and Etheridge's other candidate, Rhad Adams, trailed in the four-man field.

In addition Battle carried Virginia Beach only a few votes over Howell, while the city had been considered a safe harbor for Battle for some time. In addition the Etheridge-backed United candidates for the City Democratic committee failed to make any significant gains and did not wrest control away from Administration forces, as hoped.

Howell said he is appalled that Battle would let Etheridge stay on in the runoff in view of recent developments. Battle has made no comment on the matter, but speculation has it that Etheridge will be pushed into the background.

Etheridge says his role is up to Battle, but that his work is done now, another indication of the push to the background.

Photographers Meet Here

Photographers from across the state will gather at Lake Wright Motor Hotel July 26-29 for the 71st Annual Convention of the Virginia Professional Photographers' Assn. The four-day meeting will feature judging of salon prints by a panel of master photographers from outside Virginia and discussions by out-of-state professional photographers on various aspects of portrait, commercial and industrial photography.

The Annual Awards Dinner will be held Monday, July 28.

Etheridge says he'll abide by Battle's wishes.

In addition Etheridge has promised to get all his records together and to "set the record straight".

Howell accused Etheridge of using a now-defunct real estate corporation to purchase tax-delinquent lands in Virginia Beach, which were later sold at a large profit. The law forbids such actions by a City Treasurer, and the action would constitute conflict of interest.

Etheridge denied his connection with the company and said he is guilty of no wrongdoing.

In the other matter that has tended to cloud Etheridge's future, the City Treasurer has paid his back taxes for four years on his beach home at False Cape which burned to the ground recently.

He paid about $500 for the years 1966-1969, as required by law, although records indicated he has paid no taxes on the home since he purchased it in 1961. The law is only retroactive for four years.

Through an error the property had never been assessed, but Etheridge claims he has paid taxes on two other parcels at False Cape, one of which he finds now he did not own. He says the matter is still muddled and he doubts if it can ever be cleared up.

Earnings Reported

First & Merchants Corporation has reported earnings of $1.92 per share for the first half of 1969 up 23.1% from $1.56 per share reported for the same period last year by its principal affiliate, First & Merchants National Bank.

Robert L. Gordon, Jr., president, stated that average gross deposits for the first six months were $641,282,000 compared to $604,167,000 last year. Average gross loans were $435,636,000 up from $381,975,000 in the first half of 1968.

Officers for the new fiscal year, beginning Nov. 1, will be elected at the business session July 27.

While Newport News and Hampton may well be the key to success, Virginia Beach could start the ball rolling if a resolution is passed by the Jaycees after hearing the other side.

Jones arrives at the City Registrar's office on his daily rounds of delivering mail in the Princess Anne municipal complex.

Economical System Works

Inter-departmental messages and written memorandums are now being delivered between the various offices at the city hall complex at Princess Anne Courthouse within a matter of hours. Until the first of this month this service required at least one full day.

The saving in time is being accomplished by means of a regular delivery service between offices in the Municipal Center inaugurated on July 1. The service consists of daily pick-ups of messages at the various offices, and delivering them to their destination by Alfred J. Jones, a regular employee of the city's Bureau of General Services. Jones spends each day making continuous rounds of the various offices by means of a converted golf-cart, purchased by the city for this new program. Jones also makes two pick-ups each day of regular mail at the Princess Anne U. S. Post Office sub-station which is destined for city offices in the Courthouse complex.

The service will mean probably an annual savings of some $5,000 for the city, which before was being spent on postage.

Stanton Named Asst. V.P.

Goodman-Segar-Hogan, Inc. announced yesterday that Robert M. Stanton has been named assistant vice-president of the Norfolk-based real estate firm. Stanton will be primarily responsible for the development, financing, leasing and management of shopping centers and retail facilities. He will also continue to be involved with the sale and leasing of other commercial real estate.

Stanton

to send inter-departmental messages throughout the complex. This service in the past required at least one day when the material was sent through regular mail delivery channels.

A spot check of several offices within the Courthouse complex indicate the service is very satisfactory with only minor problems which can be corrected very shortly.

Sewage Rate Accepted

A rate of $8 a quarter, set by the State Corporation Commission for sewage collection by Aragona Utilities, has been tentatively accepted by lawyer for the firm, Joseph J. Lawler.

Lawler agreed last Thursday to the rate until the Supreme Court makes a decision on a case before them involving Princess Anne Utilities. Both Princess Anne Utilities and Aragona Utilities had asked for an increase in rate. The SCC ruled in late June that $8 a quarter was appropriate for Princess Anne Utilities and the firm has appealed to the state Supreme Court. After a ruling has been made on Princess Anne Utilities the Aragona rate will be adjusted to conform to the rate set by the Court.

Aragona Utilities had asked for a $12 increase in its quarterly charge. This would have boosted the rate from $10.50 a quarter to $22.50. Princess Anne Utilities had asked first for an increase from $12 to $28.50, but then reduced the rate charge request to $17.50.

The rates charged by the firms are in addition to a Hampton Roads Sanitation District residential charge of $4.37. The Sanitation District has assumed treatment of sewage from both Aragona Utilities and Princess Anne Utilities.

A representative of the Aragona Village Civic League, Roland Winter, appeared as a witness before the Commission and pointed out that even with the $8 rate the Aragona customers would be paying a 20% increase in charges when the Hampton Roads Sanitation District residential charge is added to the quarterly rate. Customers of Princess Anne Utilities will realize only a small increase, however.

Winter asked that Aragona Utilities continue their $10.50 rate but absorb the treatment charge from Hampton Roads. He asked that this be done for a year and then the company's financial status be reviewed. The charge could then be adjusted if necessary.

Winter also suggested that since Aragona Utilities and

RADGES & BANTER

Last Friday night's staging of the annual Police Ball sponsored by the Princess Anne F.O.P. Lodge No. 8 was a huge success. While a great deal of credit is due the group which provided music for the evening's dancing, and many laughs through a series of comic routines, those in attendance seemed to agree the main feature of the evening was provided by former police detective Donald W. Pope. As the Civic Center was filled with musical strains of "Zorba The Greek" Pope took to the dance floor and entertained all in attendance with an authentic rendition of the "Hora".

This week's check of activities of events at the area golf courses turns up the report that police Det. J. R. Shortal has finally given in to urgings to take up the sport. Shortal says he played his first round last Friday and can't wait to get back on the fairways.

William M. Holland, a member of the staff in the city's fire dispatcher's office is giving up his bachelorhood. "Bill" will take that "long walk down the aisle" in the near future and exchange matrimonial vows with Miss Judith Ann Odom.

Sgt. Edward Adams and officer W. A. Padon, attached to the 2nd Police Precinct, report they are involved in a rather unusual investigation. The only information made public thus far indicates the investigation concerns heavy damage to the boat of a mutual friend of theirs, Jack Pallett, during a periodic cleaning of the boat.

Uniteds Fail in Power Bid

In the wake of last week's Democratic primary the official canvass showed that the Organization or Administration maintained control of the city Democratic committee. A total of 70 seats on the 76-man committee were contested.

Those on the Administration ticket won 38 of those contested seats and the Uniteds won 32. The Uniteds are backed by City Treas. V.A. "Jack" Etheridge, while the Administrations are aligned with political leader Sidney Kellam.

Only in Pungo and in Blackwater were the committee seats uncontested.

In Bayside the Uniteds won 14 of the 15 seats, but the one Administration winner, Commissioner of Revenue Ivan Mapp, led the ticket in total votes.

In Kempsville the Administrations won all 14 seats. In Princess Anne the Administration won eight of the nine seats, leading the voting there also. In Virginia Beach Borough the Administrations won 10 of the 12 seats, again leading the voting tally.

In Lynnhaven the Uniteds took 15 of the 20 available seats. David S. Whitehurst, a Negro, led the ticket.

Both sides sent voters in most boroughs brochures prior to the election concerning their candidates, but there was little interest in the committee election. The success of the Uniteds in the heavily populated areas has been partly attributed to their passing out guide balloons at the polls on election day, while the Administration ticket did not.

Reorganization of the committee will now take place to make plans for the general election, according to city chairman Owen Pickett.

The official canvass showed William Battle's victory over Henry Howell in the gubernatorial primary in Virginia Beach was only by 29 votes. Battle had 5,351 to Howell's 5,322. Fred Pollard had 3,728.

For Lt. Governor, Herman "Hardtimes" Hunt had 1,859; Sargeant Reynolds, 7,911; Moses Riddick, 1,324; and Carrington Thompson, 1,876.

For Attorney General, Guy Farley, 3,668; C. F. "Flip" Hicks, 2,120; Bernard Levin, 3,901; and Andrew Miller, 2,488.

In the House of Delegates race that nominated Richard Guy and B. R. "Bev" Middleton, Rhae Adams had 5,507; Guy, 6,275; Middleton, 6,165; and Bruce Murphy, 6,111.

College President Selected

Dr. Douglas M. Montgomery, president of Blue Ridge Community College at Weyers Cave, today was named president of the Region 22 Community College, which serves the cities of Chesapeake, Norfolk, Portsmouth and Virginia Beach. His appointment is effective July 15, 1969.

The announcement was made by Dr. M. E. Alford, chairman of the Region 22 College Board, following a special meeting of the Board. Alford said that Montgomery will also serve as Acting Provost of the Frederick campus of the College until a Provost is appointed.

A native of California, Dr. Montgomery, 52, served as a fighter pilot in the U.S. Air Force. He retired in 1961.

It is proposed that the Region 22 Community College will ultimately have three, possibly four, campuses. One of these is the Frederick campus in Portsmouth, which had 903 students during the 1968-69 college year, its first year of operation.

Consultants estimate that two years after completion of all facilities at all of the campuses the college should have 2,600 full-time and 10,000 part-time students; after five years, it is estimated that about 3,700 full-time and 14,000 part-time students will be attending the campuses of the College.

The State Board for Community Colleges has requested $3.5-million for 1970-72 for construction of a new campus in Region 22, and $1-million to begin replacement of the Frederick campus.

Presidential Ad Hoc Selection Committee of the Region 22 Community College Board was headed by George K. Eberwine, Jr., with Frank Cox of Virginia Beach, Clarence Forehand, and David Strain serving with him.

Two Die in Rescue Attempt

Two men were accidentally electrocuted Monday morning while attempting to rescue a third man who was injured moments earlier during a tree trimming operation in Oceana.

According to investigators, Jerry A. Hayes, 25, of Chesapeake, came in contact with a high voltage wire while working about 25 feet above ground and was knocked unconscious and left dangling from his safety belt in the tree.

Robert Bedgood, 25, of Norfolk, and Barry L. Hayes, the 18-year-old brother of Jerry Hayes, also of Chesapeake, climbed into the tree to assist Jerry. Apparently Bedgood's wrist came in contact with the high voltage at the moment he brushed against Barry Hayes sending the high voltage current through both of them.

Officials said Bedgood was pronounced dead on arrival at Virginia Beach General Hospital, while Barry Hayes died about 30 minutes later.

Jerry Hayes was released from Virginia Beach General on Tuesday following treatment for burns of the leg, received when he came in contact with the high voltage power line.

Police officer Ivan H. Rich points to the area in which tree trimming operations were in progress when two men were electrocuted.

Beach Escapee Captured

Robert V. Hancock, Special Agent in charge of the FBI office in Norfolk, has announced the capture Wednesday afternoon of Boyce Linwood Layne who escaped from the Virginia Beach City Jail on the night of Monday July 7.

According to Hancock, Layne, 36, was apprehended by law enforcement officers at Smithfield, N.C. Layne's 24-year-old wife, Patricia, was reportedly with Layne at the time of his apprehension.

Full details surrounding Layne's apprehension were not available at press time for the VIRGINIA BEACHSUN. Authorities, however, did say Layne was questioned shortly after his arrest regarding his activities.

A federal warrant was issued by the FBI shortly after Layne's escape on grounds of interstate transportation of a stolen motor vehicle. The charge was in connection with the discovery of an auto at Layne's Virginia Beach home which was reportedly stolen from Raleigh, N.C. Layne was arrested by Virginia Beach police last November on two charges of burglary and one charge of possession of burglary tools.

Layne was in custody awaiting trial on the charges at the time of his escape. Layne escaped from his jail cell by sawing through a bar in his cell door, then forced jailer Philip Waterfield, at pistol point, to summon jailer Robie Evans to unlock a security door leading into the jailer's office. Layne then forced matron Bertha Taylor, also on duty in the jailer's office at the time, to join Waterfield and Evans and locked the trio behind the security door and fled into the darkness.

School Problem$

That time is rapidly approaching that no one wants to talk about. But it must be talked about now. Virginia Beach needs more schools built soon. Many are operating at capacity and beyond. City officials, including school officials, are quite worried about it. Yet nothing is being done.

City Council requires the planning department to seek out necessary school information on all new housing and apartment projects before making any recommendations through the planning commission.

In many cases the projects are approved with the full knowledge that their completion will create a school problem. This was brought home forcefully in the approval of 300 apartments in the Green Run Planned Unit Development by Council last week, even with one dissenting vote. The School Board says it cannot handle the students the apartments will generate, although Green Run has offered to sell a school site to the city.

This is all fine. The city can buy the sites offered at good prices in troubled areas or the cost may be high. That makes little difference. There is no money to buy the sites or to build the schools.

What it means is a school bond issue, and a big one, in November or so of next year, AFTER the next City Council election, not before. And taxes will go up as the result. But present Councilmen and potential candidates who will soon be appearing for the June election had best not try to hide these facts from the people or they will suffer the consequences.

It must be faced now that the city must and will continue to grow rapidly, and that it's going to cost money.

Stopping or stunting growth is not the answer. But the citizens cannot be deluded while too many hide behind broad general statements until after an election. We have a right to know now. We'll learn to accept the facts.

Pride and Dissent

To those who would cast out words of dissent at a time when man has accomplished such a magnificent feat as landing men on the moon, we have nothing but contempt.

To attempt to take away from the event by pointing to national and international problems faced by the United States at this moment is slightly short of heresy.

To those hypocrites who would also have badmouthed Columbus, the Wright Brothers, Robert Fulton and the inventor of the wheel at their glorious moments of achievement, we feel a sense of pity.

But to the rest at home and aboard whose shining faces and renewed national pride reflect an oft-forgotten faith in our country and the ability of its leaders, we can look and see the hope of the future. Apollo 11 has brought us from an apathetic state much closer to unity, the few frustrated, disturbed dissenters notwithstanding.

Are Our Beaches Safe?

A group of private citizens who have banded together and formed the Committee to Aid Water Safety in Virginia Beach deserves much praise. Their concern for safe beaches here is certainly shared by all of us.

Their report to City Council of a time and motion study made of existing beach safety and lifeguards was not very pleasant reading. It was, in fact, rather frightening.

Those responsible now for beach safety have a difficult task to perform, especially as the number of bathers and surfers grows each year. It obviously is up to them to provide the best service possible. While the report does not specifically condemn anyone or even severely criticize present service, it does leave many questions unanswered and many reasons to doubt we are receiving the very best protection now.

City officials have discussed the matter fully with the new committee. Both say they feel meetings held subsequent to the presentation of the report have been beneficial. If there are problems, and there appear to be some, they should be cleared up now before there is more loss of life.

Already we have had two drownings in the ocean on protected beaches this summer. Not all accidents can be prevented. This is sure. But questions have been raised now that must be answered. We are entitled to the best protection there is.

Tax and Etheridge

How nice that City Treas. V.A. "Jack" Etheridge has paid his back taxes on his recently burned beach home at False Cape. He has done what the law requires. He has paid taxes on the property and improvements that had not been assessed before because of a gross error somewhere. He has paid up for the years 1966 through 1969.

But for the other four or five years that he owned the property in question he did not pay. Granted nothing can legally make him pay. But it would certainly seem that a man who holds such an important position and deals with tax dodgers and delinquents as a matter of course has a moral obligation to clear up this mess.

To dismiss the situation as hopelessly confused and frustrating is simple and solves nothing. Full payment would certainly help clear it all up.

SPEAKING OF SKY-ROCKETS --

Backs Film

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: As one who is giving serious consideration to moving to Virginia this fall, I recently subscribed to your newspaper as a means of helping to get the feel of your community. Up until this "I Am Curious (Yellow)" incident, I have been favorably impressed, and I feel compelled to express my concern.

As you may or not be aware, the film has been playing here and in other communities across the nation without incident for some time. There are two fundamental principles involved. One is that a theatre is private property and that only those who WISH to do so enter. Nobody stands on the sidewalk and COMPELS people to go in. The other is that NOBODY has the MORAL right (Constitutional freedoms, etc., be hanged) to tell somebody else what he may view in a theatre, or read in a book, any more than he has the right to tell him where he may worship or what he may eat.

I have often heard Virginia referred to as the "birthplace of the nation". I had supposed that if it were born there, it might also since its birth have reached emotional maturity there as well. Am I indeed incorrect?

Wants Protection

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: I feel that the citizens of this city have been most tolerant in overlooking the fall breaks that we've had in recent months. But I feel that we should now begin to take a hard look at this situation since there seems to be no improvement in this area.

I further feel that we are entitled to more protection from this department rather than allowing armed prisoners to escape and placing all of our lives in jeopardy.

Let's give this situation a shake-down. I feel that our citizenry deserves more protection.

Aaron A. Parsons

Thanks

Editor's Note: The following letter is a copy of one sent to the Kempsville Rescue Squad, Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN:

This letter comes to express and convey our sincerest gratitude for the quick response to our petition for help on July 11, 1969, at approximately 2 a.m. when a visiting relative became critically ill.

Little did we realize when we retired for the evening that before dawn our doors would open and we would gladly welcome three strangers who were not in need themselves - but whom we needed desperately.

The emergency caused temporary panic in our home, but the efficiency, calmness, consolation and concern of the gentlemen proved to be so reassuringly comforting that soon the elements of panic decreased and the knowledge that aid had arrived calmed the frayed nerves of the members of the family and a more realistic viewpoint of the situation could be accepted.

Thank you again and may you always have the presently exhibited "beyond the call of duty" dedication and devotion to volenteeringly serving others.

If at anytime you chance to feel that your work is not really appreciated remember there is a family on Hubber Lane in Virginia Beach who will always reserve a special place for you in their hearts, minds and prayers. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Cleaves, Sr.

Special Report

No 'Battle' Lines Yet

The battle lines are not yet drawn for the runoff primary in August, if one can pardon the intentional pun. As a matter of fact, those lines may not be clearly drawn at all, because the results of the first primary are so muddled.

Henry Howell, riding the crest of his big second-place showing in the primary has momentum going for him and now he's turned his biggest guns on William Battle, he now classes Battle as one of the big boys, especially since Governor Godwin has given his support to Battle. And lest we forget, it is Howell's avowed purpose to get the big boys and to keep them honest.

And he almost did it in the primary. Howell's win in Norfolk and in most of Tidewater (he almost won Virginia Beach too) came without the help of the big boys. For instance the two major daily papers in Norfolk endorsed Battle and assailed Howell at every turn. The voters did not agree.

Oddly enough those same newspapers supported the Attorney General candidacy of Andrew Miller, who espouses almost the same line of thought as Howell. After the primary, they urged Howell not to seek the runoff and give the thing to Battle in favor of unity. But they did not ask Miller to get out of the race. They urged Guy Farley, his runoff opponent, to get out.

Needless to say, neither heeded the urging, and if past performances are any barometer, the voters in Tidewater might just vote more heavily for Howell and Farley because of this.

Without that same support Bernard Levin won big in all of Tidewater in the Attorney General's race although he failed across the state. His support in the runoff could prove to be decisive and he's not talking yet.

The voting trends in the primary cannot be effectively measured in this area because of a few important last-minute developments. In Virginia Beach, for instance, the attacks on City Treas. V.A. "Jack" Etheridge by Howell concerning non-payment of back taxes and his alleged involvement in certain real estate transactions definitely hurt everybody but Etheridge. How bad that hurt was can never be known.

Etheridge, as key campaign manager for Battle in the precincts across the state, was barely able to carry Virginia Beach for his candidate. One of his two House of Delegates candidates, Rhae Adams failed badly in his attempt to be nominated. The other, incumbent B. R. Middleton, narrowly averted disaster and was nominated by a slim margin of 52 votes over newcomer Bruce Murphy. Independent Richard Guy led the ticket.

Etheridge maintained his seat on the city Democratic committee, but in the first major challenge to the Administration ticket, failed to win control of that committee. In Lynnhaven Borough the United, headed by Etheridge, were the most successful. In that borough they worked harder than in any other, and on election day handed out a guide ballot to voters. The Administration ticket did not.

Administration candidates led the ticket in several boroughs, including Bayside, Princess Anne and Kempsville.

It has also been reported that Etheridge is no longer really looked to for future elections, mostly because of his current problems. And Howell has said he will not let up on Etheridge.

Etheridge's role in the runoff for Battle is at best, uncertain. He says his job is done and that he just may retire into the background. Battle isn't talking.

Many feel Etheridge can hurt Battle's runoff campaign if the candidate chooses to keep him in a key role. Others say the problems Etheridge has are only in Virginia Beach. It is unlikely that Battle will take a chance the problems are statewide.

Actually nothing has been proved against Etheridge anywhere, but the allegations and the rumors have been enough to cause lots of trouble.

Many political leaders statewide are keeping very quiet where the runoff is concerned. They seem to be waiting to see what each other is going to do. How long they will wait, or whether they will adopt a Harry Byrd, Sr. "golden silence" remains to be seen.

Also the battle (pun still intended) wages quietly behind the scenes at present, with all indications of a wild runoff campaign to come in the heat of summer.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"But wasn't it all terribly exciting?" she asked. "Didn't it get to you at all?"

"Sure it did," he yawned. "But I'm surely sleepy this morning."

"I can't see why," she said. "You went to bed before I did, and I'm fine."

"You're just numb," he pointed out. "And too full of national pride. I'm full of indigestion. I ate too much junk waiting for them to walk around on the moon."

"Didn't you sleep after you went upstairs?" she wanted to know.

Lunar-see in Black and White

"No," he said. My stomach was too upset. Everytime I'd doze off I'd dream a moon monster from a football field-sized crater was chasing me at one-sixth of gravity and Mission control was watching it all on telemetry, whatever that means."

"I think you watched television too long yesterday," she said. "I didn't have any trouble sleeping. As soon as I knew they were sleeping on the moon, I could go to sleep."

"Well, the tooth I broke didn't help either," he said. "I didn't know you broke a tooth," she said. "How'd that happen?"

"I did it on a kernel of popcorn," she said. "You shouldn't have been eating it and everything would have been all right."

"You've got a point there," he said. "It's a good thing men don't go to the moon every weekend. I'd never live through it."

"The girls just had to get up," she said. "I don't believe they ever went to sleep at all. They were so excited."

"The girls I didn't mind you getting up even if they did get a little irritable before the astronauts finally came out of that thing. But why did you get the year-old baby up?" he asked. "I thought he ought to see history being made," she said simply.

"Do you really expect him to remember it when he's two years old?" he asked just as simply.

"That doesn't make any difference," she said. "I thought he ought to see it."

"Perfect female logic," he said. "Suppose a moon monster or Diet Smith or somebody had been there and attacked them. Would you have wanted him to see that history?"

"That wouldn't happen," she said. "I knew everything was going to be all right."

"That's great. NASA is scared to death, and you're sure everything is going to be all right," he said.

"They wouldn't show it on television otherwise," she said. "Yeah," he said wryly. "They wouldn't show any violence on television."

"Well," she said. "I was only upset by one thing."

"What was that?" he asked, fully realizing he should have ignored her.

"I don't see why they couldn't have televised that moon walk in color," she said.

"Some people are just never satisfied," he said. "A television picture, and a good one at that, coming a quarter-of-a-million miles into your air-conditioned family room, while you sat with your feet propped up eating candy and sipping a cool drink, and you want something more."

"Yes," she said. "I would have enjoyed it more if it had been in color. The girls wanted to know why it was in black and white too."

"I explained it to them," he said. "and they understood fully. I told them there was no color on the moon. But if that doesn't satisfy you, write a letter to NASA."

"He's in Egypt, isn't he?" she asked.

"Very funny," he said. "I'm glad they didn't walk any longer. I couldn't have taken any more of your humor this morning."

"Just think how long we'll have to stay up when they land on Mars," she said.

"I hope it's in color," he said.

Other cases which the court settled involved 38 on alleged traffic law violations and 14 on family domestic problems. There were four cases of parental non-support during the above calendar dates.

Double Header Set at Dome

Canella Dairies, in cooperation with the City of Virginia Beach, will present the world famous COWSILLS and THE CHECKMATES, LTD., at the Virginia Beach Civic Center for two concerts at 7:30 and 10:00 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 2.

Freckles, laughter, big brown eyes, a "Munster-like mansion" in Newport, R. I., a mini-mommy, and a whole lot of talent. This is a COWSILL. Five hundred years of making families from all the people of all the countries of the world, the COWSILLS happened. They are an entirely new dimension in entertainment today. The music industry was ready and, in fact, waiting for the COWSILLS.

The COWSILL corporation reads as follows: Bill, Bob, Barry, and John Cowsill—comprising the nucleus of the group. Their mini-mommy, Barbara Cowsill, lends her sweet, clear voice to the boys' harmony whenever it is needed and wherever they might go. The road managers, Dick and Paul Cowsill, who chose not to enter the performing end of the complex, keep equipment straight and in order throughout their journeys.

There is also a Cowsill baby, sweet and cute as can be—Susan Cowsill (who is constantly teased by her all brother family, who, although they'll never admit it publicly, adore her) and Mr. Cowsill, who, like any father would be, is stuck with the job of coordinating the conglomeration.

Bud Cowsill believes that love is a key word in raising a family, especially his. "When the kids do the right thing, they know it. And when they do the wrong things, they know it." However, it is difficult for any father to actually define right and wrong. The only constant is love. "If I slip in some area, love will cover it. It's crazy, but I think you read me." Cowsill has said on many occasions, "Whenever any member of the family has a problem, we do it all families—sweet, all the while helping it work itself out."

Appearing with The Cowsills are The Checkmates Ltd.—five explosively talented individuals. They are performers in the true sense of the word, and they don't walk off-stage until they have thoroughly exhausted themselves. The obligation and responsibility which the group feels towards its audience doesn't just begin and end on-stage.

"To define the word 'entertainer' is to go out and give a part of yourself, which you really have to do if you sincerely feel a love for what you're doing," is the opinion of Bobby Stevens, spokesman for the group. "I know that with any member of our group, if we don't give ourselves—all of ourselves—then we feel we haven't done the job!"

"We enjoy every minute, every second we're onstage, and we emphatically believe that every entertainer has an obligation to the public, because they make us! We do not make them," he continues.

Each of The Checkmates writes music for the group, music which mixes sincerity and comedy, rock rhythms with blues and ballads—dynamic, forceful entertainment.

Their arrival on top is no surprise to anyone who has watched their star in ascent. Their enthusiastic audiences are convinced The Checkmates Ltd. have no limitations.

Don't miss the COWSILLS and THE CHECKMATES, LTD., at the Virginia Beach Civic Center on Saturday, Aug. 2. Tickets are priced at $4.00 Reserved Seat; $3.50 Reserved Section; and $3 General Admission; both Reserved Section and General Admission are on a first come, first served basis.

English Personalized

A group of Virginia Beach educators have just completed a guide which should improve both the learning and teaching of English in the elementary grades.

Since the School Administration adopted the Roberts English Series two years ago, teachers and supervisors have sought improvements over the basic program.

The basic idea of the guide is more individualized instruction for the students—the concept which will be tested in some ungraded first grades this fall. Progress is left up to the pupil.

The group, nine teachers and several principals, spent last week organizing individual lesson packets to cover each lesson in grades three through seven of the Roberts texts. The packets, which should be available for all teachers in September, will be used to correct weaknesses of the student, to help slow learners, to help those transferring from outside the school system to catch up or to simplify the making up of missed work when a child has been absent.

The packets give explicit directions to the child. Pages or chapters are listed for him to read. Then he is given work sheets to complete. He also has sample test questions, and, when he feels he is ready, he may ask his teacher for the test on that particular packet. He must score 80-90% accuracy before moving on to the next chapter. Each packet has cross-references to lessons from the year before for review.

One of the main goals of the Roberts Series is to enrich creative writing. It has now been adopted through the 12th grade. Additional supplementary materials include tape recordings and film strips. The children learn freedom of expression and appreciation of their own ideas.

"Creativity is extinguished when 'messy' or 'poorly done' is the only comment written on the paper by a teacher," said Mrs. Ruth Bridges, elementary supervisor who conducted the workshop.

"We've been trying to think of ways to help the teachers," added Mrs. Bridges, "but we didn't have the material to give them."

The packets will cover only small segments of material at a time. The teachers feel there will be no stigma attached to using them since they will almost all use them at one time or another. "It's ridiculous to expect all children to learn at the same rate," said Mrs. Bridges.

She said that diagnostic tests can pinpoint what a child doesn't know, then packets can be assigned accordingly.

Although the teachers were paid for the week-long workshop, they had been working on the program off and on since January without pay.

Conference Speakers Announced

At a week-end conference on "Prayer and Meditation" at the Association for Research and Enlightenment, a featured speaker will be Louise Eggleston, the well-known religious leader and conductor of world tours.

She will speak on "The Dynamics of Prayer" on Sunday, July 27 at 8 p.m. On the same day, at 3:30 p.m., John Ficht will talk on "The Light." Ficht is a clinical psychologist, at present instructor in the department of psychology at Norfolk State College.

Other speakers at the conference will be Hugh Lynn Cayce, who will talk on Saturday, July 26, at 8 p.m. "The Seven Spiritual Centers of Man." Also, Mrs. Ann Clapp, Mrs. Shirley Winston and Worth Kidd, who will speak, respectively, on Friday, July 25 at 8 p.m.; Saturday at 9:30 a.m. and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. on "Meditation."

UCF Rents Theatre

R. L. Sheetz, executive director of Tidewater United Communities Fund, has verified a report that UCF will rent office space in the Princess Theatre Building on Virginia Beach Blvd.

According to Sheetz the decision to rent the space was made by the UCF Executive Committee at a meeting held on July 10. Negotiations are still incomplete, but the space should be ready Labor Day or soon afterward.

Sheetz says the action is being taken in view of the volume of business being done by UCF in Virginia Beach. Based on the 1967-68 service figures and the 1969 goal, UCF will do approximately $621,000 of business here this year.

United Communities Fund first considered building, but discarded the idea in favor of renting the office space. The Princess Theatre Building was chosen, according to Sheetz, because "it is a good, accessible place near the concentration of population."

The UCF agencies to be housed in the space are the Virginia Beach Red Cross unit, YWCA, Child and Family Services, an executive office for Girl and Boy Scouts and an office for scheduling agencies such as the Catholic Child and Family Service and the Jewish Family Service. There will be one receptionist for all of the agencies.

The office space to be rented covers about 3,200 sq. ft. and will cost about $4.90 a sq. foot per month including utilities. Approximately 10 or 12 people will be located at the new offices, but the only staff addition will be the receptionist—the rest are being relocated.

United Communities Fund in this area, which includes Eastern Chesapeake, Norfolk and Virginia Beach, announced this week that a proposed merger with the Portsmouth UCF had been rejected by Portsmouth. The committee planning the merger said another effort will be made in the future.

Florida Economics Studied

Economic development in two Florida cities is being studied this week by a seven member Virginia Beach committee of the Virginia Beach Development Council.

Richard Cockrell is chairman of the committee. Other members are Mrs. Laura Lamb, Robert DeFord, David Norman, Clinton Shanks, Robert Turner and Larry Sanello.

They will visit Jacksonville and Ft. Lauderdale. The committee hopes to find out how Jacksonville gets its leads on industries seeking locations and to find out what the city offers prospective industries. Similar discussions will be held in Ft. Lauderdale.

Findings of the committee will be discussed when the group returns later at a closed session of the Development Council on Aug. 12. Recommendations will then be made to City Council.

Tips Must Be Reported

Employees who receive cash tips of $20 or more in any calendar month, while working for one employer, must report the amount of tips received to that employer.

James P. Boyle, District Director of Internal Revenue for Virginia, pointed out that cash tips are subject to withholding of income and Social Security taxes and must be reported to the employer on or before the 10th day of the following month.

The internal revenue service has available free of charge Document 5635, "Employee's Daily Record of Tips and Report of Tips to Employer," which explains briefly the requirements of the law and the forms needed to make the necessary report.

Population Explosion Hits Park

Seashore State Park, which lies just off Shore Drive between Chesapeake Bay, Broad Bay and Lynnhaven Bay, grows more popular each year.

There is little wonder at the park's popularity, for it has two important attractions: a chance to view nature in an almost untouched state and a place to "get away from it all." The nature trails and dunes provide unusual and interesting study to nature lovers and the beach and campground are there for the vacationer who enjoys "roughing it."

The Natural Area at Seashore State Park is open, without charge, to all visitors. There are more than 30 miles of trails in the 2,000-acre park, but the most popular trail is the Bald Cypress Trail. This particular trail is composed of two sections, each a mile and a half long.

A new building was constructed at the park this year to house the nature displays. The building is of a unique design, for it is built so that certain displays may be seen even when the building is closed.

There are two exhibits in the building right now that are of special interest—one is a display of the types of life found along the seashore in this area (this exhibit was donated by the Nautilus Shell Shop) and the other is a live beehive.

J. C. Killinger, park superintendent, says he has seen people sit down and look at the beehive for hours. It is located in a container like an ant farm and the bees fly into the hive from the outside through a transparent plastic pipe.

Although there are many visitors to the Natural Area right now, Killinger says the best time to view the area is in mid-winter, because there is less undergrowth.

There are 20 cabins in the park which can be rented for $82.50 a week. The cabins are rented by reservation out of Richmond and are full all summer.

In addition to the cabins there are 338 campsites. About half are tent sites and about half are trailer sites, although some can be used for both. According to Killinger there have been a few more trailers than tents this year.

The campground has showers, restrooms, picnic tables for campers' use, a convenient store located right on the campground and even a park chaplain, sponsored by the Virginia Beach Ministerial Association.

The camp store is managed by D. G. Pittard, a former state employee who retired seven years ago...and then went to work! Pittard says, "We carry most everything we get calls for, but you can't please everybody...we can feed them, anyway." Pittard says the only thing his store does not carry that he receives many calls for is hot coffee. "We just don't have the facilities." This is Pittard's second season at the store.

There are programs presented in the evenings to the campers at a small amphitheater by the store. The programs are usually nature programs—films or talks by the two naturalists employed by the state for the park. Sometimes the state police present programs on safety. Killinger says there are usually about 300-500 people present at these programs.

"There is a big demand for camping in the Virginia Beach area," comments Killinger. "We hold an average of 1,450 people and we are full from about the 12th of June through Labor Day." When the campground is full an average of about 150-200 but there are some days when units are turned away a day, as many as 300 units have to look elsewhere to roost. According to Killinger, camping facilities in this area are so limited that many of those turned away go to another state.

The park begins to let people in at 7 a.m. to wait for an empty campsite, since reservations cannot be made for the sites. Last Friday there were 68 units waiting by 7:45 a.m. for a campsite.

Killinger says that all sizes and shapes of units—and people—visit the park. According to him there are repeaters who come year in and year out if they can make it. Some of them haven't missed a year since the campground reopened about nine years ago.

One large group of visitors, says Killinger, are Canadians. The Canadians are usually extremely pleased with the weather here. Killinger says they always have good camping equipment.

In the four years that Killinger has been there he says that there have been visitors to the park from Chile, France, Germany and Peru in addition to the frequent number of Canadians.

Recent figures released by the director of the state's Department of Conservation and Economic Development show that 276,500 people have visited the park in a 28-week period. These figures make Seashore State Park Virginia's busiest park.

People Are Biggest Show on Boardwalk

Some days you just can't find a baby sitter.

The chicken wire has been put away for another year.

The Boardwalk Art Show was great—but the people there were even greater. The variety was endless—from the bearded and bespectacled intellectual to the long-haired and somewhat dirty hippy. That's one thing you can depend on at the show each year—everybody gets his chance.

The professionals come, but so do the weekend painters and the retirees who have picked up art as a hobby.

This year there was a question of pornography. I wonder if the show would have accepted paintings by Rubens, the Flemish artist who was noted for his paintings of somewhat buxom bodies. A few years ago the show weathered the storm of integration.

One has to admire the endurance of these artists, 415 this year, who traveled from all over the United States to bask in the sun on the Boardwalk for five days. This year's show was not marred by the rain that interrupted it at times for the past two years except for a shower on the last day. All they had was heat.

The show is a combination of many things. For some it is a chance for recognition. For others it is a chance to compare techniques with other artists and see how things have changed in a year. For many it is a chance to display their work for the public to enjoy and hopefully buy.

For the spectator it is an opportunity to see real art at first hand and to shop for original art pieces.

The top prize of $1,000 for Best in Show went to Carl Schwartz of Chicago for an oil painting entitled "Food Series, Repose." First prize winners were Jerry James of Norfolk, oils and acrylics; Russell Bradley of Philadelphia, watercolor; Carlton Abbott of Williamsburg, mixed media; Noyes Capehart Long of the University of Miss., prints; Wilbur Chadwick of Norfolk, drawing; Bruce Fink of Woodstock, Conn., sculpture; June Kapos of Falls Church, Va., ceramics.

Special awards went to Margery Caggiano of Baltimore, N.Y., representational oil or acrylic; Russell Bradley of Philadelphia, watercolor; Jeffrey Dunn of Gainesville, Fla., contemporary art; and Ron Dembosky of Drexel Hill, Pa., for the cover of the 1970 souvenir program.

'I Just Baked You a Cake'

What are you making?" inquired the six-year-old as I got out the mixing bowl.

"Nothing yet. I'm going to fix a cake for your daddy when I get organized."

"Can I help?"

"Yes, you can get out of the kitchen. That is about the best help I can have."

"I want to watch."

"Okay, but keep out of my way."

That's all she needed. She pulled a chair over to the counter and hung over the bowl. "What's that?"

"That's baking powder. It makes the cake rise."

"Can I crack the eggs?"

"I don't think you're old enough yet," I answered advisedly.

"I've done it before."

"Well, be careful."

She was. She carefully cracked an egg on the edge of the bowl and watched fascinated as it slid across the counter top. "I'll try again."

"Oh, no you won't. Take a towel and clean it up—off the floor too."

"Let me pour the milk in."

"Not on your life."

"What are you going to do now?" she inquired.

"I'm going to grease the pans so the cake won't stick to them."

"I can do that."

"Just don't make a mess!"

Actually, she did a pretty good job of it—except that she greased the outsides too.

Twenty minutes later she returned to the kitchen. "Is it ready yet?"

"You'll have to wait a few more minutes."

"Let me see," she said and opened the oven door before I could grab her. "Why do the layers sink in the middle?"

Before I could answer, her father came in the door and she rushed out. "Guess what, Daddy, I just baked you a cake."

Volunteer Performs 'Labor of Love' at Hospital

By Yatta Jones

"All hospital work is rewarding, but I really like being in here," says Mrs. C.W. Walkley about her volunteer work as manager of the gift area of the hospital coffee shop.

Mrs. Walkley has held her present job since the new hospital opened in 1965. Prior to that she had worked on the front desk at the old hospital. "I had done everything," she says, "except be a nurse's aide." Hospital work is something Mrs. Walkley says she has always wanted to do.

She has had past experience in working with non-profit organizations with operations similar to the gift area of the hospital coffee shop. One of the aspects she particularly likes about her work now is the opportunity it provides her to meet other people. "You'd be surprised at the contact you make with human beings here...sometimes you just talk to people, or get them to eat when they need to, or hand them a hanky when they're depressed."

The gift area is one of the two fund raising activities sponsored by the Hospital Auxiliary...the other is the annual Belote, ways and means chair-horse show. Proceeds from both of these activities go toward the purchase of needed equipment. In fact, money made in the gift area was recently used to help the hospital buy an electronic nebulizer, a piece of inhalation equipment.

Mrs. Walkley is helped in the gift area by Mrs. Carlton man of the Auxiliary. Mrs. Walkley describes Mrs. Belote as "my ever-ready right-hand man, who does all the bookkeeping." They are assisted in the evenings by the coffee shop workers.

In addition to earning money for needed equipment the gift area of the coffee shop is a convenience for both patients and visitors. Items from the gift area are placed on the carts hospital volunteers take around to patients each morning.

"We're always looking for new ideas," Mrs. Walkley says, "and frequently we exchange our ideas with people who come from other hospitals." Although the gift area does carry some purchased items, the majority of the items are made and donated—those are the things they make money on, according to Mrs. Walkley.

Some of the handmade and donated items carried in the gift area are sweater sets, rag dolls (all sizes), kimono, diaper shirts, silk scarves, bed socks, sachets, hand decorated note paper, paper back book covers and flower arrangements. They also carry used paper back books for $.20 each (mysteries and adventure stories are the most popular) and hard back books for $.60 each. There are cookbooks for sale there which are comprised of 2,000 favorite recipes from Hospital Auxiliary members all over the world.

Most of the sweater sets are made by two ladies—one an active volunteer and the other former volunteer who had to curtail her activities because of a heart attack.

There is even a collection of oil paintings for sale in the gift area. Mrs. Walkley keeps only a few of the paintings at a time because of the lack of space, but there are several paintings in the collection. The collection is an indirect inheritance. A woman wanted to do something for the Auxiliary so she bequeathed several trees in her yard to the Auxiliary. Since the trees could not be utilized the oil paintings were substituted.

Mrs. Walkley normally spends two days a week in the

(some of which are made with railroad scale model people, houses, etc.) and wall plaques. "My house is like a giant workshop," she comments. "There's just no place to store all of the stuff it takes...by the way, I have a very patient husband!"

Asking Mrs. Walkley to give an estimate of the time she puts into her hospital volunteer work brought this response, "It's hard to say how many hours you put into this, because nobody knows...it's a labor of love."

Plants Can Be Irritating

Poison ivy has hogged the spotlight but chrysanthemums, daisies, feverfew, philodendrons, nettles and buttercups can be equally irritating, according to Dr. Albert H. Slepian.

The University of Illinois dermatologist calls these plants "bad actors"--botanical irritants which provoke skin and eye reactions in sensitized people.

The irritating chemicals may be anywhere in the plant, from leaf to tuber, and the poison capacity depends upon the weather, the season, the terrain and the stage of development.

Unfortunately, once you develop a sensitivity to one plant, you're likely to become sensitive to other irritant plants as well.

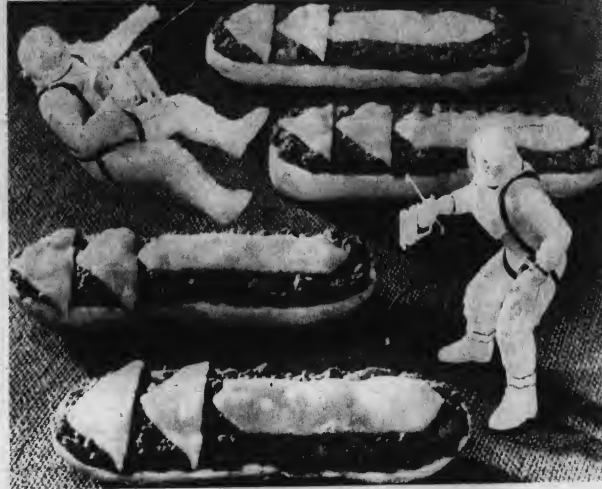

Enjoying themselves at the ball were Ball Chairman and Mrs. Charles Cummings and Det. Sgt. and Mrs. Douglas McCloud. He is F.O.P. president.

Missile Burgers Treat 'Spacemen'

For a space-age treat during National Sandwich Month, try Missile Burgers--an appetizing sandwich recipe developed in the test kitchens of the H. J. Heinz Company.

Missile Burgers are a tasty tribute to the spectacular efforts of our astronauts. You may not be able to take a trip to the moon, but you can enjoy an "out-of-this-world" sandwich, right at home.

Missile Burgers are a combination of ground beef chuck, Heinz Ketchup, Worcestershire Sauce and Mustard. American cheese slices, cut to indicate the shape of a missile, garnish the top of the sandwich. Baked in the oven until the sandwich is hot and the cheese melted, these tasty Burgers will appeal to the young and old "spacemen" at your house.

MISSILE BURGERS

- 1 lb. ground beef chuck
- *3 tlb. Ore-Ida Fresh Frozen Chopped Onions
- 2 tlb. butter or margarine
- 1/2 c. Heinz Tomato Ketchup
- 1 tlb. Heinz Mustard
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. Heinz Worcestershire Sauce
- 1/2 tsp. chili powder
- 1/8 tsp. pepper
- 2 hoagie rolls (approximately 8 inches long)
- 4 slices (1 once each) American cheese, cut into thirds.

Heat oven to 350 degrees F. Brown meat and onions in butter in skillet until pink color disappears. Stir in ketchup and next 5 ingredients. Cook rolls in half lengthwise. Spoon a generous 1/2 cup meat mixture on each half, spreading to edges of roll. Arrange 3 pieces of cheese on top of meat. Place on baking sheet; bake 10 minutes or until hot and cheese is melted. Cut each sandwich in half, if desired. Serve with

During National Sandwich Month, treat the "spacemen" at your house to MISSILE BURGERS...an "out-of-this-world" sandwich adventure.

Heinz Mustard, Ketchup or Pickle Slices. Makes 4-8 servings (2-1/2 cups meat mixture).

POLE BEANS ORIENTAL

Remove tips from 1 pound fresh Florida pole beans; slice diagonally into 1-inch pieces. Melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine in a large skillet. Add beans along with 1 medium onion, finely chopped and 1 clove garlic, finely minced. Saute over medium heat, stirring occasionally, 8 to 10 minutes. Season with 1/2 teaspoon salt and dash ground black pepper. Serve with meat, fish or poultry. Yield: 4 portions.

Lemon Turns on Taste

Whether a cook is from the Orient, Europe or South America--or Des Moines, Iowa--chances are he or she will turn on lemon juice at turn on taste in many recipes. Foods which require this international favorite are served for breakfast, lunch and dinner--and between meal snacks.

With this in mind, ReaLemon Foods, makers of convenient bottled lemon and bottled lime

HERE COMES OLGA!

The Virginia Beach Fraternal Order of Police held their annual ball at the Civic Center Friday night.

They had a very good crowd but everyone was so very quiet as well as inactive. I have noticed that every one of these dances that I have covered that the crowd is very slow in participating. They seem to just sit around the tables and talk for such a long time. Once they get in the mood they really enjoy themselves.

The band, Freddy Cole Funatics, were really outstanding. The band consisted of a drummer, piano player and saxophone player. Accompanying the band were two very attractive young ladies, Sharon Hammond and June Lori. To me this group was one of the most outstanding I have ever heard or seen. The girls sang and danced. Finally the vivaciousness of the girls and the rhythm of the band began to penetrate the people and they began to get up and dance and enjoy themselves. Boy, when they finally got going they really did go.

It was really funny to see some of the crowd doing such dances as the hitchhiker, monkey, mashed potatoes, etc. They were led by the young ladies on the stage. Somehow, whether you knew how to do these dances or not, you wanted to try because the band just seemed to make you come alive. Of course,

Now comes the season for iced coffee. As we empty our ice trays and prepare the frosty drink, let us give a grateful thought to Dr. John Gorrie of Apalachicola, Florida, who on May 6th 1851 received a patent for the manufacture of ice by mechanical means. If Dr. Gorrie were with us today he might invent an ice tray that empties quickly and easily--but we can't have everything.

Detective Doug McCloud is the president of the Virginia Beach F.O.P. Charles Cummings was chairman for the dance.

I talked with Freddy Cole of the band to ask him would he be returning to Virginia Beach for any other engagements. Much to my disappointment he only gets here about twice a year, once in the fall and once in the summer.

Notice the unsightly appearance of battered and lidless garbage cans in front of rented property in North Virginia Beach and other places in our resort area. You can spot cans in various degrees of dilapidated condition and even some makeshift cartons. In many instances, they are put out too long before collection and left out too long after collection.

1. Provide each tenant with at least two adequate-size garbage cans with tight fitting lids.
2. Paste in a prominent spot in the kitchen of the rental unit a copy of the City Ordinance having to do with garbage collections and a statement of the days of collections in that area.

There is a simple remedy available if owners of rented property would do two things:

Please, Mr. Property Owner, help your tenant to obey the garbage laws.

Modifications Mean Approval

Sports car racing comes to Virginia Beach Aug. 9 and 10, under the auspices of the Old Dominion Region of the Sports Car Club of America.

The races will be held at the Greater Tidewater Fairgrounds in Pungo. Another race is being planned in the fall.

Steve Rose, owner-manager of the fair, has been working for some time to bring the events to Virginia Beach. SCCA officials examined the site recently and informed Al Lindemann, regional director of approval.

Modification of the existing track at the fairgrounds was necessary to meet SCCA requirements, according to Rose. The revisions are now underway.

About $4,000 worth of asphalt is currently being laid to join the two concrete runways of the old Navy airport which was on the site some years ago. Rose also said a fence is being put up around the track.

In addition, 1,500 new bleacher seats were scheduled to arrive today for construction at the track. Rose already has 5,000 bleacher seats on the fairgrounds for fair events. The new seats will be added to those after the races and moved back into place for future races.

The first event in August will be a Solo 1, in which cars race separately against the clock. All participating cars must be equipped with rollbars and other safety equipment. Rose said about 75 cars are expected.

He added that this is just the beginning of the racing business in Virginia Beach, and that if it is as successful as the interest would indicate, additional races will be scheduled. By the end of the year he hopes actual races between cars will be possible.

In addition to construction that is necessary for the races Rose said a pit area will be protected by large oil cans half-filled with water and chained together and that more than a thousand bales of hay will protect drivers in turns.

"This is something a lot of people in this city have wanted for a long time," said Rose, "And I'm glad we've been able to bring it to them."

He added that the sanction of 21 tracks across the country has been withdrawn recently because of safety problems, and that the new sanction here makes him particularly proud.

Headquarters for the event in August will be the Jefferson Hotel at 19th and Atlantic Avenue. Registration will be held there for the approximately 200 persons directly involved in the race.

Rose added that the event will undoubtedly bring countless racing fans to Virginia Beach.

Lt. Peacock Takes Tennis Open

Lt. (J.G.) Steve Peacock of Oceana Naval Air Station defeated Lt. (J.G.) Bill Rawls of Explosive Ordnance Disposal Group Atlantic in five sets to win the Fifth Naval District open singles tennis championship.

Peacock had earlier teamed with Lt. Cmdr. Dick Hoff to win the doubles open title, beating Rawls and petty officer Bill Holloway 10-8, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2.

In the singles senior championship Cmdr. Carl Brown over Cmdr. Al Potter 6-0, 6-1. He then joined with Rear Adm. Roger Meile to take the senior doubles, defeating Potter and CWO Ralph Abenante 3-6, 8-6, 6-2.

The tournament, sponsored by Commander Service Force

Atlantic Fleet, was played on the CinLanFlt tennis courts in Norfolk. More than 50 Navy tennis players participated.

The singles open championship match lasted almost 2 1/2 hours. Rawls won the first set 6-3, placing his shots perfectly. He seemed to tire in the 90-degree heat as Peacock won the second and third sets 6-2 and 6-1. Rawls came back to take the next set 6-3, but Peacock won the deciding fifth set 6-2.

Peacock, Brown, Potter, Hoff, Al Venc and Bill Mathews will advance next week to the Navy's South Atlantic Regional Tournament at Corpus Christi, Texas. Winners there will go on to the All-Navy championships at Alameda, California, and the Interservice Meet at Ft. Belvoir.

Units Return to Beach

More than 550 officers and men of the Virginia and Maryland National Guard are now conducting their 1969 annual field training at Camp Pendleton here.

This is the first time since 1948 that many of them have had the opportunity to train at this seaside 700-acre military reservation owned by Virginia.

The camp served as a training center in the large Hampton Roads military community during World War II.

Many Guard units have used it since. The part-time soldiers started arriving for this encampment July 12 and will return home July 26.

Those involved in the camp include: The Virginia Emergency Operation Headquarters, under the command of Col. Samuel R. Gay, Jr., based in Staunton, Va.; The 129th Military Police Battalion, under the command of Lt. Col. George B. Yeates, based in Norfolk; The 283rd Military Police Company, under the command of Capt. Edward H. Ward, based in Richmond; The 121st Signal Company, under the command of Capt. Paul K. Doll, based in Norfolk; The 229th Military Police Company, under the command of Capt. Thomas G. Hammer, based in Norfolk; and The Maryland State Headquarters Detachment, under the command of Maj. Gen. George Gelston, based in Baltimore, Md.

During the first week of activity, most company-size operations are being focused on classroom and on-the-job training.

The military police units are receiving lectures and demonstrations on basic technique and control methods.

The 121st Signal Company, a Selective Reserve Force unit, is conducting training in cable installation, teletypewriter usage and photographic operations.

That company is preparing for its annual Army Training Test, which will be done at nearby Ft. Story next week, where the unit will be bivouac.

Marine Lt. Col. William H. Davis Jr. accepts the unit color and command of Headquarters and Service Battalion, Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic, from departing commander, Lt. Col. Richard L. Etter.

Lt. Col. Edward L. Lisland, Jr., of Hopkins Road; Lance Cpl. Kenneth R. Barnett, of 24th Street; Lance Cpl. Ronald L. Saunders of Kendall Street and Pfc. Granville T. Sturgill of Farnham Lane, all of Virginia Beach and members of Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron-774, Marine Air Reserve Training Detachment, based at the U.S. Naval Air Station, Norfolk, completed two weeks of active duty training on July 20 returned to their civilian occupations. This year's Annual Training Duty was performed at the Marine Corps Air Station (Helicopter) New River, N.C.

While the cost of living has been leaping upward, the cost of electricity has been creeping downward.

The cost of living has risen 136% since 1941. The average annual unit cost of electricity has gone down 46%.

You probably think we're pulling your leg. Because your electric bill is higher, right? Your electric bill is higher because you are using a lot more electricity. The average family uses about six times as much as it used in 1941.

Isn't it a good thing electric rates ran the wrong way in the price race?

Good Production; Dated Play

Lake Wright Playhouse is currently playing a sweet production of Sumner Arthur Long's sweet and schmaltzy comedy, "Never Too Late". It's a well-done production, with some fine acting and direction, but the play itself has lost something over the many, many years its been around.

The story line revolves around a pinch-penny, but highly successful, lumberyard owner and his wife who find that they are about to become parents. Their only child is married to a fellow who is greatly frustrated by his father-in-law.

They all live under the same roof, and the impending blessed event later than usual in life affects each of them in a different way.

Gonzalo Madurga blusters nicely through the roles of Harry Lambert, although he changes the name to Enrico Lamberto to fit his real-life accent. His comedy timing is good, and when the script calls for tenderness, he is highly convincing there too.

Jane Stinson, as his wife, is pleasing as the totally unbelievable woman who does all the work for everyone so cheerfully until her pregnancy. This is the second time Miss Stinson has played the role, and her characterization and timing have improved since the 1966 production at Cavalier Dinner Playhouse also directed by Timothy Jones.

Elektra Lobel handles the china doll to kitchen drudge role of the daughter handily. The change in character is delightful to watch.

Blane Walker, as her husband, also does well with a change of character from "yes man" to his father-in-law to full-fledged lumberyard partner. His drunk scene is especially pleasing.

Terri Reed adds charm and grace to the production with her chic portrayal of the doctor's wife and socialite, James F. Cade is the perfect caricature of a politician in his role of the mayor, even if he does overdo it a bit.

Oliver Lewis is badly miscast in the tiny role of a policeman who appears twice. Each time he appears the action drops.

Jones' direction is lively and clever, but the play is weak. It's still a fun-type family comedy, with a little something for everybody, from sex to sentimentality. And although it will certainly leave no lasting impression, the Lake Wright production gets as much out of it as can be had. HJL.

Graphic Arts Featured

A one man show in Graphics opened July 19 and will be exhibited through July 27 at The Village Gallery in College Park. W.J. Summerlin will be featured in the show. Summerlin will show "What Graphic Art Is." Although he has exhibited in local shows, this will be his first one man show. The public is invited.

The Village Gallery located in the College Park Information Center is at the intersection of Indian River Road and Providence Road, Virginia Beach, Virginia. It is open daily, except Thursday, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday hours are 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. There is no admission charge to the Gallery.

U.S. Air Force Airman I.C. George T. Harris, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Harris, Air Station Drive, is on duty at Nakhon Phanom Royal Thai AFB, Thailand.

Tracy Holmes explains an exhibit to some interested spectators.

Observation Is Key to Study

For eight weeks this summer, 36 high school students are devoting most of their time and effort to studying marine life.

They are members of the marine biology class at Bayside

High School, the only one of its kind in the area. About half of the class time is spent on field trips collecting specimens. In fact, the group is on a field trip this week to Myrtle Beach, Wilmington, Morehead, Beaufort, Ocracoke and Smith Island in North Carolina.

Last Friday night the class had an open house to demonstrate and explain the class. Included were slides of activities, a demonstration of collecting techniques and two laboratories of displays including aquariums from 10 to 110 gallons in capacity.

The class is taught by Nick Savage, Jr., and Miss Sally Armstrong and assisted by Miss Alice West, a student at the University of Miami.

Participants in the class were chosen from applications from throughout the city on the basis of merit. Academic ability, interest and enthusiasm are prime criteria for selection, Savage said.

According to Savage the students average seven hours of study a day. The department is open for three hours on Saturday and Sunday in addition to daytime and evening hours through the week.

The field trips comprise the most effective portion of the course. According to Savage, feeding, defense and protective coloration are but a few of the relevant observations the students make in areas which include salt marshes, inlets, mudflats, dunes, shorelines and others. "The sheer joy of observation is prize enough for hours of patience and waiting."

Drive Progress Reported

R. Bradshaw Pulley, general campaign chairman of the General Hospital of Virginia Beach fund drive, has announced that half of the $1 million goal has been assured by advance gifts.

Pulley's announcement was made last Thursday night at the "kickoff" meeting of the general solicitation phase of the fund. The meeting, held at the Cavalier Hotel, was presided over by B.M. Stanton, chairman of general solicitation.

Pulley reported that the part of the "hospital family" who had completed their solicitation, the employees, reached 90% participation and pledged $45,000. The hospital family has reached nearly $350,000 altogether and when the doctors and directors have finished their solicitation Pulley predicts the fund should pass the $400,000 mark. Pulley said, "This would be 40% of the total campaign goal. This group is making a fine record."

With more than half the assignments still to be completed another advance gifts division, Special Gifts, has reported $140,000 to date. A. Gordon Stephenson is chairman of this division.

The advance gifts divisions should bring in between $750,000 and $800,000 according to Pulley. The remaining $200,000 to $250,000 would be Stanton's division's goal—general solicitation.

In outlining the needs of the hospital to the group at the meeting W. Earl Willis, hospital administrator said, "Our needs are simple. We need more patient beds." Willis told how, since the facility was opened at Hilltop four years ago, the daily census has exceeded the recommended limits for sound operation and the physical bed capacity of the hospital. Results of the expanding population have meant placing patients in corridors and treatment rooms, sending patients to other hospitals and sometimes deferring admission until space is available.

A minimum of $1 million is being sought from the public in three-year commitments. This will enable the directors to utilize a $2-and-a-half million line-of-credit, thus covering the $3,600,000 estimated as the cost of a substantial addition to provide 85 more medical-surgical beds with supporting facilities. Further, an additional fourth floor will be shelled in for future growth.

Interest May Rise On Bonds

Earl V. Slattum, City of Virginia Beach Chairman for U.S. Savings Bonds, was recently queried about the Treasury request to Congress to remove the interest rate ceiling on savings bonds and other government securities.

According to Slattum, "If the legislative request is approved, the interest rate on Series E and H Savings Bonds will be raised from the current 4.25 per cent to 5 per cent, if held to maturity. The increase would be retroactive to June 1, 1969. All outstanding E and H Bonds would also benefit from the new 5 per cent rate, beginning with the first semiannual interest period which starts on or after June 1."

Series E Bonds will have their maturity period reduced from 7 years to 5 years, 10 months. H Bond maturity will remain at 10 years. Both E and H Bonds would enjoy an automatic extension period. The present 5 per cent rate on Freedom Shares would continue unchanged until they are removed from sale 6 months after the proposed legislation becomes law. Authority to extend Freedom Shares at maturity is included in the Treasury's request.

Slattum said that the Treasury's proposal "should give new impetus to the savings bonds program throughout our area."

Workshop Attracts Students

Forty-eight senior high school students from throughout the state attended a unique community service workshop at Virginia Wesleyan College last week.

The workshop is being sponsored by the department of youth work of the Virginia Conference of the United Methodist Church. Five "action" groups participated in various community service projects in the Tidewater area during the week.

The Rev. John W. Morrison, Jr., of Hampton, Va., was director of the workshop. He was assisted by 15 staff members.

Students from Virginia Beach who attended the workshop were Kay Sue Hershman of Edinburg Drive, Lynne Terry of Ingram Road and Patricia Wise of Reuben Street.

Controversy Continues On Sandbridge Campsite

The controversy that is still raging about campsites in Sandbridge has caused Lynnhaven Councilman G. Dewey Simmons, Jr., to seek tighter restrictions on city files.

Simmons says he has asked the City Attorney, Harry Marshall, to draw an ordinance which would make it a misdemeanor for anyone to tamper with city files.

Recently the former City Planning Director, F. Mason Gamage, added a site plan to an old use permit file, according to City Manager Roger M. Scott. Gamage's action has been called "improper" by the present planning director, Patrick Standing, and Monday several Councilmen said they felt the City Attorney should look further into the matter, especially into Gamage's actions.

At the same time City Council called for a complete investigation of the Sandbridge property matter that the use permit dealt with.

At Council's request a stop-work order was placed on additional campsites being constructed on the property known as Surside, at Sandbridge until the controversy is fully cleared. This was the third time such an order had been placed in the past two weeks.

Work was originally stopped on July 18 when a group of citizens of the area protested the construction of about 100 campsites in addition to the approximately 100 already there. It was discovered during an investigation that no site plan for the full 54-acre marshy and filled land project had ever been filed and that the 1966 use permit was not valid for such construction.

Gamage, who said he did not have any interest in the campsite while planning director, is now one of the company principals. He said that he added a site plan to the 1966 file of the planning department, but did not tell anyone until the next day. He then said he took a copy of the site plan to the Superintendent of Inspections, John Gibbs, who brought about the removal of the work stoppage.

When Gamage's action was discovered, Scott ordered a second stoppage while negotiations were opened with the company, Virginia Seashore Recreation Center, Inc.

Scott told City Council in informal session Monday that he had reached a compromise and had removed the work stoppage. The compromise involved the filing of a complete site plan by Friday, Aug. 1, the meeting of original use permit requirements and the waiving of any further development at the site unless new use permits were applied for and granted.

Council would not buy the compromise and ordered the third stoppage order.

Scott also assured Council that steps had been taken to insure that no file could be tampered with in the future. He said an employee of the planning department would have to be with anyone who looked at the files and they could not be removed from the office where they are kept.

Also discussed in the informal meeting prior to the short regular meeting was a pier on Rudee Inlet containing seven slips which Scott said was constructed without proper permits from the Rudee Inlet Authority and the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers. A city permit was obtained for one slip and the work was done in a single weekend to "avoid two years of red tape", according to the pier's owners. Scott added that a charter service may be operating from the pier, which would violate zoning ordinances.

Another investigation is underway into that matter, and it was implied that if illegalities are not cleared up the city may have to require the destruction of the pier.

A third investigation is underway into allegations by a (See "Sandbridge," p. 2)

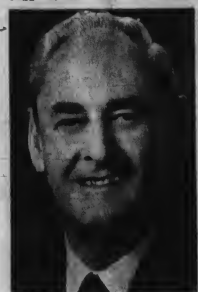

The V.A. "Jack" Etheridge-Henry Howell clash may go on long after the runoff primary is over on Aug. 19. Etheridge, Virginia Beach City Treasurer, has hinted at lawsuits. Howell has said his charges against Etheridge will not stop with the end of the present political campaign.

Etheridge has also promised a full airing of all charges made against him, probably after the runoff date, when, according to him, they can be discussed "without the heat of a political contest."

The entire controversy began a few days prior to July 15 primary when a Howell lieutenant brought up questions concerning a company in which Etheridge had an interest purchasing tax delinquent lands. Etheridge was at that time William Battle's state coordinator of precincts, a post Battle said he considered a key one in his campaign. Virginia Beach had been thought to be a safe harbor for the Battle vote in the primary, but he carried it by only 19 votes over Howell on election day. Many political observers consider the Howell camp charges responsible for the poor Battle showing.

In addition one of the two men Etheridge actively backed for nomination to the House of Delegates, Rhoe Adams, lost, and the other, incumbent B. R. "Bev" Middleton won by only 52 votes. The lack of success of the ticket was also partly attributed to the Etheridge controversy.

After the primary Howell continued to hammer away at Etheridge across the state and called upon Battle to investigate the charges and to get Etheridge out of the runoff campaign. Battle remained silent, except to say that he would not allow anyone with "questionable integrity" to work with him.

Then on Tuesday Etheridge announced he would not work with Battle during the runoff. He said it was his decision and that Battle had asked him to stay on. He added that his commitment had been only through the July 15 primary.

In announcing his resignation from the Battle campaign he denied any wrongdoing in non-payment of taxes until recently on his beach home at False Cape which burned last month. He said an error had been made by the tax assessor and that the taxes had now been paid.

He added that his real estate dealings through the P.A.C. Company had all been legal, and that this had been upheld by the state Attorney General.

Howell took the occasion of the resignation to say that it showed the validity of his charges and poor recruitment judgment of Battle in the first place. He said Etheridge has still not answered all the charges and promised more revelations. Howell also said Battle had still not answered whether he would appoint this type of "money-making official" to his administration.

Etheridge said he joined the campaign without the promise of a job in the Battle administration should that come to pass, and that he plans to continue in his job as City Treasurer.

Howell said he is sending additional real estate dealings of Etheridge to the Attorney General for his opinion also, concerning another corporation.

The Etheridge issue has also exploded in several speeches made by Howell around the state, including a public debate which he shared the same platform with Battle.

On a more local basis Etheridge has charged that forces aligned with the Virginia Beach democratic organization led by Sidney S. Kellam has made a deal with Howell to work for his election if Howell will continue to smear Etheridge.

Howell and Kellam both said they are aware of no such deal and offered no further comment.

Etheridge said he knew when he split with Kellam three years ago that the Kellam forces would continue to work for his political demise through all means, including "character assassination."

Meanwhile the Howell campaign in Virginia Beach apparently gains support while political observers feel Battle's strength is on the wane here. Win or lose in the runoff Howell says he will continue to investigate Etheridge's activities and make them known. Etheridge has indicated he will not go down without a fight. When the runoff is over the people of Virginia Beach may not even notice.

Council Quickly Adjourns

In City Council's regular meeting Monday, which lacked controversy, Council approved a matching-funds participation program requested by the Mental Health Services Board.

The program, which is to begin in 1970, provides that the city and the state match funds. The city is expected to provide $12,821 in 1970 and $11,747 in 1971.

Council also authorized the Virginia Public School Authority to sell bonds for the city, with bids on the issue to be opened Sept. 8. The amount of bonds to be sold is $4.75 million.

In order to complete book-keeping transaction for the 1968-69 fiscal year City Council appropriated $239,088. This money is to finance outstanding bills as of June 30.

A $101,360 contract with Welch Contracting Corp. was approved for a pumping station and gravity sewer lines in the South Thalia area. Also approved was a $44,850 contract with Lake Construction Co. for a sewage pumping station at the Kempsville Road by-pass.

An ordinance was placed on second reading for $2 million worth of water-sewer bonds.

Apts. Undiscouraged By School Problems

In spite of the ever-growing problem of schools keeping pace with the population, the City Planning Commission will hear applications for over 1,700 apartment units and townhouses Aug. 12.

Because of the graveness of the matter, the School Board has, for almost a year, reviewed multiple unit applications prior to their appearance before the Planning Commission. A letter has been filed with each application stating the number of children to be generated by the multiple units and the city's ability, or inability, to absorb the children in existing or projected schools.

Although some multiple construction has been approved even when the schools could not absorb the children, it is apparent that some restrictions are inevitable in the construction of mass housing. The Aug. 12 public hearing should prove revealing as to how the problem will be handled.

The application concerned with the largest number of apartment units is that of David I. Levine for a use permit for the construction of 800 apartment units. The proposed site for these units is on property north of Newtown Road across from Bettie F. Williams School.

An application for a use permit to construct 745 apartment units and townhouses is being made by Lake Edward North, Inc. This multiple housing complex will be located on property on the north side of Newtown Road, east of Baker Road.

James C. Wright and Ronald R. Reiter are applying for a use permit to construct 64 apartment units on property located north of Shore Drive and east of Greenwell Road in the Chesapeake Beach and Bayville Park area.

A use permit for the construction of 51 townhouses will be made by D.D.J. Corporation. The townhouses are to be located on property at the southwest corner of Dixie Drive and Club House Road in the Princess Anne Plaza area.

A change of zoning as well as a use permit will be applied for by Baldwin and Spence for the construction of 50 apartment units in the Woodland area. The change of zoning is from Residence Suburban District 3 to Multiple Family Residence District. The property concerned is located on the south side of Old Virginia Beach Road across from Barborton Drive.

Planning Commission will also hear three applications for the construction of 250 motel units.

Washington Club Inn is applying for a use permit for 64 additional motel units on property at the southeast corner of Atlantic Avenue and Eighth Street.

Davis said the investigation of the case is continuing with the possibility of other arrests being made.

Dr. Roy T. Jarrett Jr. will apply for a use permit to construct a 44-unit motel on property located east of Atlantic Avenue and north of 38th Street. BEM Syndicate will apply for a use permit to construct a 142-unit motel on property located on the southeast corner of Atlantic Avenue and 38th Street. The proposed motel will be eight stories high and will be one of the larger motels in (See "Problems," p. 2)

'Brainpickers' Report on Trip

"The trip will have far reaching effects on this city."

Thus Bob Turner, a member of a seven-person committee representing the City, summed up the group's recent visit to Jacksonville and Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., where they studied the economic and promotional development of the cities. The committee met Tuesday afternoon to analyze the results of their trip. A report of their findings will be presented before a closed session of the Virginia Beach Development Council at 4:30 p.m. Aug. 12. Later, at a date to be set, the committee will report to City Council.

Several months ago City Council was asked to appoint a committee to promote the tourist industry. Council then asked the VBDC to investigate tourism in relationship to the total economy. The VBDC accepted, and the first thing decided was to study by survey similar cities. Eight were surveyed, and VBDC decided to personally visit Jacksonville and Ft. Lauderdale and see what they had been able to do and how they did it.

The committee was selected: David Norman, assistant city manager, to study government; Clinton Shanks of Vepco to study industry; Laura Lambe of Laura Lambe Advertising to study tourism and conventions; Larry Sancio of Larasan Realty for urban and population growth; Robert Turner for commerce and retail trade; Robert DeFord to study how agriculture is promoted and enhanced in the cities; and Dick Cockrell, chairman of the VBDC, to tie the investigation together.

"The trip was overwhelmingly successful," commented Cockrell. "In many cases they were as happy to have us there as we were to be there. It would be good for every city to have this kind of thing."

Cockrell said the committee members visited their counterparts in the two cities and "literally picked their brains to find out how they did things and why."

Cockrell added that at this time the committee is not ready to make recommendations. However, a report from Shanks was released. According to this report, a "Committee of 100" was formed by citizens in Jacksonville who were interested in industrial development and actively seek new industry. In Ft. Lauderdale, industrial development is promoted by the Broward Industrial Board which was created by the State Legislature and is funded by Broward County and the ten Chambers of Commerce located within it.

"There is, and has been, a commitment on the part of the leadership in both Jacksonville and Ft. Lauderdale to the proposition that bring in new industry—manufacturing industry—suitable for each area is a good thing for the economy. The point was made in both Jacksonville and Ft. Lauderdale that manufacturing industries bring along with them many other related industries."

"Both Jacksonville and Ft. Lauderdale have financial support and strong leadership from Capt. Davis (left) and AT&FD Agent McFarland begin dismantling of the illegal whiskey still uncovered Tuesday night off Laskin Road.

Still Brews Its Last Batch

One of the largest stills ever uncovered in Virginia Beach was closed down late Tuesday night and two men were arrested through efforts of the Virginia Beach Police Detective Division, the Federal Alcoholic Tax & Firearms Division and State ABC Agents.

The still was located in a one story frame house at 1956 Laskin Road. Investigators said the still represented an investment of about $2,500 and had a capacity of 2150 gallons. The whiskey was manufactured by placing mash into eight "cookers" tanks located in a garage attached to the house, and the whiskey was piped through tubing concealed in the ceiling above the main rooms of the house into cooling tanks located in a bedroom closet.

Indications are the still was in operation as late as four or five days ago and had been in the building for at least the last six months. In addition to a large quantity of mash found at the still, the raid also uncovered 288 one gallon glass jugs and 60 one gallon plastic jugs.

Police Detective Capt. R.C. Davis and Sgt. Carl West in cooperation with William F. McFarland, agent in charge of the Norfolk AT & FD office lead the investigation during the past several weeks which resulted in closing down the still.

Authorities identified the two men arrested in connection with the still as Julius Clay White, 36, of Virginia Beach Blvd., Virginia Beach, and Frank DeLand Madison, 31, of Fortress Road, Chesapeake. McFarland said both men have been charged under federal statutes with illegal removal and concealment of distilled spirits.

According to Davis and McFarland several investigators had been staked out in the thick underbrush surrounding the property for the past several days and nights. Officials said White and Madison were arrested around 9 p.m. Tuesday a short distance from the still site when a car they were in was found to contain 25 gallons of illegal whiskey reportedly manufactured at the still, and a raiding party moved into the still site within minutes.

Davis said the still was "a real professional set up, the technique of which can be the authorities be recognized as the work of a particular individual."

The owner of the property on which the still was located has been identified as J. Standing, however indications are that he was unaware of the operation of the still. Records indicate the property has been leased since January of 1968 to a J.C. Walker.

White and Madison were afforded a hearing before U.S. Magistrate Gilbert Swink Wednesday morning during which they were bound over to a federal grand jury and remanded to custody of the U.S. Marshall until they could post bond of $1,000 each.

Davis said the investigation of the case is continuing with the possibility of other arrests being made.

High Cost Is Concern Of Readers

Readers of SUN SURVEY would appear to be almost evenly divided on the future of the space program by the United States.

Of those who replied to last week's SUN SURVEY question, "Now that man has successfully reached the moon and returned, should the space program be continued with an eye toward exploration of the other planets in our solar system and beyond?", 53 per cent said "No," and 47 per cent said "Yes."

Oddly enough, those who favor spending the money in other programs are the more vocal. Their replies contained comments like "Who cares? Spend the money on problems on earth," and "That was the most expensive trip man has ever taken. Lower my taxes instead of making more trips."

Not one affirmative reply carried any comment.

While the public opinion poll does not profess to represent the thinking of all the residents of Virginia Beach, it does represent the thinking of a cross section of those who took time to clip it and return it to us. Your attention is called also to this week's SUN SURVEY question which appears below in the box at the lower left corner of this page. The results will be published here next week.

Each week a new, timely question will be asked, and you are invited to participate. The more replies received, the more responsible the opinion.

Hospitalman I.C. Steve Miller of Harbor Clearance Unit Two discusses the mechanics of diving and diving equipment with Tidewater science students as part of their summer science enrichment program.

Classes Visit Diving Barge

Three groups of students from the Tidewater area who are participating in a science enrichment program sponsored by the Virginia Beach school system visited the Navy diving barge (YRST-2) located at the destroyer-submarine piers, U. S. Naval Station, Norfolk on July 23, 24 and 25.

The students, totaling more than 90, were guest of commanding officer Harbor Clearance Unit Two, Lt. Jere W. Woodall.

HCU-2 operates under Commander Service Force, U. S. Atlantic Fleet as a unit of Service Squadron Eight. Its purpose is to provide qualified salvage personnel and equipment necessary to conduct clearance of wreckage from a harbor during wartime and other operations such as the recovery of wreckage of crashed aircraft, underwater inspection of grounded ships and other underwater work.

Following a few introductory remarks on diving and oceanography by Lt. Eugene O. Drews, HCU-2's executive officer, the students were shown a special Navy slide presentation entitled "Boundless Frontiers." The presentation stressed the future role of oceanography in defense, weather prediction, food and mineral procurement, desalination, commerce and other physical, biological, chemical and geological fields.

Hospitalman I.C. Steve Miller then conducted a lively question and answer period which centered around the mechanics of diving and diving equipment. He also explained the difference between scuba and "hard hat" diving, the accepted safe depths for each, and the purpose of the recompression chamber.

Housing Repairs Ordered

Repairs have been ordered on a group of Negro-occupied rental houses after a complaint was filed to the city Health Department.

The complaint was filed by Andrew Bowler, Virginia staff representative of the National Welfare Rights Organization. In a letter to the Health Department Bowler asked that the units, which are located in the 900 block of Virginia Beach Blvd., be repaired or condemned.

John W. Crafton, a sanitarian with the Health Department, stated after an investigation that certain repairs will have to be made to the units in order for them to comply with the city's minimum housing code. He stated, however, that although further improvements needed to be made, repairs were underway during his investigation.

Rental agent for the units is listed as James McIntyre of the 900 block of Virginia Beach Blvd.

which is located aboard the diving barge. The next stop was the galley for a snack of cookies, ice cream, and cold beverages. Afterward, the groups watched student divers from the second class divers school on their suits and dive alongside the diving barge.

The science enrichment program, now in its second summer, was planned and coordinated by Mrs. Josephine Charles, a supervisor in the Virginia Beach school system. Students participating are from the fifth, sixth and seventh grades and must be recommended by their schools on the basis of interest and excellence in science.

Happy Hal Featured At Seaside

Hal Haviland and His Trained Dogs and Ponies, a touring circus show, featuring "Happy Hal," the entertaining clown, will be presented on the outdoor stage at Seaside Amusement Park for one week, starting Monday, Aug. 4, with two free performances, daily at 2:30 and 10 p.m.

Following the trained animal show, for the week of Aug. 11-17, Seaside Park will present "The Fabulous Gascas," a high wire balancing and acrobatic duo, who are returning to the Tidewater area for their third annual visit. Their shows will also be presented as a free attraction at the park twice daily at 2:30 and 10 p.m.

The amusement park has booked two additional circus shows for the final weeks of the 1969 summer season. They are: Aug. 18-24, "Mr. Sensation-Billy Barton," aerial cloud swing; and Aug. 25-31, "Sprister's Chimps," a very amusing trained animal show new to the circus circuit this year.

The park management reports record attendance this past week despite - and perhaps due to - the extended bad weather conditions at Virginia Beach. With nearly all of its amusement area sheltered from the elements, Seaside Amusement Park is a favorite spot for resort visitors to visit when their swimming and sunning are curtailed.

Draft Dodger Arrested

Robert V. Hancock, Special Agent in Charge of the Norfolk FBI office, Wednesday announced the arrest of John Edward Keibel on the charge of failing to report for induction with the U.S. Selective Service System during the month of July 1969.

Hancock indicated Keibel, a 19-year-old unemployed laborer, was arrested by a Bureau Agent in the 500 block of 16th Street, Virginia Beach.

Keibel whose address was listed as Hunting Hill Lane, Virginia Beach, was afforded a hearing before U.S. Magistrate Gilbert R. Swink and ordered held in lieu of $2,500 bond pending the outcome of further legal proceedings.

Federal Grant Allotted

Virginia Beach has been allotted $173,032.79 of a total expenditure of $2,318,224 in federal and local funds approved for driver education projects in the State Department of Education.

The projects for expanding and upgrading driver education in the secondary schools and for adults and out-of-school youth were made possible by provisions of the Federal Highway Safety Act of 1966.

Federal funds available to Virginia under the act total $1,435,162 for 1968-69, according to Billy G. Johnson, State supervisor of driver education. Projects are funded by the federal government and the localities on a 50-50 matching basis.

Dr. Kern Goes To Jaycee Meet

Dr. Donald F. Kern of Virginia Beach was among directors of the United States Jaycees who attended a two-day orientation workshop in Tulsa, Okla. July 21-22.

Kern is a member of the Virginia Beach Jaycees and is currently serving the state organization as a National Director of the U.S. Jaycees. He served as a state vice president last year. His area of responsibility is Chapter Management and Leadership Training in Virginia.

The directors attending the workshop were briefed on how state and local Jaycee chapters can function more effectively under the guidance of key leaders. The directors will return to Tulsa in March 1970 to complete Jaycee programming and select a site for the organization's 1973 annual meeting.

Gen. Weede Awards Col. Tweed

His meritorious performance of duty on the staff of the Commanding General, Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic in Norfolk since May 1967, earned Marine Col. McDonald D. Tweed a Certificate of Commendation presented to him in a ceremony July 18, by Force Commander, Lt. Gen. Richard G. Weede.

Col. Tweed reported to FM-Flant headquarters in 1968 and was assigned to the office of the Assistant Chief of Staff for personnel matters. In July of last year he was reassigned as the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1 (personnel matters), for the 40,000-man amphibious arm of the Atlantic Fleet.

He and his wife, live at Wakefield Drive in Virginia Beach. They have one daughter, Janet, 21; and a son, Douglas, 20.

Col. Tweed has earned the Legion of Merit with Combat "V", four Distinguished Flying Crosses, 29 Air Medals and the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry during his 27-year career.

He is being reassigned to the Naval War College in Newport, R. I., later this month. He will be replaced on General Weede's headquarters staff by Lt. Col. Elmer J. Zorn, who has been serving as the Force Civil Affairs Officer since reporting to FMFlant last November.

The Etheridge Decisions

Sorry Mr. Button, but we still aren't satisfied. Sending a copy of a letter to Virginia Beach Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans from the Attorney General's office that actually dealt with a matter totally unrelated to Virginia Beach just doesn't do it.

Evans requested an opinion from the Attorney General concerning allegations against Virginia Beach Treas. V.A. "Jack" Etheridge and the purchase of tax delinquent lands. The Attorney General answered with a copy of a letter he had sent in answer to the Treasurer of Newport News in another matter. The opinion showed no conflict of interest in the purchase of tax delinquent property at a commissioner's sale.

But this does not answer the conflict question regarding the alleged entering of Etheridge or of a firm of which he was a director into a contract with the city. In other cases still pending the entering into a contract has been regarded as conflict of interest. In others the word "indiscreet" has been used. And so the carbon copy of another opinion has merely left more questions unanswered than it has answered.

Now in the wake of all this Etheridge has resigned his key position in the William Battle campaign for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the runoff Aug. 19, saying that Battle had asked him to remain but that he had declined. Etheridge added that his obligation to Battle was only for the July 15 primary and that he had fulfilled that obligation.

It seems that Etheridge quit at a poor time since Battle faces more of a task in the runoff than in the primary, but with all the accusations and rumors flying from his opponent Henry Howell and others, the Etheridge decision would certainly seem to be politically expedient for Battle. Battle himself has said he would not tolerate anyone in state government of questionable integrity.

Howell has promised not to quit hounding Etheridge. It is obvious he has now classed Etheridge with the "big boys" he is trying to keep honest. We'll be interested in the outcome.

Virginia Beach Forever

The only thing wrong with the entire idea may be the name. Certainly "Virginia Beach Forever" is a hokey slogan for such a noble effort, an effort we endorse and support.

On its own a young advertising agency in Virginia Beach has taken it upon itself to promote Virginia Beach with bumper stickers, lapel pins, ball point pens, pretty girls handing out descriptive literature and all the things necessary for good promotion.

The executives of the agency say they wish to promote "city-ism", described as a method of discouraging factionalism and to encourage cohesiveness, loyalty and identification with the city we live in by choice.

The idea cannot be any better. It is the same theme many, Including this newspaper, have been preaching for several years. Virginia Beach is about to take its place as a giant in the future of Virginia. The working for a common goal by its citizens and all its officials is absolutely necessary.

But in these days of draft card burning, disrespect for our flag, mistrust of the establishment and deep set breaches, boosting the almost forgotten trait of loyalty can be difficult. How successful this current campaign will be depends upon how much loyalty can be generated. And that will be tested by the amount of campaign material we see.

But no matter what, it is a good idea and one with much merit. We'll support Virginia Beach... forever.

Another Sigh of Relief

The matter of impact funds appears to have been settled again, at least for this year. Contrary to President Nixon's original wishes, the House of Representatives has agreed to cut loose the funds for education of federally-connected dependents on the same funding basis as last year.

For the past several years the matter has taken all the efforts possible by influential people in the entire country just to keep the funds flowing. The most serious threat came this year when Nixon threatened a complete cutoff. That blow would have been felt strongly in Virginia Beach and Tidewater.

This reversal of thinking on the part of Congressmen comes no doubt partly from three of every four of them representing districts dependent on the funds.

Also it has been realized that a federal cutoff would only thrust new problems on localities already looking to the federal and state governments in their financial squeeze. The fund cutoff while budgets have already been drawn and while the localities are expecting the money as in the past, would cause total confusion and fiscal disaster.

But this is not to say that the matter is settled. The Congress is still looking into the impact fund overall picture for the future. Things may be all right for this year, but the future, based on the past and on present belt tightening, is not bright.

We still consider it a mistake to cut off these funds either now or in the future.

Backs Hoffman

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN:
It would help us if President Nixon will find the time in his busy schedule to consider Judge Walter E. Hoffman's qualifications for the Supreme Court vacancy.

Judge Hoffman, Chief Judge of the U.S. District Court for Eastern Virginia, can be a great asset in the Supreme Court. He appears to have a keen insight in interpreting laws that seem to be complicated or filled with loop holes.

As we scale the horizon we might better understand the foresight of the Founding Fathers who left a country where men can still become great. True, time has not changed the hidden violence of man, how ever, men like Judge Hoffman are strong enough to see and make a try at helping humanity. It is important that men like him be in a position where he can help more people.

Freedom is as important for civilized citizens who care for our society enough to seek morality as those who rebel against it. It is right that the Bar Association members endorsed Judge Hoffman.

But parents also have a great deal at stake. It is a fact that the associations of their children be understood. A parent can send the best adjusted girl and boy out in the world but how strong are they in being able to stay out of instead of in trouble? This is very important to the family. In her letter Mrs. Berg quoted several stories of violence and disorder taken from one day's newspaper.

We can think about the crimes of one day and visualize the cost to society of 365 such days. If Judge Hoffman can help people, we know he will. If he can reach those people who see freedom only as a one-way street, he will....

We have followed Judge Hoffman's efforts for good education without depriving any children of their rights to learn. We have heard about his competence, humane concern, and understanding virtues that make a man great.

We cannot condone crime and it is up to everyone to do something about it. Now is our opportunity to try and get another good man where he will be fair, without the worries of conflicting interest. Judge Hoffman has a quality that inspires trust, and sincere manners that put people at ease.

Virginia natives can boast of three "Signers of the Constitution" and one Chief Justice of the United States, John Marshall, 1755-1835, 134 years is far too long to let such great men slip by without trying to help them rise to the pinnacle of Justice.

Keep People Out

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN:

Your feature article on the front page of the July 24th issue entitled "Taxpayers Must Foot Bill For Boom" told of the problems facing our rapidly growing city, and indicated that the only solution was an increase in taxes. An editorial in the same issue referred specifically to the school problem and contained the phrase, "It must be faced now that the city must and will continue to grow rapidly.... Stopping or stunting the growth is not the answer." My question is why isn't it the answer. We certainly would be dealing with the cause of our problems instead of seeking remedies for them.

An increase in taxes may be necessary to provide the services our present citizens require, but in it is not necessary to knowingly continue a policy that will without a doubt increase that burden in the future.

Do not the lessons of the crowded urban areas have something to say to us? Getting big is not necessarily progress. I personally am wary of big people, big businesses, big schools, big governments--and a big Virginia Beach. Would it not be better to slow our population growth down and concentrate on the needs we are faced with today, the schools, recreational areas, public services, cultural growth, and the preservation of those things that make Virginia Beach a wholesome and desirable place to live and rear our children?

Special Report

Runoff Madness Begins

The moonmen having returned to earth, so has the campaign for the first Democratic runoff election in history. And from the looks of things, it could get right down to the nitty gritty.

Statewide focus has been placed on Virginia Beach through Henry Howell's charges of misconduct in tax and real estate matters against City Treas. V.A. "Jack" Etheridge, who until Tuesday was a key campaign worker for Howell's opponent, William Battle.

Howell, operating from the strongest base he has ever had in his political career is riding a high crest, and political buffs feel the runoff could well be a tossup.

Battle, however, has picked up valuable support in many quarters, particularly from Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Jr. and Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Jr. The Byrd endorsement was considered a surprise, because of the Byrd family practice of "golden silence" in matters where particularly sticky issues are concerned. The endorsement is expected to boost Battle's chances considerably, which had been thought to be lagging because of the charges against Etheridge.

Howell's top workers now say Etheridge is trying to alibi his dismissal from the Battle campaign by saying he resigned. They add that Battle must have reviewed the charges and concluded that "where there's smoke there's fire."

There is no indication of abatement in the Howell charges. Howell says he will continue his efforts against Etheridge after the runoff and Etheridge has indicated he is ready for a fight.

So far this is the only strong issue that has been inserted in the present runoff primary. Howell has found that questioning Battle's judgement in having Etheridge in his campaign in the first place and questioning what part Etheridge might play in a Battle administration has gained him much ground. Therefore, he continues to pound away at the issue.

Howell continues to flit from one corner of the state to the other, but with a new fervor, since he found on July 15 he has strength of varying degrees everywhere.

The Battle forces are admittedly worried about the outcome of the runoff. Their candidate is also moving a bit quicker during this campaign than he did in the primary. His manner is not as mild, nor as relaxed. His jaw is set a little firmer. The completely confident air is gone.

At this point one can only speculate on November. But GOP nominee Linwood Holton still looks like the man to beat. He still smiles and campaigns coolly waiting for the Democrats to settle their problems.

The national party is ready, willing and able to dump much money into Virginia's gubernatorial race this year. There are only two nationwide, and the GOP is making a strong bid in New Jersey as well.

The result could still be a Republican Governor. Fred Pollard's refusal to endorse either candidate in the runoff has released his supporters to make up their own minds. Some have already moved to Battle. The rest are curiously silent, indicating a Holton move in November.

With three weeks to go the new campaign is just shifting into high gear, and Henry Howell is indicating there are a few more tricks in his goody bag yet.

Almost forgotten is the runoff between Guy Farley and Andrew Miller. Farley's campaign has picked up a great deal of steam since he is no longer part of the Pollard ticket, and speculation has it that another close race will be forthcoming there also.

It may be the first runoff, and maybe the last, but it certainly will be long remembered, especially in Virginia Beach.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"Daddy, how much longer does Mother have in school?" asked the six-year old.
"Another week," he said. "Why do you ask?"
"No reason," she said. "I just get a little tired of TV dinners."
"Don't knock it," he said. "You're eating, aren't you? Besides, if you don't like it, why don't you learn to cook? You're old enough."

Eat

Your

Frozen

Turkey

The six-year-old took another bite of her frozen turkey dinner and said, "How long did you say Mother has left in school?"

"I told you another week," he said. "Now be quiet. I'm trying to feed the baby his dinner too."
"He looks kinda funny with that dinner all over his face," said the four-year-old. "Mother doesn't get it all over him like that."

"You're the only four-year-old critic I know," he pointed out. "What's a critic," she asked. "Is that something like a bug?"
"No, that's a critter," he said. "A critic is...well, somebody who criticizes. Just finish your dinner. I have to get the dishes done too."

"What time does Mother get home?" asked the six-year-old. "The same time as I told you every night this week. About 7:30. Just about the time I finish feeding all three of you, get the dishes done, feed the cat, clean up the kitchen and get ready to collapse," he said. "And that's only a few minutes from now. So hurry up."

"This potato tastes like paste," said the six-year-old. "It does not," said her four-year-old sister. "It tastes like stale oatmeal."

The baby threw his bottle across the room and spit out his high-meat dinner.

"Is that your comment on dinner?" he asked the year-old boy who was now grinning from ear to ear.

"Have I done well?" asked the six-year-old. "Have I done well?" asked the four-year-old.

He looked at their almost still full plates. "No. Eat some more."

"I'll eat dessert, Daddy," said the six-year-old. "So will I," chimed in little sister.

"OK, you win," he said. "Eat three more bites of your paste, I mean potatoes and three more bites of the delicious peas and carrots and three more bites of the delicious turkey. Then get down."

They did it with looks of distaste. "Now may I get down?" asked the six-year-old. "Me too?" asked little sister.

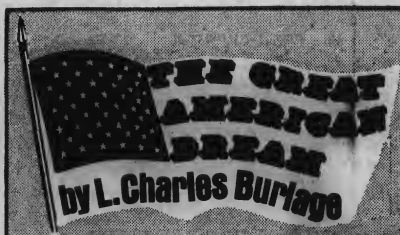

"Yes," he said, "get a candy bar and go watch TV. And take this little piggy with you."

"Not till you clean him up," said the six-year-old. He did. Then took care of the other chores. As he finished feeding the cat, his wife walked in. "Hi," she said cheerily. "Everything go all right?"

"Of course," he said. "What did you think?"

"Well, where's my dinner?" she asked.

"I forgot to put your frozen dinner in the oven," he said sheepishly.

America has survived, strong and free, because of its system of political checks and balances.

A sincere conservative or moderate or liberal is a very respectable person who has his convictions based on reasoning that leads him or her to his particular political views. The various shades of American political thinking in the past has always had patriotism and a dedication to the American way of life as a common characteristic.

In recent years, two new groups of political activist have arisen which do not have these same convictions. These groups have more or less despaired of their chances of ever having their viewpoint prevail under a democratic system of majority rule. They openly preach the overthrow of our system by armed revolution and, upon close questioning, admit that they have nothing better to offer. I refer to the far radical left such as the Students for a Democratic Society, (S.D.S.) and the far radical right such as the American Nazi party. When a presidential race occurs, we now have candidates from the Republican and Democratic parties as usual, with the addition of a candidate from the far right and a candidate from the far left. This further separation of political thinking and unity in America is enough to confuse even mature intelligent Americans.

The effect it has on our young people is predictable and understandable. The S.D.S., for example, was, and is, organized on campuses across America. Their purpose is to disrupt, corrupt, divide, and confuse the youth of this nation. They take genuine defects in our current national life, such as Vietnam, race relations, the draft, poverty, the ghetto and twist, distort misrepresent and misinterpret these defects to such an extent that the only remaining remedy (so they suggest) is to overthrow our system of government and replace it with they know not what. They try to destroy and degrade all our heroes; from George Washington to General Eisenhower. They ridicule our flag and our national anthem.

The young impressionable student of today has been listening for several years to their arguments, and shows signs of beginning to see the light. They have observed the pre-occupation with drugs and immorality and are slowly arriving at the conclusion that life has a higher purpose. They are also beginning to conclude that America, with all its problems, is still their home and their country. Most important, however, they are beginning to realize that it is improbable to have 40 campus riots break out on the same day and almost the same hour across the country without having some higher authority directing the whole show. They are beginning to suspect the fine hand of international communism, and J. Edgar Hoover says they are correct.

We have to forgive our youth because the hierarchy of the SDS was, and is, international communism disguised as a bunch of idealistic youth intent on correcting the problems and inequities of man. After all, it now appears that it only took 24 months to penetrate the mask. Not a bad record when one considers how long some of the older generation flirted with the theories of Marx and Engle in the thirties.

Billy Calfee Sets Record

Billy Calfee came from three strokes behind in Sunday's final 18-hole round to win the 8th Virginia Beach Amateur golf tournament and established a new tournament record.

Calfee, a 19-year-old whose home course is the Cavalier Golf and Yacht Club, scored a final round of 69 to card a tournament total of 212 for 54-holes of tournament play over the Kempsville Meadows 7,000-yard course. His final score was four under par, and shaved one stroke off the previous tournament record established in 1966 by Jordan Ball.

Calfee finished the front nine of Sunday's final round with a 35 to enter into a tie with Lynn Perkins, from White Sands, then finished a back nine battle exchanging the lead several times with Perkins to emerge the undisputed victor during the final four holes of play.

Perkins led the field at the end of Saturday's play with a 36-hole total of 140 to Calfee's 143. This marked the second time Perkins captured second place in the tournament, losing the top spot last year by one stroke to Tommy Nelson. Other top finishers in the tournament included David Estes of Portsmouth who finished seven strokes off the lead with a total of 219; Curtis Strange, White Sands 14-year-old, and Buddy Peoples, of Norfolk, shared fourth place positions with totals of 220; and Jim Ellis, Jr., Bob Rawland and Fred Aucamp turning in tournament totals of 221s in a three way split for sixth place.

Intermittent downpours of rain, high humidity and soggy fairways and greens failed to dampen the spirits or enthusiasm of the 160 contenders throughout the three day tournament. Weather also failed to keep a large gallery of relatives and friends of the players from gathering at the ninth hole of the course to cheer them during the sinking of several unbelievable putts.

Five Clubs Participate In Tourney

The Virginia Beach Unit of the American Cancer Society is sponsoring a handicap golf tournament Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 2 and 3.

This tournament is open to both men and women and will be held at Stumpy Lake, White Sands, Kempsville, Cavalier and Lake Wright Golf Clubs. Entry fee will be a $1.00 donation to the Cancer Society. Your regular group can take part in this tournament by making a donation at time of tee off. Golfers are eligible both Saturday and Sunday and winners at each club will be the two low scorers after handicaps have been figured. All winners will receive a special American Cancer Society plaque.

Ward King, chairman of this event said, "All golf pros have been most cooperative and we are looking forward to a big turnout for this event."

James Sadler, Crusader chairman for the Virginia Beach Unit of the American Cancer Society said, "We feel this is another way of reaching the public with the societies' life saving messages on cancer and we sincerely hope all golfers will donate their dollar and take part in this event. It is most unusual to have a tournament of this type at five local clubs all at the same time, I am most impressed with the overall cooperation."

Dr. Harkey Promoted

Dr. Joseph H. Harkey has been promoted to full professor in the Department of English at Virginia Wesleyan College.

A native of Wadesboro, N.C., Dr. Harkey joined the Wesleyan Faculty in September 1969 when the college opened. He did his undergraduate work at the University of South Carolina and holds M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Tennessee. Dr. Harkey served as a member of the faculty and Dean of Men at Frederick College from 1964-1966.

Dr. and Mrs. Harkey and their two children live in Virginia Beach.

Douglas Crinklaw of Curtiss Drive has been named to the Dean's List at the University of Rochester in Rochester, N.Y. for the spring semester.

Local Youth Wins Blind Rally

The Second Annual Braille Corvette (ABC) Rally was held Saturday, July 26, in Virginia Beach.

A Sports Car Race Rally is nothing unusual—but in this case each of nine navigators was legally or totally blind. All of the drivers are sighted obviously and are members of the Corvette Club. Once a year they tell the Virginia Commission for the Visually Handicapped that they would like to have some blind teen-agers to run a Rally with them.

The winners this year were Mike Dismukes of Virginia Beach and Al Levenson of Norfolk—a Navy flyer. Mike is 18, legally blind since birth and will start his junior year at the Virginia School for the Deaf and Blind at Staunton this fall.

Michael Dennis Whitehurst of Virginia Beach was the navigator of the second place team with Richard Ahlborn of Norfolk driving. In third place it was Paul Wilson of Norfolk navigating and Eddie Atkinson driving.

In his remarks at the conclusion of the race, U.S. Representative of the Virginia 2nd District, Dr. G. William Whitehurst compared what the navigators had done Saturday afternoon with the Astronauts walking on the moon.

Last year's winning navigator, Robert F. Armstrong of Norfolk was assistant Rally Master this year and helped in setting up the course. He is totally blind and a graduate of Norview High School in Norfolk. He plans to enter Old Dominion College this fall. He does most of his reading in Braille and also plays the piano and organ.

Charles M. Collier, Jr. of Norfolk is the dedicated gentleman who brings the race off each year. He serves as Rally Master. Through his talents the course is laid out, the drivers and the navigators are instructed, the prizes are found, speakers are invited and food arrangements are made.

Capt. Now Assumes Command

Capt. J. G. Now relieved Capt. R. W. Stecher as Commander Amphibious Squadron Eight on July 24.

The relieving ceremony took place aboard the amphibious transport dock ship USS La Salle at the Naval Amphibious Base, Little Creek.

On leaving PhilRon EIGHT, Captain Stecher will report to the office of the Chief of Naval Operations for duty.

As Commander Amphibious Squadron EIGHT, Captain Now supervises nine ships in administrative and operational matters. PhilRon EIGHT ships are the amphibious assault Boxer, amphibious transport dock La Salle, the amphibious cargo ships Capricornus and Charleston, the dock landing ship Plymouth Rock, the amphibious transport (small) B. W. Reid, and the tank landing ships York County, Lorain County and Newport.

Prior to his assignment as Commander Amphibious Squadron EIGHT, Captain Now served as Deputy Commander and Commander of River Flotilla ONE in the Republic of Vietnam.

Capt. Now is married to the former Neal Ayala. The Now's have three children Mary Helen, John George III and Margaret A. Capt. Now and family presently reside in Virginia Beach.

Boys to Sign For Football

Football registration for the Princess Anne Plaza area will be held Aug. 9, from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m., at Lynnhaven Elementary School.

Boys eligible for registration must be between the ages of 8 to 14. A birth certificate will be required.

Saul Receives Scholarship

Robert Franklin Saul, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Saul of Overholt Drive, was presented a $1,300 scholarship July 29 by the Tidewater Association of Home Builders Scholarship Foundation.

The award was presented by Lawrence A. Sancilio, president of the TAHB Scholarship Foundation. There were scholarship awards made at the ceremonies totaling more than $2,700. Other award recipients were Clarence E. Satchell and Yuen Soon Lee. Saul is a sophomore attending Virginia Wesleyan. He is a 1968 graduate of Princess Anne High School majoring in science. His award is a one year's full scholarship.

Tuesday's Scholarship awards brings to 12 the number of students assisted by the TAHB Scholarship Foundation. The Foundation selects deserving students living in Tidewater who are attending or intend to enter colleges in the area.

The Foundation also reviews applicants pursuing a curriculum that is directly, or indirectly, oriented toward the home

'Cinderella' Is Delight For Kids

The Norfolk Theatre Center will sponsor the famed Vagabond Marionettes for a six-performance run.

The performances will take place at the Norfolk Museum Theatre on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, Aug. 7, 8 and 9. Two showings will be offered daily, at 1 and 3 p.m.

The Vagabond production of "Cinderella" will be featured. Staged by Vincent Anthony, artistic director of the Vagabond Marionettes, the production will use live actors in addition to the marionettes.

"Cinderella" will be performed with a cast of eight. Cinderella and her stepmother are featured in addition to Prince Charming, the Fairy Godmother and Nanette and Babette, the ugly stepsisters. Special attractions will be Petite and Pierre, a mouse and a bluebird, who help narrate the tale which has been a favorite of children for decades.

"We specifically design our productions for audiences from 4 to 12," Vincent Anthony noted. "However, the figures really should be expanded to read 4 through 84, since some of our most enthusiastic supporters are always parents who apparently have forgotten just how charming the stories of their childhood were, and still are."

"We are extraordinarily pleased to be able to present such a noted marionette theatre to Tidewater," Stan Fedyzyn, director of the Norfolk Theatre Center noted. "Last winter we brought the National Theatre of the Deaf to Tidewater and we hope that this program will also serve to afford the local theatre-goer an opportunity to see productions which might not be sponsored by more commercially oriented sponsors," he added.

"The Vagabonds are considered the outstanding marionette theatre in the South and believe me, that takes in a lot of territory." Reservations for all six performances may be made at the Norfolk Theatre Center box office at 345 W. Freemason St. Tickets are on sale at $1 and group rates are available for parties of 50 or more. All reservations must be paid 24 hours in advance of the performance though tickets, if still available, will be on sale at the door for each performance. The Theatre Center box office is open daily from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

The Norfolk Theatre Center, Virginia's only professional repertory company, is also the home of the Tidewater Dance Guild and the Norfolk Chamber Consort.

Arrowhead Wins 'Tee' Tourney

Twelve elementary playgrounds participated in the city-wide "Tee" Baseball Tournament on July 22.

The Tournament, which was for boys age nine and under, was sponsored by the Department of Parks and Recreation. District Champions were: Arrowhead, southern; Cooke, eastern; Ludford, northern; and Lynnhaven, central.

Finals for the Tournament were played on July 24 at Lynnhaven. Arrowhead defeated Cooke 14-2 for the city-wide Championships. Arrowhead lead Brookwood in total points (175-147) for participation in five completed events.

Coffee Set for Dawbarn

E. L. Johnson, Jr., Republican City Chairman of Virginia Beach has announced that Virginia Beach Republicans will hold a morning coffee and reception for State Sen. H. D. "Buz" Dawbarn, candidate for Lieutenant Governor, on Friday, Aug. 1, at their new headquarters.

Sen. Dawbarn will be on hand to meet the newly appointed precinct chairmen and their workers from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. The headquarters is located on Virginia Beach Blvd. directly across from Beach Ford and near the entrance to Chesapeake Colony.

For further information, contact Alice Van Tol, 340-1052.

C & P to Extend Cable

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Virginia has authorized an expenditure of $91,800 for an outside plant project in the Virginia Beach exchange.

Cable will be placed north from the Robbins Corner communications center and will run along Shore Drive between Tazewell Road and Vista Circle and from Shore Drive to First Court Road and Tazewell Road from Vista Circle east to Beach Street.

This work is necessary for C&P to meet the demands for telephone service in the area involved.

Success Is a 91-Hour Week

By Yatta Jones

You can tell Zida Kibler that the world of business is a cold, hard cruel place, but she won't believe you.

In the first place Zida, who owns the Nautilus Shell Shop, proved one axiom of business wrong--that is, you can't make a thriving business out of a hobby. For in Zida's words that is exactly how the Nautilus was born, "It began as a hobby...a hobby of collecting anything of nature, and then I started handicrafts...finally I opened the shop."

Of course, getting the shop started was not as easy as it sounds. Trying to break into any kind of market without experience and backing takes a lot of grit and determination. Zida's courage grew out of one thought, "I wanted so badly to have a shop so I could work for myself."

So she opened. That first year, nine years ago, the shop was located where Sir Richard's Ribhouse is now. Her stock in the shop consisted of things she had accumulated...jewelry, pictures, etc. Most of the items were handmade. "It looked like so much then," she says, "I thought to myself, 'I'll never sell 200 pairs of earrings,' but in the first two or three weeks I had sold every handmade item and had to start buying."

Zida and Bill Kibler look at a nautilus shell, one of 7,000 shells in their personal collection.

After the first season Zida received some bad news. Her lease could not be extended in the building she was in so she would have to move. She wanted to stay on Atlantic Avenue because she felt that she was known there and the location was good. She looked and looked for suitable space, but everything was too high. Just as she was getting discouraged she found a vacant space--in the building where she is now located.

The building, which was owned by James Kontopanos, was exactly what she wanted. Since she had just gotten started in business she was not too sure she could afford the rent. She explained her situation to Kontopanos and he told her to go ahead and move in--he had faith that she would do all right.

There were times in the beginning, Zida says, when she could not quite make the rent payments on time... "but very few," she adds. On those months Zida would write a poem to Kontopanos explaining her plight. "He still has those poems, and says they are better than money." Last June Zida and her husband, Bill, bought that building.

The little shop Zida started with has grown tremendously. There are now nine people employed during the summer months to help run the shop and a museum which Zida and Bill opened five years ago in conjunction with the shop. One of her full time employees is her daughter, Lydine. (Her son, Duane, is in college.) Lydine is responsible for a shell display found at Seashore State Park, which was set up according to Rachel Carson's book, "Edge of the Sea."

The museum was opened for the local children, according to Zida. The city has no center for natural science so the Kiblers felt that there was a great need for such a facility. The museum was first located on 17th Street and an admission of $.25 per person was charged; the museum now adjoins the shell shop and the admission is free. Besides a magnificent collection of shells there are minerals, Indian artifacts, insects and fossils--even dinosaur tracks!

An average of 14 hours a day, seven days a week is put into the shop and museum by the Kiblers. "I thought that when you became successful you could slow down a bit," says Zida, "but that's not true." The many hours of work have paid off--by writing many, many letters and getting listed in collector's guide books, the shop is well-known. "We get calls for rare shells from all over the U.S.," Zida will tell you.

Zida grew up on a farm in Winchester... "and I never saw the ocean until I graduated from high school." Her answer as to how she got such an interest in natural science? Reading and a love of collecting everything. "Even as a little girl I used to collect the prettiest potato bugs and bean beetles...and I would love to read about the ocean and sea shells."

She says she still reads a lot. "I have to study archeology and minerals just to stay up... besides, with just a high school education you have to read and study if ever you're going to know anything."

Besides reading, Zida also writes poetry, and has had a book of poetry published called "Rendezvous with Life." Zida's creative and romantic nature shows through when she is asked about the name of the shop, "Nautilus." Her face lights up as she says, "It's a fantastic shell...the chambered nautilus...I feel that the life of a nautilus is a lot like every human life...as the nautilus gets older it seals off a portion of the life that was, but there is always the lifeline running from the beginning to the end."

Both the museum and the shell shop are a success and a delight to anyone who visits them, but Zida won't take all the credit for them. "I can't take credit for the success by myself," she says, "I received warmth and encouragement from everyone, including other businesses...they even sent me customers...I feel the people here like to see a person grow and be successful."

The cold, hard cruel-world of business? Zida will tell you there is no such place.

Perk Up in Hot Weather

Summer wilts got you down? Feeling droopy? Well, don't let that radiant look get away. Lend an ear to what Terry Pavlik, Director of The Beauty Clinic at Good Housekeeping Magazine, has to say about creating a summer beauty plan--one to be followed regularly.

Start with your bath routine. Soak in warm water fragrant with your favorite bath oil. Follow up with body basics: De-lux underarms and legs. Slather on body lotion. Give yourself a pedicure, if needed. The quick-dry enamels and lacquers are great. Add leg or body makeup. Remember the anti-perspirant/deodorant and feminine hygiene spray bit. Then check your manicure.

Always begin makeup with moisturizer. Next, smooth on translucent foundation and/or clear bronzer, blusher and powder. Follow with eye makeup--a treat if you've a coordinated kit. (New this summer are really waterproof mascaras, slim eyeliner and natural-looking lashes.) Finish with clear lip gloss in an enchanting color. P.S. Use face and body lubricants to keep skin clear and smooth. There are new roll-ons, night cream "sticks", lotions that give skin a sheen.

Big Day Planned By Clubs

Plans for the Annual Achievement Day of the Federation of Home Demonstration Clubs were announced at the board meeting recently.

The meeting will be held at 11 a.m. Oct 8 at Shore Drive Inn with Mrs. K.P. Gury as chairman.

Mrs. R.P. Johnson has assumed the presidency of the Federation, following the death of Mrs. Ben Reed. Nominating committee slate of officers was accepted: Mrs. J. E. Pilley, president; Mrs. W.T. Winstead, first vice president; Mrs. D.G. Beatty, second vice president, and Mrs. R.G. Sanders, secretary.

The national meeting will be held Aug. 11-15 at Virginia Polytechnic Institute at Blacksburg.

Daughter Born

Mr. and Mrs. Victor P. Simiele of Virginia Beach announce the birth of their first child, a daughter, Suzanne Harner Simiele, on June 28 at the General Hospital of Virginia Beach. Mrs. Simiele is the former Marilyn Harner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Harner of Xenia, Ohio. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Victor A. Simiele of Lancaster, Ohio.

Chapman Returns with Glamour

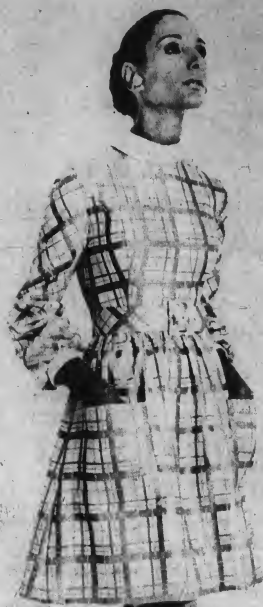

Ceil Chapman is no prodigal, but that didn't keep her return to the fashion business from being a gala celebration.

Her temporary business blackout was a very sad thing. Who could ever replace those beguiling Ceil Chapman necklines? Those flirtatious skirts? The "body beautiful" dress? The naked little black--with feminine charm?

When a Ceil Chapman stock issue was recently floated on the New York Stock Exchange, the shares sold like there was no tomorrow--and no yesterday. People remembered, and Ceil went back to work.

Her collection for fall 1969 is glamour revisited, but by no means nostalgic. Shorts flash under the pleated skirts. The necklines have abstract curves plunging to the danger point in the historic Ceil Chapman manner. The traditional rich-girl look of Ceil Chapman's theatre costumes and evening dresses is due to the newest fabrics--moire velvet, puffed metal brocade, jet paved marquisette.

The collection makes some firm fashion prophecies: The return of black and white. The long evening coat. The gala coat dress tailored in rich brocade or velvet. White wools for daytime continuing as a basic fashion, largely taking the place of the little black dress.

The long shirt sleeve, the touch of silk at neck and wrist, and the over sized pockets lend a young sophistication to this metallic plaid. About $100.

Let's Have A Wash-In

Hippies, despite all the stories to the contrary, do wash their clothes--at least a good number of them do.

I think I met about half the city's Hippy population at the laundramat in the past three weeks when I was waiting for a washing machine. My new one is due today. Either it gets here or I'm going to stage a wash-in at a local appliance department.

The washer has been on a truck on its way from Iowa for almost three weeks. I know shipping takes time, but with three kids to wash clothes for, the laundramat is a little expensive. Besides, after working all day, there are other places I'd rather spend my time.

My hat if off to some of the people without machines, though. Any number of pregnant women, all followed by at least two kids, came in regularly. I don't think I could take it.

There's always a crowd at the laundramat, but especially on Saturday. One guy had the right idea. People were waiting for machines. Two machines last Saturday, side by side, had "out of order" signs on them. The man, who had apparently placed the signs there earlier, came in loaded with clothes, removed the signs and used the machines. They obviously worked.

Everybody in the family was very understanding about the washing situation, though. Since I was washing only the bare (no pun intended) essentials, in hopes that the new machine would arrive, the kids were warned not to change clothes more than twice a day. All the wet weather didn't help much. Plus the five-year-old has a friend who is bound and determined to turn the hose on him every chance he gets. The bedwetter, who hadn't wet a bed in over a year, did so three nights straight.

Monday the five-year-old showed up for lunch with something white hanging out of his shorts. Naturally, we thought it was his underwear. Investigation showed, however, that it was his undershirt. He couldn't find any underwear, so, thinking we didn't have any clean (it just hadn't been put away), he put on an undershirt with his legs through the sleeves.

They've been sleeping in almost anything--mostly underwear and shirts. But the topper came when I went in to check the girls the other night (a hot night, that is), and the eight-year-old had put on a flannel nightgown, a quilted robe, then covered herself with a sheet and bedspread. Then she was insulted because I made her get up and change.

Hopefully, it's all ended by now with the delivery of the machine. I don't think I could stand the sight of another quarter being gobbled by a slot.

First for NWCA

The Meeting Will Come to Order...

By Carolyn McAllen

The ranks of Registered Parliamentarians in Tidewater have, after some years, suddenly more than doubled. There were five; now there are 11.

Of the six new parliamentarians, two are from Virginia Beach. They have another distinction too--they are the first Registered Parliamentarians in 36 years who are members of the Navy Wives Club of America. They are Mrs. James C. Counts, who also happens to be national parliamentarian of the NWCA, and Mrs. Homer Jones, a past national parliamentarian of the group.

What is a Registered Parliamentarian? It is a man or woman who has made an extensive and intensive study of parliamentary procedure and passed a difficult, all-day examination. Those passing it are qualified to teach classes in parliamentary law at the college level, lecture and write for publications. "It's quite an honor to achieve that goal," said Mrs. Counts.

Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Counts are both members of the Virginia Tidewater Unit of the National Association of Parliamentarians. The other four women who passed the examination recently are members of the Gavel Unit.

"We were fortunate in having four Registered Parliamentarians in our unit," commented Mrs. Counts. "The other unit (until recently) only had one."

One of the members of the Virginia Tidewater Unit, Mrs. Donald Funk, was invited to serve as Parliamentarian for the Convention of the United States Committee of the United Nations.

Registered Parliamentarians are often invited to national conventions as paid advisers on parliamentary procedure.

"The more you learn, the more fascinating it gets to be," said Mrs. Counts. Before taking the examination, Mrs. Counts and Mrs. Jones took an eight week preparatory course (two hours, once a week) given by Mrs. Kenneth C. Gilbert and Mrs. Norman Gilbert, both Registered Parliamentarians.

Virginia Beach's two newest Registered Parliamentarians, Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Counts, with the book they are never without--"Robert's Rules of Order."

"If you don't pass, you have to wait six months to take it again," said Mrs. Counts, adding, "The prime purpose is quality of parliamentarians, not quantity." Exams are graded by three different groups.

Mrs. Jones said that a parliamentarian is "one who is versed in correct procedures at meetings." However, the presiding officer at meetings has the final word, and the parliamentarian acts in an advisory capacity.

Parliamentary law originated in the English Parliament. It is the unwritten law of the land where it doesn't conflict with existing laws. Rules were developed as they were needed to efficiently conduct the British governing body. Similarly, the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives have their own rules of procedure as needed.

"The prime purpose of parliamentary law is courtesy," said Mrs. Jones. "It protects the rights of the majority and the minority."

The "authority" for parliamentary procedure is "Robert's Rules of Order," which was written in the 19th century by Gen. Henry Robert, a devout churchgoer who was appalled by the mass confusion of church meetings and decided to write some rules of assembly.

Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Counts hope to go to the National Parliamentarians Convention in Atlanta in October. However, October will be a busy month for both of them. The NWCA will have its national convention at Little Creek Amphibious Base, the first time in this area, beginning the day after the convention in Atlanta closes. And both are chairmen of committees for the NWCA convention.

As for the future, "We feel the study has just begun in force."

Mrs. Flanagan (Aufenger Studios)

Brown-Flanagan Wedding

The marriage of Miss Martha Susan Brown and Roy David Flanagan took place Saturday, July 26 at London Bridge Baptist Church. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mark Stone.

The bride is the daughter of George S. Brown of Virginia Beach and the late Mrs. Brown.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Roy D. Flanagan of Virginia Beach and the late Mr. Flanagan.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory peau de soie featuring an empire bodice with a Victorian neck of Belgium lace and a full chapel train. On her head she wore an ivory alençon mantilla underlaid with imported silk illusion.

Floor Care Help Offered

Confused about how to remove troublesome stains from vinyl, wood, and carpeted floors? Or how to go about selecting the proper floor wax? Or how to save time cleaning floors?

Armstrong Cork Company, a leading maker of resilient floors and carpet, has produced an informative brochure called "What Every Homemaker Should Know About Floor Care" to help clear the confusion.

According to Armstrong, a growing number of homemakers are perplexed by the wide variety of floor care products on the market and conflicting claims as to what each one will do. The 19-page brochure is intended to end the confusion by providing easy-to-understand solutions to everyday floor care problems.

The first section of the six-part brochure deals with maintenance tips for vinyl flooring. It reviews the kinds of waxes available and tells how to properly wash and wax floors with clean-and-polish or self-polishing waxes.

Section two centers on caring for wood floors, with particular emphasis on how to save time with convenient self-polishing cleaner waxes.

The third section covers the problem of selecting a good wax for resilient floors. Of particular interest is a review of what makes waxes different and what to look for when choosing a wax.

Useful hints for removing spots and stains from floors make up section four. It shows a chart of common stains and suggests ways to remove them from wood and resilient flooring.

Section five focuses on removing built-up layers of wax from resilient floors and offers a step-by-step wax removal guide.

The final section covers cleaning procedures for broadloom and indoor-outdoor carpet including solutions to stain removal problems.

The pamphlet is free by writing to: Armstrong Cork Company, Floor Care Pamphlet P1-15, Lancaster, Pa. 17604.

Latins Know Barbecue Secret

It matters not how the barbecue came about, but bless them all—the descendants of the New World conquerors and the conquered Indians—for one of the culinary treasures of the Americas.

The art of barbecuing meats over the hot ashes of an open fire made its way up North, changing with each generation and taking on new dimensions and regional flavor accents. Oddly enough, chocolate mole, familiar to those who have explored Mexican cookery, is considered one of the earliest barbecue sauces and basters for roasted meats.

Today there are so many schools of thought about sauces and methods of barbecuing meats, that we often overlook the real purpose of marinades and basters. A good basting sauce brings out the delicate flavor of the meat; but a conglomeration of garlic, herbs and sundry aromatic leaves only tends to smother flavor of broiled and roasted meats.

Latin American cooks use coffee as a basic flavor accent for their carbonadas because it marries well with tomato sauce, chili powder and hot pepper sauce. One taste of Rack of Ribs Carbonada prepared over coals or baked in the oven is proof enough that the sauce does provide the means of achieving full-bodied flavor. The lean pork ribs are excellent as an appetizer along with tacos and guacamole or as the main course accompanied by a salad of shredded lettuce, diced avocado, sliced green onions, tomatoes and a topping of jalapeno.

Feet Size Affects Walking

Big feet may mean early steps.

An Air Force doctor, Col. Kenneth Shepard, who has been comparing the foot sizes of newborn babies with the dates they start walking, says there seems to be a distinct connection. Babies with larger feet take their first steps at about one year of age whereas babies with smaller feet tend to start walking at about 21 months.

Colonel Shepard has solved the problem of separating large feet from small feet by dividing a newborn's foot length by body length from the crown of his head to his rump. The larger the ratio, the bigger the foot relatively.

Dark Frame Suggested

Selecting a picture frame? Choose one that is lighter than the darkest color in your picture, the Picture and Frame Institute advise.

The frame should be darker than the mat and in harmony with both the picture and the wall. Let the frame act as the connecting link between the picture and the wall.

You feel a little edgy, or maybe cross.

Sooner or later, that day comes, the day when a woman feels she's changing. It's not a good feeling either. And she could use a good old-fashioned medicine then.

You might even have what we call hot flashes and feel sad and slightly off-balance. Whatever you feel, we have something for the day you need a little comforting. Lydia E. Pinkham Tablets. They're made with gentle, natural ingredients that work to help you feel better. When you start changing, you could use a good old-fashioned medicine for an old-fashioned problem. Any Color Is Right For Cooking

It makes no difference if cookware is solid-colored or patterned as long as the color's right, says E.E. Schulenberg, general sales manager of United States Stamping Co., a division of Lisk-Savory Corp.

Blue, yellow, avocado and orange are this year's colors, he reports.

However, Fiesta, with a food theme design in red, brown and yellow, fares as well as blue-patterned Blue Meissen.

Vitamins Preserved By Steaming

It makes no sense to boil the nutrients out of vegetables and pour significant amounts of their vitamins, minerals and flavors down the drain, say home economists at United States Stamping Co., Div. of Lisk-Savory Corp. They point out that steaming is the way to prepare vegetables that are to be cooked with water.

To make steaming of fresh and frozen vegetables or frankfurters easy, this company has introduced what it calls a multipurpose cooker. It comprises a 7-in. diameter, 7 1/2-in. high cooking pot with top with a divided, removable inner basket with handles. Remove the inner basket and you have a roomy stew pot.

A brochure which comes with the cooker calls for the use of 1-pt. of water when steaming and gives the cooking time for a number of vegetables.

The 4-qt. capacity multipurpose cooker is available in vibrant blue, brilliant orange, avocado green or golden yellow, all with a colorful, vegetable design.

To assure durability and ease of cleaning these cookers are made of heavy gauge steel and sheathed with a tough, satin-smooth ceramic. They retail for about $11.00 at better hardware and department stores.

Mrs. Semago

Briggs-Semago Wedding

The marriage of Miss Carolyn Clark Briggs and John Semago Jr. took place at 7 p.m. Saturday, July 26 at Saint Martin-in-the-Fields Episcopal in Pompano Beach, Fla. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Lloyd W. Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Frammell Clark of Virginia Beach.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Semago Sr. of Pompano Beach.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carter Briggs, formerly of Great Neck Point. She is the granddaughter of

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mrs. Walter Quakenbush was matron of honor and Miss Christine Clark was maid of honor. Mrs. Cary Crutchfield was bridesmaid, and Misses Bonnie Lucile and Mary Wallace Briggs were their sister's junior bridesmaids.

MUSHROOM POTATO PANCAKE

Combine 2 tablespoons instant minced onion with 2 tablespoons water; let stand 10 minutes to soften. Meanwhile, prepare 1 envelope from a 6 oz. box of potato pancake mix according to package directions. Stir softened onion and 1 can (3 to 4 oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained, into pancake mix. Drop by tablespoonful onto a hot, greased griddle or skillet. Brown on both sides. Yield: 4 portions.

Cary Crutchfield was best man. Groomsmen were Royall A. Briggs III, Robert Schlichenmaier, Robert Clappett and Michael Leroy.

Following a reception the couple left on a wedding trip to the Florida Keys. They will live in Fort Walton, Fla. where the bridegroom is serving in the U.S. Air Force.

Biblical Plants Chronicled

Most folks enjoy history. We like to know about the events of previous generations. In many situations the fruits, flowers and vegetables played very important roles in ancient civilizations.

Of special interest are the plants which were cultivated in Biblical times. I have recently been reading two books on this subject which may be of interest to you. "Plants of the Bible" by Harold and Alma Moldenke is a detailed treatment of the subject. This book contains complete historical and botanical information, and will give you some fascinating hours.

Since most of us have not had the opportunity to go to Palestine and surrounding areas, the author's description of the land is very enlightening. They emphasize the barrenness of the landscape caused by ruthless cutting of the forests. As a result, the once fertile topsoil has been washed away, and a prosperous progressive agriculture is difficult or impossible to maintain.

Parts of the Biblical lands offer some of the world's worst examples of land exploitation and soil erosion. Centuries of misrule and neglect have combined with natural agencies to make desolate this once fine agricultural land. Today, some areas are as bare of vegetation as if scraped by a bulldozer. We should remember this example in our continued efforts to promote soil conservation in this country. It is not too late to learn this lesson in the wise use of natural resources.

Another book which is written in a somewhat lighter, more popular style is, "All the Plants of the Bible" by Winifred Walker. This book contains excellent sketches by the author, to illustrate each plant.

The descriptions of each plant are brief and interesting. They include quotations from the Bible in which the plant is mentioned. Short, one paragraph discussions then relate the plants to the locality and give other descriptive and historical information.

The rose is mentioned in several places in the Bible and refers to several different plants. The Phoenician rose was a large bush which is similar to some of the single types which are still cultivated or found growing wild. The rose cited in Ecclesiasticus is apparently the cleander.

In at least two instances, the term rose, as used in the Bible, refers to plants of the lily family. The Hebrew translation of rose as used in Isaiah, indicates a plant with a bulbous root. This is probably the tagetta or polyanthus type narcissus which is commonly grown in many modern gardens. Similarly, the Rose of Sharon in the Song of Solomon is a tulip.

Many other interesting examples of flowers with different names could be cited. The lilies of the Song of Solomon were similar to certain present day lilies. The lilies of the field in Ecclesiasticus were types of iris and not typical lilies as we now know them.

We could go on and on in citing the interesting flowers, fruit, and vegetables which are described in these two books. You will find these are interesting reading if you are curious about ancient plants and their contribution to previous generations.

Gather Some Seaweed and...

Hunting for a different way to entertain family or guests? An easy, fun, and novel way is to stage a summer cookout. It's not expensive, guaranteed to be delicious and you can stage it anywhere.

A brochure which comes with clam steamers made by United States Stamping Co. (division of Lisk-Savory Corp.) gives these directions for a feast for six.

In the bottom of a 20-quart steamer, pour three pints of cold water. Cover with upper section and load in this order.

Place a generous layer of wet seaweed on the bottom of the upper section. If seaweed is not available, use wet celery, lettuce or spinach.

—Wrap each of the following in cheesecloth squares and tie the corners: three broiler chickens (split); six unpeeled, medium-sized onions; six ears of corn that have been previously soaked in salt water for an hour; four dozen small clams in four wrappers of one dozen each; four, one-pound lobsters.

Top off the ingredients with more wet seaweed and put one medium-sized potato in the center of the foods and cover. The potato is your cooking thermometer. In about an hour and a half when it's done, the feast is ready to eat.

Provide melted butter, the beverage of your choice, a tasty dessert and dig in.

Ferns Adapt to Garden, Home

Ferns are among the most adaptable of plants for home gardeners. They are ideal for ground cover or border plantings in the landscape, and are especially useful as potted plants in the home.

Ferns are an ancient type of vegetation which occupied the world millions of years ago before the evolution of seed producing plants. They are strictly foliage plants since they produce no flowers.

Ferns produce long fronds instead of leaves as are found in seed plants. These arise directly from the ground with no central stem. The small brown spots on the underside of the leaves produce spores which serve the same purpose as seeds in reproducing the plant.

Many hardy ferns are available for outdoor planting. They grow abundantly in wooded areas and may be transplanted easily. They will thrive best if located near trees, or on the east or north side of a building, where they will receive partial shade. Ferns may grow quite poorly if subjected to hot afternoon sun.

Ferns start growth very early in the spring, and retain their delicate leafy foliage until after several light frosts in the fall. They are quite free from disease or insect pests, and thus are easy to grow in the native gardens or border plantings around the home property.

Ferns grow best in a soil which has a high humus content. Almost pure leaf mold is ideal. The average garden soil may be made suitable for ferns by adding liberal quantities of peat moss. An abundant supply of water is also needed throughout the season to promote vigorous green growth.

The best time to transplant ferns is in the spring about a month before the last frost, or in the fall a couple weeks after the first frost. Keep the roots covered with a protective ball of moist soil or peat moss at all times. Apply water as needed after transplanting to maintain a high moisture content in the soil.

Although ferns grow abundantly in moist woodlands, do be careful in digging up the plants you need for landscaping your home grounds. They spread rather slowly from underground rootstocks. They also reproduce from the spores, but several years are required to produce a mature plant in this way. Therefore, in gathering ferns from wild sources, dig only a few plants and leave an adequate group to maintain the original native collection.

Lighting Adds Beauty

Practical aspects should not be overlooked with lighting a home but the homemaker should not lose sight of the fact that effective use of lighting techniques can help add extra touches of beauty to the surroundings.

No artist or photographer would think of lighting a subject with a single glaring floodlight. Instead he uses several lights to achieve balance, emphasize graceful movement of lines and to cast shadows where they are needed, said Mrs. Mildred Payne, Extension home economist at Virginia Tech.

Leonardo de Vinci, the great 15th century artist, is credited with invention of the lamp chimney to improve the lighting he needed in his studio, Mrs. Payne pointed out to emphasize the relationship between lighting and beauty. Since that time there have been many improvements made in lighting and ways to control it.

Directing, diffusing and even shading light are still very real concerns of lighting engineers, but for the homes of today there are many ways to use light to achieve the desired feeling.

For instance, a small spotlight placed in a hidden position could be used to cast the shadow of a plant on a wall, or a colored light bulb would emphasize the color scheme of the room. A recessed spotlight to light an art object or conventional valance lighting to light drapery fabric are both ways to add drama to home lighting.

NORFOLK / PORTSMOUTH / VIRGINIA BEACH

Notice how clean our beaches are this season. At least they are clean in the early morning hours. Later on in the day their appearance depends on how careful the swimmers and sun bathers are with their litter.

The City of Virginia Beach maintains a regular schedule of beach clean up. This is how it works. The beach is divided into sections. Several crews of three men each walk their

Save Time With Sprays

To twist a phrase, "a spray in time saves nine..." The "nine" in this case, are not the stitches of the old adage but steps.

For example: if you spray and shine the metal in bathroom and kitchen fixtures in a quick, once-a-day ritual, you'll save steps getting other cleaning equipment necessary when soap and spongers build up on shiny metal. If you spray an oven after it's clean and before it has a chance to get dirt on it, a quick swipe with a sponge or dishcloth after each use could save you at least nine painful oven-cleaning steps.

And in the laundry room or wherever your washing machine and other laundry equipment reside, spraying with a good enamel or metal cleaner after your biggest weekly wash can save you a long chore of actually scrubbing the equipment. (Saves wear on enameled surfaces too.)

These are examples to encourage you to look around your own house to see what nine steps you can save. These may even be in the closet where a thorough air freshening spray every few days (and leaving the door open whenever possible while you're dressing) can save you the far longer chore of taking the closet apart. (This will have to be done at least twice a year, of course,--and sprays can cut down time there--and-moth, anti-odor and anti-dirt sprays of various kinds designed to speed up cleaning.)

section of the beach and gather up the litter and put it in a pile near the trash cans to be picked up. At the same time a beach buggy drives along the sand and picks up the trash piles and empties the cans.

Please, Mr. Virginia Beach resident and our visitors, help the City in its efforts maintain a clean, attractive beach. Please put your litter in the trash cans.

One authority, the Aerosol Division of the Chemical Specialties Manufacturers Association suggests the following basic check-list of aerosols for cleaning aids:

Glass and metal cleaning spray (two or three of any good brand to be stored in different places.)

Spray Tile Cleaner (one or two--depending on number and location of bathrooms or other tiled areas.)

Oven Spray Cleaners (two types--one to clean, one to protect, both to be kept conveniently in or near the kitchen.)

Spray Disinfectant: (two or three--preferably of a type which combines extra germicidal action and pleasant odor or an odor-masking ingredient, which has no scent of its own.)

Spray Furniture Polish (one for each area or each floor of your house.)

They're Ready to Serve the City

Members of the Virginia Beach Volunteer Rescue Squad are conducting their annual fund raising drive during August and will be attempting to raise $38,000 through public donations from the residents of the area served by them.

The Squad is now in its 17th year of providing emergency medical treatment for injured persons in the event of accidents, sudden illness, or other similar emergencies. During 1968 the 36 members of the Squad responded to 2,222 calls for emergency medical assistance, and travelled 45,487 miles in offering this service.

At the present time the Squad is equipped with three Cadillac ambulances, a medium duty crash truck and an outboard boat for rescue operations. The funds being sought by the Squad in their current drive will be used to refurbish this equipment, replace equipment which becomes unserviceable and purchase newly developed equipment.

The Rescue Squad operates out of a headquarters location at 20th Street and Arctic Avenue in Virginia Beach Borough. The area primarily served by the squad includes an area bordered on the east by the Atlantic Ocean; on the north by Shore Drive to the Fort Story West Gate; on the south by Old Dam Neck Road and the intersection of London Bridge Road and Shilps Corner Road; to the west beyond Great Neck Road including Robin Hood Forest, Point-O-Woods, Wolfshare Plantation, Southern Points and Tranwood Shores. Although these boundaries include areas primarily served by the unit, members of the Squad are on constant standby to assist in any emergency anywhere in the city.

The quality of service offered by the Squad is attested to through the qualification of its members. Each man who serves with the Squad undergoes training through the level of Red Cross Advanced First Aid, then serves a six month probationary period before he is placed on a full time basis with the Squad. In addition all Squad members attend regularly scheduled monthly drill meetings which consist of updating their training and familiarization with the latest life saving techniques.

Operation of the Squad is under the direction of Ned Langhorne, captain; David Owens, first lieutenant; Ray Meekins, second lieutenant; Jake Brammer, sergeant; Fred Twyman, secretary; O.L. "Butch" Clark, treasurer; Glen Cawser, chaplain; John Dickens, Plans and Training; and John Trinder, public relations.

Last year the Rescue Squad competed with more than 100 volunteer rescue squads from throughout the state in the Virginia Association of Rescue Squads state convention to test the readiness and qualification of the men of the squads. The Virginia Beach Volunteer Rescue Squad returned to the resort city with six of seven trophies offered in the top categories of testing.

Contributions will be sought during the month of August from residents of the area served by the Squad through the mailing of material to the homes and business places of these residents. Your contribution can be made by mailing your donation to: "The Virginia Beach Rescue Squad, Box 47, Virginia Beach, Virginia, 23458".

Members of the Squad are rightly proud of their unit and the service offered to residents and the thousands who visit the city each year. They stand ready to answer your call at any hour of day or night and remind you that should you or your loved ones require their service in any emergency they may be contacted by telephoning 486-4444.

4 Finish Driving Course

Four Virginia Beach men have completed the Defensive Driving Course for Instructors, held recently in Norfolk.

These training sessions for instructors, which have been adapted from the National Safety Council's standard program of driver improvement, are sponsored by the American Association of Retired Persons.

Graduates were: Kenneth A. Belangia, Capot Road; Sgt. E.L. Jackson, Rosemarie Avenue; S. Blair Myers, Norfolk Avenue and A.L. Redfern, South Lynnhaven Road.

These instructors are now qualified to present the Defensive Driving Course to other drivers in the community, providing the know-how to assist them in driving safely under today's demanding traffic conditions. The AARP Defensive Driving Instructor Course was conducted by Allwyn E. Symington of New York, National Coordinator of the AARP Defensive Driving Program.

Holding Company Approved

Stockholders of the People's Bank of Virginia Beach voted Monday night to form a one-bank holding company.

The proposal was presented by J. Burton Harrison Jr., president of the bank, upon unanimous recommendation of the bank's Board of Directors. A two-thirds majority was required for the proposal to be accepted; the stockholders were in favor of the plan by a 72 percent majority.

According to the proposal the holding company will be created by converting bank stock share into holding company stock. Application has been made for approval to the Virginia Bureau of Banking and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. Action is expected by Sept. 1.

Jugglers Featured At Seaside

Try balancing a hoop on one leg, a ball on your finger, loops around each arm, a stick topped by a ball on your forehead and mouth. Then put these articles in motion and begin juggling three plates in the air.

If you can do that, and many other incredible balancing and juggling feats, you must be Gino of the celebrated European circus team of "Gino & Mary-Ann." This is the new circus attraction appearing through Aug. 3 at Seaside Amusement Park for two free shows daily at 2:30 and 10 p.m.

Seaside Park has booked the following free attractions for the last weeks of the 1969 summer season: Aug. 4-10 "Hal Haviland Dog & Pony Circus;" Aug. 11-17 "The Sensational Gascas," daring balancing on the high wire; Aug. 18-24 "Billy Barton," breath-taking high pole swinger; Aug. 25-31 - Sprister's Chimps. The park will close for the season on Labor Day (September 1) with a majestic holiday fireworks show.

The "Frolles Room" at Seaside Park will feature teen dances every Sunday and Monday night, from 8 p.m. to midnight, for the remainder of the summer season. Adult dancing is presented Tuesday through Saturday nights, and from 2 to 6 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

"Hal Haviland & Friends," an outstanding trained dog and pony act, will be the new circus attraction at the amusement park began a one week engagement at Ocean View Amusement Park on July 28. Haviland's animal show, sure to delight the whole family, will be presented twice daily at 2:30 and 10 p.m. on the park's outdoor stage.

Ocean View Amusement Park, with its own beach and picnic area, currently offers 27 varied thrill rides, including the giant "Skyrocket" roller coaster, the new 5-story high "Sky Slide," the Trabant, Paratrooper, and Skyliner and acre after acre of kiddie rides, concession games, a 1,300 foot fishing pier open 24 hours a day, a fascinating baby animal zoo, exotic reptile "serpentarium," and many other facilities for excitement and having fun.

Admission to Seaside and Ocean View parks is free.

Marine Pvt. James E. Slantis, son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Slantis of Old Forge Road, is serving with the First Marine Aircraft Wing in Vietnam.

Wedgewood Play Falls Short

Apprentice Delle Chatman plays the Dark Witch in the current production at Wedgewood Theatre, "Dark of the Moon." The folk fantasy with music plays Tuesday through Saturday at the Williamsburg playhouse, buffet at 7, curtain at 8:30 p.m.

Wedgewood Theatre in Toano is currently presenting the folk play, "Dark of the Moon" by Howard Richardson and William Berney. The production approaches the beautiful and artistic, but falls short of the mark with too much emphasis on realism.

The play is the story of the "Ballad of Barbara Allen". A witch-boy falls in love with a young human girl that lives in the valley beyond his Smokey Mountain home. His love for her forces him to seek help from conjurers to make him human. They do, at great peril to him and to the young girl he eventually marries and whose child he fathers while still a witch-boy.

The marriage, his life as a human and Barbara Allen herself are all doomed from the start. Of that there is never any doubt, but the story maintains suspense to the highly climactic end.

The townsfolk of this early 20th century setting are ignorant, superstitious, deeply religious, and are merely pawns for the plot to deal with.

Obviously all this is fantasy. The writing demands it. With the union responses made by the people and the poetic lines included, the piece leaves the world of reality behind except to set a situation.

While director Ron Reid handles the fantasy, the production is a joy to watch. But he has allowed the townfolk too much realism and has allowed them too much comedy caricaturing, making it confusing and difficult to figure it all out at once.

David Califf plays an intense witch-boy, but has trouble varying his intensity to the situation. Debi Luze, obviously a promising young actress, is a fine mixture of child and woman, of wife and lover and of wisdom and ignorance.

In the large cast there are several notable performances. Sherri Reid is excellent as the Conjurer woman, Peter Derks is an imposing hellfire and damnation preacher, Claudine Iddings is delightful as one of the townfolk, as is Mackie, Anne Costello and Roby Brown, while never really achieving the earthiness required, are pleasing as Barbara's parents.

Particular note must also go to Leroy MacFarland, another townman, to Frankie Seay as one of the youngsters of the town, to Carolee Silcox and Lilene Miller as two of the town residents, and to John Wood as Barbara's ex-boyfriend and nemesis, Partick Stoner also does a nice job as the Conjurer man.

Delle Chatman is outstanding as one of the witches. Her ethereal quality is perfect. Her witch companion is played ably by Christine Hamilton.

The play is old now, and is rarely done, except in college or experimental theatre. Regardless of any flaws, it is a thrilling experience in the theatre and deserves to be seen, if only for the chilling revival scene which climaxes the production. HJL.

Art, Youth Sessions Scheduled

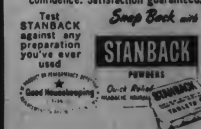

An Art Conference, followed immediately by a Youth Conference, "From Atlantis to Aquaris," will take place at the Association for Research and Enlightenment, 67th Street and Atlantic Avenue, beginning on Tuesday, July 29 and lasting through Sunday, Aug. 3. A program of three sessions a day will be presented through the first five days, ending with a session on Sunday at 3:30 p.m.

Music, drama, many forms of the dance, poetry, finger painting, chanting, applicable arts, symbology illustrated by an exhibit of paintings and other art objects will be featured at the art conference. At the Youth Conference Walter Starcke, author of the widely acclaimed book, "This Double Thread," will speak on "Youth and Drugs." Louis Boykin, a clinical psychologist and instructor in the psychology department at Norfolk State College, will talk on "Sex in the Edgar Cayce Readings." Stephan Schwartz, feature story writer, will talk on "Atlantis."

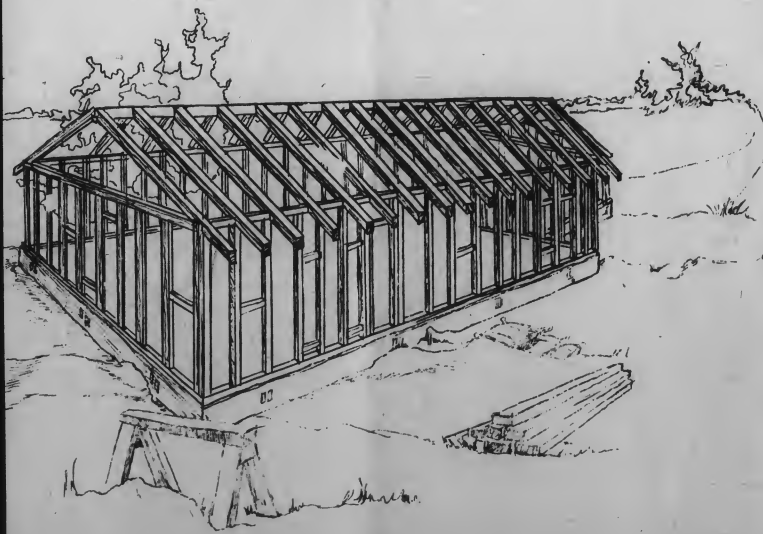

Further information on these conferences may be obtained by calling the Association.

Institute Attracts 200

A four-day University of Virginia Institute for nursing home administrators, State health and welfare personnel and allied medical professions, has attracted 200 persons this week, said Homer Cunningham of Virginia Beach, chairman.

Speakers scheduled for the 14th Annual Virginia Nursing Home Association Institute at the University's School of General Studies include officials of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Federal Housing Administration, Virginia Health Department, Virginia Comprehensive Health Planning Council, Virginia Medicare and Medicaid

Premiums Increases With Age

The average World War II veteran, now 49.3 years of age, is fast approaching the higher premium hurdle of 50 if he still retains his GI term insurance, the Veterans Administration said recently.

E.P. Brosnan, Manager of the Roanoke VA Regional Office, says that in most cases the higher insurance cash outlay at age 50 can be eased in a number of ways.

One way is a modified life plan. If purchased at age 50, it will have a constant monthly premium of $15.90 for a $10,000 policy. However, when the insured reaches the age of 65, the face value of the policy is automatically reduced in half, but the premium remains unchanged.

Brosnan explains that many people find their insurance needs decline at or near the age of 65. However, the insured who wishes to continue the full $10,000 of his policy may do so without medical examination by paying an additional $5.15 per $1,000 at the age of 65. Thus, for the added $5,000 protection total monthly premiums would be $41.65.

Some 211,000 eligible veterans have taken advantage of this plan since it was made available in 1965.

Another popular plan is the ordinary life ($63,000 policy) where at the age of 50 the monthly premium would be $31.20 for $10,000 worth of protection. But with the annual dividend paid by NSLI the cost of the premium would be reduced to about $24 a month, Brosnan points out.

And, to make it even more convenient to convert from term insurance, the VA reminds veterans that if it is not possible to change the full amount of the policy a portion may be converted now and the remainder continued as term insurance, with the privilege of full conversion later on.

Also available to NSLI term policy holders are 20- and 30-payment life, 20-year endowment, and endowments that mature when the insured reaches the age of 60 or 65.

Information on policy conversion may be obtained at the VA insurance office where the veteran mails his premiums. The insurance policy number and the veteran's full name and address should be included in all correspondence, he said.

Bank Gets SBA Award

Virginia National Bank was cited this week for outstanding cooperation with the Small Business Administration in assisting that agency to implement its programs of assistance to Virginia's small business community.

The award was presented in ceremonies in Richmond and was accepted for the bank by R. Cosby Moore, chairman of the board.

Virginia National Bank has participated in more SBA loans than any other bank in Virginia. Last November, Virginia National announced plans for its participation with the SBA in the minorities loan program. It was on the basis of this type participation that Virginia National Bank received its award.

Ad Club Plans Symposium Robbins Heads Communications

The Murk family, who last performed for the U. S. Senate, will present a Family Musicale at 8 p.m. Aug. 6 at the Virginia Beach Community Chapel on Laskin Road. The public is invited.

The American Advertising Federation's 3rd District, which encompasses all the Advertising Clubs in Virginia, North and South Carolina, will conduct a Summer Symposium at Virginia Beach on Aug. 1, 2, and 3rd., at the Mariner Motor Hotel.

The Third District Governor, is James W. Evans, of WTAR-AM-FM-TV; host club for the event is the Advertising Club of Tidewater.

Howard Jernigan (WGH), and George Pleasants (WHII), are co-chairmen of the conference. Participants in the Symposium are from every major city and area in the three states.

Evans, who ordered the Symposium, stated that one of the reasons he did so, was the growing concern in the advertising profession of the increasing number of attacks upon advertising from federal, state, and local governments, as well as individual groups and organizations.

Presidents, officers and members of the various clubs will attend shirt-sleeve working sessions which will deal with all phases of club activities, from government relations and regulations, to educational projects beamed to both students and the general public. Featured speaker at the Saturday luncheon, will be 1st District Congressman, Thomas N. Downing. Saturday evening the dinner speaker will be Howard Bell of Washington, D. C., president of the American Advertising Federation.
